COMMITTEE UNANIMOUSLY APPROVES PAY-HOUR BILL

CHINA TO LOSE NAZI ADVISERS' ASSISTANCE AT END OF MONTH

Departure Will Deal Heavy Blow To Hope Of Repelling Nipponese

'GENERAL ATTACK' UPON HANKOW OPENED BY JAPS

Drives Against Nation's Greatest City, With Population Of 1,500,000

HANKOW, June 11.—(AP)—China at the end of the month will lose the services of German advisers, headed by General Alexander von Falkenhausen, who aided Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek in whipping together his national army.

After nearly three weeks of uncertainty since Berlin asked for the release of the men under contract as military advisers and instructors, German authorities said today von Falkenhausen and all of the regular members of his mission would leave, en route to Germany, by July 1.

Their departure will deal a heavy blow to China's hopes of resisting the Japanese invasion as Chiang has turned more and more to von Falkenhausen for advice.

The general came to China more than three years ago, picked by Chiang as his high adviser and expert in the gigantic task of building up a national army capable of fighting China's battles.

With a staff of 60 German assistants, he aided in the gradual development of a peace-time program of military organization, training and modernization.

When the Chinese-Japanese war broke out last July, with the task uncompleted, von Falkenhausen remained in China to become Chiang's chief adviser on strategy despite China's unpreparedness and Berlin's expressed political sympathy with Japan.

JAPAN OPENS GENERAL ATTACKS UPON HANKOW

SHANGHAI, June 12 (Sunday).—(AP)—Japan launched today what she announced was a "general attack" upon Hankow, a provisional seat of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's Chinese government, in the heart of China 585 miles up the Yangtze river.

The Japanese navy served notice here of plans to use both warships and land forces in a synchronized assault upon the capital, central China's greatest commercial city, having a

CORONER'S JURY BLAMES M'CALL

Finds Young Truck Driver Responsible For Cash Child's Death

MIAMI, Fla., June 11.—(AP)—A coroner's jury branded Franklin Pierce McCall the killer of James Bailey Cash, Jr., today but failed to say how the kidnap victim was slain.

The 21-year-old unemployed truck driver signed a confession, federal agents have announced, that he stole the lad from his bed with a handkerchief over his mouth and another over his eyes.

Some 50 spectators and six jurors heard unemotional, monosyllabic testimony from Cash, Sr., that his only child, 5, was dead and the G-men's account of McCall's kidnaping confession. Fifteen minutes later the jury returned the verdict:

"We, the jury * * * find that James Bailey Cash, Jr., came to his death at the hands of Franklin Pierce McCall."

CHICAGO, June 11.—(AP)—Baby Helaine Colan, whose left eye was removed a month ago on advice of council of 10 medical specialists to halt the spread of glioma of the retina, was reported today to be showing definite signs of improvement.

X-ray treatments have been given to stop the cancerous growth, which also attacked her right eye. Her maternal grandfather, Dr. Morris Hershman, said Helaine's chances of life and partial sight were "very, very promising."

Helaine, now 10 weeks old, is back at the home of her parents, Dr. Herman Colan, a dentist, and his wife Estelle.

Two New Liquor Taxes Proposed

HULL HITS SALE OF WAR PLANES

Seeks To Stop Transfer Of American-made Bombers To Japan

WASHINGTON, June 11.—(AP)—Secretary of State Hull undertook today to halt the sale of American-made bombing planes to Japan.

He chose public opinion as the means of accomplishing this objective.

In carefully-worded phrases, Mr. Hull told reporters that this government's repeated condemnation of the bombing of civilian populations was directed especially at the manufacturers of military planes, and the general American public as well as foreign powers.

The repeated damning of ruthless warfare would discourage sales to regions where planes were being used to bomb civilians, he predicted. Other such condemnations would be voiced in the future, he said.

Though Mr. Hull named no nation specifically, it was obvious that Japan would be chiefly affected if this policy were successful. Shipments of war material to both sides in Spain

ONE WOULD GIVE AID TO FAMILIES OF PERSONS SENT TO PENITENTIARY

Both Measures Labelled Unprecedented In Annals Of Legislation

FUND FOR THOSE HURT IN DRINKING MISHAPS ASKED

Another Requires Determination Of Whether Defendants Drunk

BATON ROUGE, La., June 11.—(AP)—Two proposals to further tax the liquor traffic for purposes considered unique will confront the house ways and means committee after legislators return to the capitol next week.

Labelled unprecedented in the annals of legislation, the bills, introduced by Representatives D. F. Edwards, West Carroll, and George E. Beckcom, Bossier, would:

1. Require district attorneys or grand juries to determine whether a person charged with any offense other than violation of a city ordinance was intoxicated at the time of the offense. If, in their opinion, he had been intoxicated the defendant would face an additional charge of being drunk.

2. Levy additional taxes on liquor, wines and beer to pay the cost of:

(a) Prosecutions in which the defendant is convicted of committing an offense while intoxicated or is adjudged a "psycopathic alcoholic."

(b) Care and medical treatment of defendants sentenced to jail or committed to an institution.

(c) Weekly compensation to dependents of the defendant during his incarceration or commitment.

(d) Judgments rendered in favor of persons suing for damages for death, personal injury or property damage when it is shown the person responsible was intoxicated at the time of the offense.

The liquor tax would be increased 10 per cent and the beer tax 6 2-3 per cent, providing additional revenue of approximately $200,000 a year.

This would be put into an intoxicating liquor compensation fund, presided over by a "commissioner of intoxicating liquor compensation" appointive by the governor.

From the proposed additional taxes, the families of persons imprisoned or committed to an institution under the conditions set forth in the bill would be compensated weekly on this basis:

Father and mother, $15; father or mother, $10; one child, $10; two children, $15; three children, $17.50; more than three children, $5 each.

The tax increase would be six cents a gallon on liquor, sparkling wines and still wines having an alcoholic content exceeding 24 per cent and still wines of less alcoholic content would be taxed less.

"This bill seeks to shift from the city, parish and state," one advocate said, "tremendous expenses traceable directly to the liquor business. Dependent parents, wives, husbands and minor children are more grievously affected by the confinement of defendants in prison and state hospitals than the defendants themselves. This bill seeks to make reparation."

The proposal will be considered Tuesday in committee.

The legislature reconvenes Monday night at 8 o'clock for the sixth week of its 60-day biennial session.

CONCESSIONS TO DICTATORS NOT ROAD TO PEACE, EDEN DECLARES

Former British Foreign Secretary Lashes At 'Appeasement' Plan

SAYS CONSTANT YIELDING WILL BRING 'DEFEATISM'

Praises Hull's Speech June 3 For 'Strong, United Opinion'

LEAMINGTON, England, June 11.—(AP)—Former Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden warned tonight that concessions to dictators "are not the way to peace" and demanded that the British government take a "clear stand" against them.

In contrast to his vigorous denunciation of Premier Neville Chamberlain's policies in general, Eden praised Secretary of State Cordell Hull's plea June 3 in Nashville, Tenn., for "a strong United public opinion" to support "world order based on law."

"Every word of it is deserving of the closest study by all of us," the former "white knight of Geneva" declared.

In an address before his constituents, Eden made his most energetic attack on the Chamberlain government since he left the cabinet in protest against its way of dealing with Italy and Germany.

He warned that the government was "under grave delusion" if it thinks it can reach European appeasement "by a policy of concession to violence."

Held Without Bond In Death Of Wife After Denying Guilt

COLUMBUS, Ga., June 11.—(AP)—The federal government jailed Major John R. Brooke, Jr., today on a charge that he murdered his wife but its spokesmen steadfastly withheld details of the case against the 200-pound army officer.

United States Commissioner N. A. Brown ordered the 44-year-old grandson of a major-general held without bond after the prisoner pleaded innocent and waived preliminary hearing. Brooke will be held in county jail pending action on his case by a federal grand jury expected to be summoned late this month.

Mrs. Brooke, comely, 42-year-old mother of three children, was found fatally beaten in the Brooke home at nearby Fort Benning last Wednesday.

Major Brooke, an instructor in the fort's infantry school, was afield on maneuvers when two daughters discovered their mother's body. He was recalled, placed in the post hospital where he was held until civil authorities claimed him today.

Brigadier-General Asa Singleton, Fort Benning commandant, announced Brooke's detention Thursday. Federal bureau of investigation agents were summoned.

None would say what motive the government would claim or disclose any of the circumstances of the death.

One investigator, who declined to be quoted, said it was thought the death weapon may have been a child's iron.

GRIEF-STRICKEN FAMILY AT 'SKEEGIE'S' FUNERAL

EARTHQUAKE JARS FIVE COUNTRIES

London, Paris And Brussels Feel Shock As Walls Crack

LONDON, June 11.—(AP)—An earthquake born in the North sea jolted five countries today, rumbling over a 400-mile front from England to the Rhineland.

There was scattered damage, surprise, alarm and even panic among the countryfolk in Belgium and northern France, who dropped to their knees in prayer as chimneys toppled, walls cracked, windows broke and furniture jumped.

Three capitals—London, Paris, and Brussels—felt the shocks, which some seismographs recorded as having a duration of ten minutes. London felt the first shock at 11:59 a.m. (4:59 a. m. central standard time), Brussels a severe tremor at 11:57.

Three persons were killed and about 20 injured in Belgium. In Brussels a frightened man leaped to his death from a balcony; in Ghent an out-of-control street car killed a pedestrian; a crumbling wall killed a bricklayer at Cruyshautem.

Two children were injured seriously at Hazebrouck, northern France, and in several continental towns there were injuries from falling bricks.

Damage was minor but extensive, apparently most serious in Belgium.

It was estimated the damage there might reach a million dollars. The frontal wall of the palace of justice at Ghent split and a wall of the Liege citadel barracks shifted four feet. Heavy factory motors were moved in some places.

Germany and the Netherlands felt the shocks along with England, France and Belgium.

The quake was described as the most severe in Belgium's history. Brussels boulevards were suddenly thronged with frightened crowds.

ENGINEER'S BODY IN SUBMERGED CAB

ST. LOUIS, June 11.—(AP)—The body of Engineer W. W. Malloy still was trapped tonight in the submerged cab of his locomotive, which overturned in flooded Jouchim creek early today on a washed-out section of Missouri Pacific track near Hematite, Mo.

Thirty-five passengers, marooned in the wrecked train by high water reaching almost to the car floors, were taken off after eight hours of anxious waiting. None was injured.

Malloy checked the speed of the St. Louis-Little Rock train when he came to the water-covered tracks, 33 miles south of here. The fact he was traveling slowly prevented a more serious accident.

The locomotive, plunging off the right-of-way, lurched over on its right side in the flooded creek bottom. The fireman, C. T. McRill, struggled free through a window on the left side of the cab. He was rescued after clinging to a tree for four hours.

The passenger coaches did not leave the tracks. Three of the nine baggage cars were derailed, two of them tilting partially into the water.

FIVE KILLED WHEN AIRPLANE CRASHES

WORLAND, Wyo., June 11.—(AP)—Five persons were killed when a private airplane piloted by William O. Bashaw, crashed into a field at the edge of Worland today.

The identified dead were:

William O. Bashaw, pilot.

Lloyd Paris, 28, of Worland.

The other two victims were not identified immediately.

The plane crashed shortly after it had taken off from the air field here.

PRESIDENT WOULD LET U. S. PAY ALL

Favors Making Federal Government Shoulder Flood Control Costs

WASHINGTON, June 11.—(AP)—Usually informed sources reported today President Roosevelt had approved proposals to place the cost of flood control reservoirs wholly on the federal government.

This would mean further changes in the omnibus flood control bill now before a conference committee for action on senate amendments rejected by the house.

The measure as drafted would reduct from 100 to 30 per cent existing required local contributions for lands, easements and rights of way needed for reservoirs.

Word that the president had acceded to complete abandonment of the principle of local payments for reservoirs contained in the 1936 omnibus flood control bill circulated after conferees had turned to the White House for counsel on the senate amendments.

SEN. NOE OPPOSES UTILITY MEASURE

Voices Opposition To Proposal To Permit Mortgaging Properties

State Senator James A. Noe issued a statement Saturday night expressing his opposition to proposed amendments to the constitution, now before the state legislature, which would permit municipalities to mortgage public utility properties without a vote of the people. The city commission-council at a special session last Friday adopted a resolution taking a similar position.

The statement follows:

"To the People of the City of Monroe:

"Two of the worst bills ever introduced into any legislature are now pending in the senate. They vitally affect the people of the city of Monroe, and the people of any city or town in this state which owns its own electric light, water and power plants or any other public utilities.

"As the law is now, the governing authorities of a municipality owning its own public utilities may not mortgage the same for any purpose whatever without being authorized to do so by a vote of the people. You know that about one year ago a proposition was made here in Monroe to mortgage the public utilities here, in order to borrow $1,500,000, and you know that the people of this city overwhelmingly voted against this proposal.

"Now, there has been introduced into the senate senate bills Nos. 219 and 220, one of which is a constitutional amendment proposing an amendment to the constitution of this state and the other is an enabling act so that the governing authorities of this city, or any city, can mortgage its public utilities without limit and further providing that the bonds issued may draw

Annual Cooking School Will Open In City On Wednesday

The News-Star—World's famous cooking school and home-makers exposition, which for the past seven years has been one of the most popular institutions of its kind in north Louisiana, will open Wednesday afternoon at Neville High school auditorium.

Mrs. Ida Chitwood, one of America's outstanding cooking school lecturers and authority on scientific cookery, will have charge of the sessions, which will continue each afternoon, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, and will culminate in a special night session Friday. The afternoon sessions of the school will begin at 2:15 o'clock and the Friday night gathering will be at 7:30.

This event promises to be the most outstanding event of its kind that has yet been sponsored by these newspapers. Mrs. Chitwood, who is originator, owner and operator of the famous Chitwood schools of cookery at Dallas, Tex., is known by reputation to many in Monroe and this section of the state, though this will be the first occasion she has conducted a school here. She is a woman of unusually attractive and forceful personality. She has her own technique in arousing interest amongst her cooking students, and her programs are full of human interest entertainment, in addition to the practical presentations of new and novel methods of cooking and advice on modern home-making.

At every session of the cooking school there will be valuable prizes awarded to those in attendance, and on Friday night the grand prizes will be given. These are of unusual importance and value, according to announcement made by the management of the school.

On the last night there will be a beautiful style show, and each session will be packed full of highly clever program features.

Many merchants and manufacturers are cooperating in making the cooking school and home-makers exposition this year one long to be remembered by those who attend.

New Orleans Concern Buys River Transportation Firm

The Commercial Transportation company, Inc., of Monroe, which for the past several years has maintained a freight service on the Ouachita river between Monroe and New Orleans, has sold all its equipment and good will, including barges, boats, warehouses and other equipment, to the River Terminals corporation of New Orleans, according to an announcement by M. S. Biedenharn, secretary-treasurer of the Commercial Transporation company. The monetary consideration involved in the transaction was not disclosed.

In acquiring the good will and equipment of the Commercial Transportation company the New Orleans concern now finds itself the strongest and best equipped company maintaining river transportation on the Ouachita river between New Orleans, Monroe and Camden, Ark., terminals, it was pointed out.

During its seven years of operation on the river the Commercial Transportation company built up a permanent and dependable river freight service for shippers of Monroe and vicinity and one which has contributed greatly to the prosperity and growth of the city.

Mr. Biedenharn, a pioneer and firm believer in the utilization of inland waterways and the Ouachita river in particular as a transportation medium, declared the Commercial Transportation company, in arriving at a decision to sell its equipment and good will to the River Terminals corporation of New Orleans, took the step after careful consideration showed that it would prove of great benefit to shippers and contribute to the steady development of river freight service on the Ouachita.

The River Terminals corporation announces it will maintain regular weekly schedules between Monroe and New Orleans and every effort will be made to maintain and improve the service between the two points at the highest peak of efficiency and service for shippers using

DIFFERENTIALS INSERTED ALONG LINES DEMANDED BY SOUTHERNERS

Formal Report Will Be Drafted Today And Ready For House Monday

'BEDROCK' WAGE OF 25 CENTS PER HOUR FIXED

At End Of Seven Years Scale Of 40 Cents Will Go Into Effect

WASHINGTON, June 11.—(AP)—A thoroughly compromised wage-hour bill, including a provision for pay differentials within a given industry, received unanimous approval of a joint congressional committee today.

Chairman Thomas, Democrat, Utah, announced the conferees would draft a formal report on the bill at a meeting tomorrow, so that it could be taken up in the house Monday. Advocates of the measure predicted it would be approved there quickly and sent to the senate for final passage early in the week.

The threat of a filibuster against the measure by southern senators, who have been fighting for a geographical wage differential, appeared eliminated by the compromise draft. There remained, however, the possibility of opposition from a section of organized labor.

The committee capitulated to the demands of Senators Ellender, Democrat, Louisiana, and Pepper, Democrat, Florida, in writing the wage section of the bill.

It inserted a classification clause that went far toward meeting the southerners' objection of lower wage rates in the south than in the industrial north.

Under this section, boards which will be set up for each industry will be empowered to classify the units of that industry as to size and other factors and set a varying scale of minimum wages which each classification must pay.

In arriving at these minima the boards will not be permitted to fix the pay rate solely on the geographical basis, but must consider also transportation costs, prevailing wages,

PLAN TO UNVEIL PEACE MEMORIAL

Announcement Of Plans For Ceremony Made By Kiwanis District Governor

BATON ROUGE, La., June 11.—(AP)—Plans for unveiling and dedicating on July 15 the international peace memorial erected at Niagara Falls, Ontario, by the Louisiana-Mississippi district of Kiwanis International, were announced today by Dr. Leo LaSalle, dean of the engineering school of Louisiana State university and Kiwanis governor of the district.

The memorial commemorates more than one hundred years of peace between the United States and Canada. It is one of several memorials erected in recent years along the international boundary by Kiwanis districts in the two nations.

A conspicuous feature of the monument will be a column of native Louisiana rock from Evangeline parish, La. A bronze tablet will bear the inscription: "This unfortified boundary line between the United States and Canada should quicken remembrance of more than one hundred years friendship between these countries, a lesson of peace to all nations."

The memorial is to be erected in

EMERGENCY OFFICERS' PENSIONS APPROVED

WASHINGTON, June 11.—(AP)—The house passed and sent to the senate tonight legislation to authorize pensions of so-called emergency World war army officers on the same basis as those of regular army officers.

Foes of the measure, by Representative Edmiston, Democrat, West Virginia, opposed it on the ground it would set up pensions based on rank.

Chairman Rankin, Democrat, Mississippi, of the house veterans committee declared veterans of the Civil war had "spurned with contempt" a similar proposition.

Edmiston said the bill would restore about 1,800 officers to the retired list with pay. The veterans' administration estimated last November about 3,194 former officers would be affected.

BATON ROUGE, La., June 11.—(AP)—Two proposals to further tax the liquor traffic for purposes considered unique will confront the house ways and means committee after legislators return to the capitol next week.

Labelled unprecedented in the annals of legislation, the bills, introduced by Representatives D. F. Edwards, West Carroll, and George E. Beckcom, Bossier, would:

(d) Judgments rendered in favor of persons suing for damages for death, personal injury or property damage when it is shown the person responsible was intoxicated at the time of the offense.

The liquor tax would be increased 10 per cent and the beer tax 6 2-3 per cent, providing additional revenue of approximately $200,000 a year.

This would be put into an intoxicating liquor compensation fund, presided over by a "commissioner of intoxicating liquor compensation" appointive by the governor.

From the proposed additional taxes, the families of persons imprisoned or committed to an institution under the conditions set forth in the bill would be compensated weekly on this basis: Father and mother, $15; father or mother, $10; one child, $10; two children, $15; three children, $17.50; more than three children, $5 each.

JAIL MAJOR ON MURDER CHARGE

Held Without Bond In Death Of Wife After Denying Guilt

COLUMBUS, Ga., June 11.—(AP)—The federal government jailed Major John R. Brooke, Jr., today on a charge that he murdered his wife but its spokesmen steadfastly withheld details of the case against the 200-pound army officer.

United States Commissioner N. A. Brown ordered the 44-year-old grandson of a major-general held without bond after the prisoner pleaded innocent and waived preliminary hearing. Brooke will be held in county jail pending action on his case by a federal grand jury expected to be summoned late this month.

Mrs. Brooke, comely, 42-year-old mother of three children, was found fatally beaten in the Brooke home at nearby Fort Benning last Wednesday.

Major Brooke, an instructor in the fort's infantry school, was afield on maneuvers when two daughters discovered their mother's body. He was recalled, placed in the post hospital where he was held until civil authorities claimed him today.

Brigadier-General Asa Singleton, Fort Benning commandant, announced Brooke's detention Thursday. Federal bureau of investigation agents were summoned.

None would say what motive the government would claim or disclose any of the circumstances of the death.

One investigator, who declined to be quoted, said it was thought the death weapon may have been a child's iron-

LIBRARIAN NAMED

Jacobs arrived here today to confer with officials of the library board. He would succeed Edmund L. McGivaren, who died last April 24.

New Orleans Concern Buys River Transportation Firm

The Commercial Transportation company, Inc., of Monroe, which for the past several years has maintained a freight service on the Ouachita river between Monroe and New Orleans, has sold all its equipment and good will, including barges, boats, warehouses and other equipment, to the River Terminals corporation of New Orleans, according to an announcement by M. S. Biedenharn, secretary-treasurer of the Commercial Transporation company. The monetary consideration involved in the transaction was not disclosed.

In acquiring the good will and equipment of the Commercial Transportation company the New Orleans concern now finds itself the strongest and best equipped company maintaining river transportation on the Ouachita river between New Orleans, Monroe and Camden, Ark., terminals, it was pointed out.

During its seven years of operation on the river the Commercial Transportation company built up a permanent and dependable river freight service for shippers of Monroe and vicinity and one which has contributed greatly to the prosperity and growth of the city.

Mr. Biedenharn, a pioneer and firm believer in the utilization of inland waterways and the Ouachita river in particular as a transportation medium, declared the Commercial Transportation company, in arriving at a decision to sell its equipment and good will to the River Terminals corporation of New Orleans, took the step after careful consideration showed that it would prove of great benefit to shippers and contribute to the steady development of river freight service on the Ouachita.

The River Terminals corporation announces it will maintain regular weekly schedules between Monroe and New Orleans and every effort will be made to maintain and improve the service between the two points at the highest peak of efficiency and service for shippers using

London, Paris And Brussels Feel Shock As Walls Crack

LONDON, June 11.—(AP)—An earthquake born in the North sea jolted five countries today, rumbling over a 400-mile front from England to the Rhineland.

There was scattered damage, surprise, alarm and even panic among the countryfolk in Belgium and northern France, who dropped to their knees in prayer as chimneys toppled, walls cracked, windows broke and furniture jumped.

Three capitals—London, Paris, and Brussels—felt the shocks, which some seismographs recorded as having a duration of ten minutes. London felt the first shock at 11:59 a.m. (4:59 a. m. central standard time), Brussels a severe tremor at 11:57.

Three persons were killed and about 20 injured in Belgium. In Brussels a frightened man leaped to his death from a balcony; in Ghent an out-of-control street car killed a pedestrian; a crumbling wall killed a bricklayer at Cruyshautem.

Two children were injured seriously at Hazebrouck, northern France, and in several continental towns there were injuries from falling bricks.

Damage was minor but extensive, apparently most serious in Belgium.

It was estimated the damage there might reach a million dollars. The frontal wall of the palace of justice at Ghent split and a wall of the Liege citadel barracks shifted four feet. Heavy factory motors were moved in some places.

Germany and the Netherlands felt the shocks along with England, France and Belgium.

The quake was described as the most severe in Belgium's history. Brussels boulevards were suddenly thronged with frightened crowds.

ENGINEER'S BODY IN SUBMERGED CAB

ST. LOUIS, June 11.—(AP)—The body of Engineer W. W. Malloy still was trapped tonight in the submerged cab of his locomotive, which overturned in flooded Jouchim creek early today on a washed-out section of Missouri Pacific track near Hematite, Mo.

Thirty-five passengers, marooned in the wrecked train by high water reaching almost to the car floors, were taken off after eight hours of anxious waiting. None was injured.

Malloy checked the speed of the St. Louis-Little Rock train when he came to the water-covered tracks, 33 miles south of here. The fact he was traveling slowly prevented a more serious accident.

The locomotive, plunging off the right-of-way, lurched over on its right side in the flooded creek bottom. The fireman, C. T. McRill, struggled free through a window on the left side of the cab. He was rescued after clinging to a tree for four hours.

The passenger coaches did not leave the tracks. Three of the nine baggage cars were derailed, two of them tilting partially into the water.

FIVE KILLED WHEN AIRPLANE CRASHES

WORLAND, Wyo., June 11.—(AP)—Five persons were killed when a private airplane piloted by William O. Bashaw, crashed into a field at the edge of Worland today.

The identified dead were:

William O. Bashaw, pilot.

Lloyd Paris, 28, of Worland.

The other two victims were not identified immediately.

The plane crashed shortly after it had taken off from the air field here.

PRESIDENT WOULD LET U. S. PAY ALL

Favors Making Federal Government Shoulder Flood Control Costs

WASHINGTON, June 11.—(AP)—Usually informed sources reported today President Roosevelt had approved proposals to place the cost of flood control reservoirs wholly on the federal government.

This would mean further changes in the omnibus flood control bill now before a conference committee for action on senate amendments rejected by the house.

The measure as drafted would reduct from 100 to 30 per cent existing required local contributions for lands, easements and rights of way needed for reservoirs.

Word that the president had acceded to complete abandonment of the principle of local payments for reservoirs contained in the 1936 omnibus flood control bill circulated after conferees had turned to the White House for counsel on the senate amendments.

SEN. NOE OPPOSES UTILITY MEASURE

Voices Opposition To Proposal To Permit Mortgaging Properties

State Senator James A. Noe issued a statement Saturday night expressing his opposition to proposed amendments to the constitution, now before the state legislature, which would permit municipalities to mortgage public utility properties without a vote of the people. The city commission-council at a special session last Friday adopted a resolution taking a similar position.

The statement follows:

"To the People of the City of Monroe:

"Two of the worst bills ever introduced into any legislature are now pending in the senate. They vitally affect the people of the city of Monroe, and the people of any city or town in this state which owns its own electric light, water and power plants or any other public utilities.

"As the law is now, the governing authorities of a municipality owning its own public utilities may not mortgage the same for any purpose whatever without being authorized to do so by a vote of the people. You know that about one year ago a proposition was made here in Monroe to mortgage the public utilities here, in order to borrow $1,500,000, and you know that the people of this city overwhelmingly voted against this proposal.

"Now, there has been introduced into the senate senate bills Nos. 219 and 220, one of which is a constitutional amendment proposing an amendment to the constitution of this state and the other is an enabling act so that the governing authorities of this city, or any city, can mortgage its public utilities without limit and further providing that the bonds issued may draw

Annual Cooking School Will Open In City On Wednesday

The News-Star—World's famous cooking school and home-makers exposition, which for the past seven years has been one of the most popular institutions of its kind in north Louisiana, will open Wednesday afternoon at Neville High school auditorium.

Mrs. Ida Chitwood, one of America's outstanding cooking school lecturers and authority on scientific cookery, will have charge of the sessions, which will continue each afternoon, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, and will culminate in a special night session Friday. The afternoon sessions of the school will begin at 2:15 o'clock and the Friday night gathering will be at 7:30.

This event promises to be the most outstanding event of its kind that has yet been sponsored by these newspapers. Mrs. Chitwood, who is originator, owner and operator of the famous Chitwood schools of cookery at Dallas, Tex., is known by reputation to many in Monroe and this section of the state, though this will be the first occasion she has conducted a school here. She is a woman of unusually attractive and forceful personality. She has her own technique in arousing interest amongst her cooking students, and her programs are full of human interest entertainment, in addition to the practical presentations of new and novel methods of cooking and advice on modern home-making.

At every session of the cooking school there will be valuable prizes awarded to those in attendance, and on Friday night the grand prizes will be given. These are of unusual importance and value, according to announcement made by the management of the school.

On the last night there will be a beautiful style show, and each session will be packed full of highly clever program features.

Many merchants and manufacturers are cooperating in making the cooking school and home-makers exposition this year one long to be remembered by those who attend.

DIFFERENTIALS INSERTED ALONG LINES DEMANDED BY SOUTHERNERS

Formal Report Will Be Drafted Today And Ready For House Monday

'BEDROCK' WAGE OF 25 CENTS PER HOUR FIXED

At End Of Seven Years Scale Of 40 Cents Will Go Into Effect

WASHINGTON, June 11.—(AP)—A thoroughly compromised wage-hour bill, including a provision for pay differentials within a given industry, received unanimous approval of a joint congressional committee today.

Chairman Thomas, Democrat, Utah, announced the conferees would draft a formal report on the bill at a meeting tomorrow, so that it could be taken up in the house Monday. Advocates of the measure predicted it would be approved there quickly and sent to the senate for final passage early in the week.

The threat of a filibuster against the measure by southern senators, who have been fighting for a geographical wage differential, appeared eliminated by the compromise draft. There remained, however, the possibility of opposition from a section of organized labor.

The committee capitulated to the demands of Senators Ellender, Democrat, Louisiana, and Pepper, Democrat, Florida, in writing the wage section of the bill.

It inserted a classification clause that went far toward meeting the southerners' objective of lower wage rates in the south than in the industrial north.

Under this section, boards which will be set up for each industry will be empowered to classify the units of that industry as to size and other factors and set a varying scale of minimum wages which each classification must pay.

In arriving at these minima the boards will not be permitted to fix the pay rate solely on the geographical basis, but must consider also transportation costs, prevailing wages,

PLAN TO UNVEIL PEACE MEMORIAL

Announcement Of Plans For Ceremony Made By Kiwanis District Governor

BATON ROUGE, La., June 11.—(AP)—Plans for unveiling and dedicating on July 15 the international peace memorial erected at Niagara Falls, Ontario, by the Louisiana-Mississippi district of Kiwanis International, were announced today by Dr. Leo LaSalle, dean of the engineering school of Louisiana State university and Kiwanis governor of the district.

The memorial commemorates more than one hundred years of peace between the United States and Canada. It is one of several memorials erected in recent years along the international boundary by Kiwanis districts in the two nations.

A conspicuous feature of the monument will be a column of native Louisiana rock from Evangeline parish, La. A bronze tablet will bear the inscription, "This unfortified boundary line between the United States and Canada should quicken remembrance of more than one hundred years friendship between these countries, a lesson of peace to all nations."

The memorial is to be erected in

EMERGENCY OFFICERS' PENSIONS APPROVED

WASHINGTON, June 11.—(AP)—The house passed and sent to the senate tonight legislation to authorize pensions of so-called emergency World war army officers on the same basis as those of regular army officers.

Foes of the measure, by Representative Edmiston, Democrat, West Virginia, opposed it on the ground it would set up pensions based on rank.

Chairman Rankin, Democrat, Mississippi, of the house veterans committee declared veterans of the Civil war had "spurned with contempt" a similar proposition.

Edmiston said the bill would restore about 1,800 officers to the retired list with pay. The veterans' administration estimated last November about 3,194 former officers would be affected.

NOE SEEKS DEBATE ON MUNICIPAL BILL

Senator Asks Earl Long To Argue Measure Before It Is Signed

Senator James A. Noe, former governor, announced Saturday that he had invited Lieutenant-Governor Earl K. Long to engage with him in a joint debate in Monroe on the question of whether or not Governor Richard W. Leche should veto the bill, recently adopted by the legislature, postponing for one year the city election in Monroe.

Senator Noe also wired Governor Leche advising him of the joint debate invitation to Lieutenant-Governor Long and asking the governor to attend the debate so that he would learn directly of the wishes of the people of Monroe, who, Senator Noe stated, are overwhelmingly against postponement of the election.

In the message to the governor, Senator Noe stated that ninety-five per cent of the Monroe citizens oppose postponement of election and since the bill is a local measure, the governor should be governed by their wishes.

Senator Noe also requested Governor Leche to defer signing the bill until after the proposed debate.

In his message to the lieutenant-governor, Senator Noe pointed out that Mr. Long had been largely instrumental in the passage of the bill to postpone Monroe's election and also stating that "fully ninety-five per cent of the people in Monroe are opposed to the bill."

He challenged Lieutenant-Governor Long to a joint debate or series of debates in Monroe on the question of whether the governor should veto the bill.

Senator Noe said he would take the affirmative side in the debate. He also advised that he had also asked the governor to defer signing the bill until after the debate.

BATON ROUGE, La., June 11.—(AP)—State Senator James A. Noe's invitation to Governor Richard W. Leche to attend a proposed public debate on a legislative-approved bill extending the Monroe election one year drew this comment from the governor:

"I consider postponement of the Monroe election entirely up to the legislature, which has already spoken. As for Jimmy's debate, I understand he did a lot of debating in West Monroe—across the river from his home—a month ago. The people answered him by beating his candidate for mayor two to one."

Lieutenant-Governor Long, presiding officer of the senate with whom Noe clashes frequently, was in Winnfield for the week-end when Noe issued the challenge, his Baton Rouge hotel reported.

Recently Noe announced his candidacy for governor in 1940. Long, brother of the late Huey Long, is expected to be the administration candidate.

Juvenile Court Plays Vital Role In Helping Youngsters

One of the most important and least publicized tribunals in the parish of Ouachita is the juvenile court. Its place in the life of the people is unique and its influence far-reaching and potent.

Most citizens are inclined to consider the juvenile court as a clearing house for bad boys and girls. While this is indeed one of its principal functions the court has a broader and more important scope to its work.

It may better be described as a clearing house for parents and their children where misunderstandings which cannot be composed within the family circle are submitted to the sympathetic and trained understanding of officials specially trained by experience to this type of work.

E. L. Wright, one of the outstanding probation officers of the state, is in charge of the routine work of the court in Ouachita parish and through his efforts the court has attained a pinnacle of efficiency unexcelled in Louisiana.

Mr. Wright, whose surname by a happy play of words fits the designation of his office like a glove for he must be literally speaking, "Mr. Right," has acted as probation officer of the Ouachita parish juvenile court for nearly 20 years. His quick perception of the problems of youth, his understanding and sympathy have won him the friendship of thousands of youths and their parents.

Impartial justice is meted out in the juvenile court. No problem presented before the tribunal is too small to merit the keen study of the probation officer who recognizes the fact that on the outcome of his decisions often rest the success or failure in life of some boy or girl.

"The functions of the juvenile court are primarily designed to check criminal tendencies in the youth of the parish and to improve home conditions in cases where it is evident that such improvement is required in order to prevent the incubation of future lawlessness and crime," Mr. Wright explained.

"The court is not governed by any set of rules," he continued. "To attempt to operate along a line of set procedure would be impossible as each case submitted to the court for adjudication presents its own new and peculiar problems.

"The juvenile court has as far-reaching an influence on the parents of children brought before the court as over the children themselves," Mr. Wright asserted. "Our records indicate innumerable instances where the timely intervention of the court not only has saved a boy or a girl from delinquency but has actually re-cemented the home ties which, due to the lack of understanding between parents and offspring, faced severance with resultant unhappiness to both."

The scope of the work accomplished in Ouachita parish by the juvenile court is exemplified in a report compiled by Mr. Wright covering the activities for the court during 1937 which showed a total of 387 cases adjudicated in the juvenile court here during that period. Of the total number of cases involving wrong doing that came up before the court in 1937, Mr. Wright declared that 203 or more than half were settled out of court. A summary of the report for the year follows:

Settled out of court for wrongdoing—White boys, 141; white girls, 23; negro boys, 36, negro girls, 3; settled out of court for neglect, white boys, 32; white girls, 50; negro boys, 4, negro girls, 7; settled in court for wrongdoing, white boys, 29; white girls, 12; negro boys, 2; negro girls, none; settled in court for neglect, white boys, 5; white girls, 13; negro boys and girls, none; parole requests, white boys, 5; white girls, 10; negro boys and girls, none; home placement requests, white boys, 3; white girls, 3; negro boys and girls, none; inquiry for other courts, white boys and girls, none; negro boys, 1; negro girls, none; miscellaneous cases, white boys, 5; white girls, 3; negro boys and girls, none.

Mr. Wright reported the following as the causes for which the 387 cases brought before the juvenile court here in 1937 were adjudicated: Intoxication, fighting and disturbing the peace, trespassing, running away, destruction of property, auto theft, larceny, incorrigible, mischievousness, breaking and entering, neglect, sex and drunkenness, begging and soliciting, shooting and damaging property, burglary, parole requests, vagrancy and running away, threatening with dangerous weapons, profanity, vulgarity in public, robbery, truancy, forgery, possession of stolen property, carnal knowledge, mental cases, shooting at person, injury less than mayhem, gambling, shooting with intent to steal.

The juvenile court has jurisdiction over all minors brought before it who are 17 years of age or under. It functions for both white and colored and its investigations are carried on with the utmost discretion. Youths brought before its bar are shielded as far as possible from the glare of public notoriety and the Monroe newspapers do not publish their names in the crime news.

"The general theory of the juvenile court in Ouachita parish and elsewhere is that, for obvious reasons, children should not be judged in ways and by means designed for their elders," Mr. Wright explained. "In other words, the delinquent child is not to be regarded as a criminal, but merely as an unfortunate needing the special care and supervision of the state.

"The most advanced view of the matter is that such children, being themselves the victims of unfavorable environment over which they have no control, must be dealt with sympathetically and educationally," Mr. Wright continued. "From this standpoint, the juvenile court may well be considered a sociological and educational agency rather than a legal institution."

Mr. Wright explained that methods and procedure differ in one juvenile court and another, this being so due to the fact that each court bases its course of action upon local conditions. In general the scope of action for juvenile courts has broadened steadily and today includes every phase of juvenile delinquency, parental neglect, and maltreatment of children, every conceivable offense, in short, committed by or against children.

"Juvenile courts in various parts of the country differ in their scope of action and procedure depends very largely on the particular judge in charge, the nature of the community concerned, and the laws under which proceedings are conducted at any given place," Mr. Wright said. "The general attitude of juvenile courts, an attitude which has been assumed by the juvenile court of Ouachita parish, being corrective rather than punitive, hearings are simple and informal as well as private. No juries are called and no charges or criminal accusations can be made against juveniles, no matter what the offense may be, since a child cannot be considered a criminal under juvenile court laws," he said.

Children who are brought before the juvenile court in Ouachita parish and who are found delinquent are subjected to the following courses at the discretion of the judge:

The child may be returned to his home on probation, that is, in charge of a probation officer; placed out in some foster home until ready to return to his own; committed to the care of a children's society, or sent to the Louisiana Training institute.

"The general results of the establishment of juvenile courts in this country have been manifold and far-reaching," Mr. Wright declared. "The juvenile courts have accomplished at least four distinct and important results. They have separated the child offender from the adult criminal, thereby rescuing him from crime-breeding association and criminal court procedure; made the former victims of retributive justice objects of sincere solicitude to an official child-welfare agency; helped to lead parents to a better realization of their responsibilities for the child's waywardness, and obviated the necessity of jailing the juvenile offender, thus making the life-long sting of 'convict children' forever impossible."

NOE SEEKS DEBATE ON MUNICIPAL BILL

Senator Asks Earl Long To Argue Measure Before It Is Signed

Senator James A. Noe, former governor, announced Saturday that he had invited Lieutenant-Governor Earl K. Long to engage with him in a joint debate in Monroe on the question of whether or not Governor Richard W. Leche should veto the bill, recently adopted by the legislature, postponing for one year the city election in Monroe.

Senator Noe also wired Governor Leche advising him of the joint debate invitation to Lieutenant-Governor Long and asking the governor to attend the debate so that he would learn directly of the wishes of the people of Monroe, who, Senator Noe stated, are overwhelmingly against postponement of the election.

In the message to the governor, Senator Noe stated that ninety-five per cent of the Monroe citizens oppose postponement of election and since the bill is a local measure, the governor should be governed by their wishes.

Senator Noe also requested Governor Leche to defer signing the bill until after the proposed debate.

In his message to the lieutenant-governor, Senator Noe pointed out that Mr. Long had been largely instrumental in the passage of the bill to postpone Monroe's election and also stating that "fully ninety-five per cent of the people in Monroe are opposed to the bill."

He challenged Lieutenant-Governor Long to a joint debate or series of debates in Monroe on the question of whether the governor should veto the bill.

Senator Noe said he would take the affirmative side in the debate. He also advised that he had also asked the governor to defer signing the bill until after the debate.

BATON ROUGE, La., June 11.—(AP)—State Senator James A. Noe's invitation to Governor Richard W. Leche to attend a proposed public debate on a legislative-approved bill extending the Monroe election one year drew this comment from the governor:

"I consider postponement of the Monroe election entirely up to the legislature, which has already spoken. As for Jimmy's debate, I understand he did a lot of debating in West Monroe—across the river from his home—a month ago. The people answered him by beating his candidate for mayor two to one."

Lieutenant-Governor Long, presiding officer of the senate with whom Noe clashes frequently, was in Winnfield for the week-end when Noe issued the challenge, his Baton Rouge hotel reported.

Recently Noe announced his candidacy for governor in 1940. Long, brother of the late Huey Long, is expected to be the administration candidate.

CAMP FIRE WILL CONDUCT OUTING

Annual Event At Ki-Ro-Li Announced For Week Of July 24

Plans are being formulated for the holding of the annual Camp Fire outing at Camp Ki-Ro-Li on the week beginning July 24, according to Mrs. Charles M. Mitchell, Camp Fire executive. Plans are under way to make the camping period even more attractive than ever this season. More than 60 girls will be accommodated.

The camp will be in general charge of Mrs. Mitchell, Mrs. J. G. Cobb and Mrs. F. B. Neely, Camp Fire executive, and there will be instructors in handicraft, art, nature study and many outdoor subjects.

The new pool will be ready at that time, it is assured, and a Red Cross life saver will be stationed there to avert any possible trouble and girls unable to swim will be given the necessary instruction.

In a few days, a folder will be prepared which will give complete data concerning the encampment, its cost, the equipment that each girl should bring along, the courses to be given and the staff of instructors who will be in charge of the various studies.

Bonner, driving while drunk, sentenced to pay a fine of $100 or to serve 90 days on the prison farm; Clyde Caston, traffic violation, fined $25 and costs; Burrell Burch, operating a disorderly house, fined $15; Clarence Phillips, using another's automobile without permission, 90 days on the prison farm.

Juvenile Court Plays Vital Role In Helping Youngsters

One of the most important and least publicized tribunals in the parish of Ouachita is the juvenile court. Its place in the life of the people is unique and its influence far-reaching and potent.

Most citizens are inclined to consider the juvenile court as a clearing house for bad boys and girls. While this is indeed one of its principal functions the court has a broader and more important scope to its work.

It may better be described as a clearing house for parents and their children where misunderstandings which cannot be composed within the family circle are submitted to the sympathetic and trained understanding of officials specially trained by experience to this type of work.

E. L. Wright, one of the outstanding probation officers of the state, is in charge of the routine work of the court in Ouachita parish and through his efforts the court has attained a pinnacle of efficiency unexcelled in Louisiana.

Mr. Wright, whose surname by a happy play of words fits the designation of his office like a glove for he must be literally speaking, "Mr. Right," has acted as probation officer of the Ouachita parish juvenile court for nearly 20 years. His quick perception of the problems of youth, his understanding and sympathy have won him the friendship of thousands of youths and their parents.

Impartial justice is meted out in the juvenile court. No problem presented before the tribunal is too small to merit the keen study of the probation officer who recognizes the fact that on the outcome of his decisions often rest the success or failure in life of some boy or girl.

"The functions of the juvenile court are primarily designed to check criminal tendencies in the youth of the parish and to improve home conditions in cases where it is evident that such improvement is required in order to prevent the incubation of future lawlessness and crime," Mr. Wright explained.

"The court is not governed by any set of rules," he continued. "To attempt to operate along a line of set procedure would be impossible as each case submitted to the court for adjudication presents its own new and peculiar problems.

"The juvenile court has as far-reaching an influence on the parents of children brought before the court as over the children themselves," Mr. Wright asserted. "Our records indicate innumerable instances where the timely intervention of the court not only has saved a boy or a girl from delinquency but has actually re-cemented the home ties which, due to the lack of understanding between parents and offspring, faced severance with resultant unhappiness to both."

The scope of the work accomplished in Ouachita parish by the juvenile court is exemplified in a report compiled by Mr. Wright covering the activities for the court during 1937 which showed a total of 387 cases adjudicated in the juvenile court here during that period. Of the total number of cases involving wrong doing that came up before the court in 1937, Mr. Wright declared that 203 or more than half were settled out of court. A summary of the report for the year follows:

Settled out of court for wrongdoing—White boys, 141; white girls, 23; negro boys, 36, negro girls, 3; settled out of court for neglect, white boys, 32; white girls, 50; negro boys, 4; negro girls, 7; settled in court for wrongdoing, white boys, 29; white girls, 12; negro boys, 2; negro girls, none; settled in court for neglect, white boys, 5; white girls, 13; negro boys and girls, none; parole requests, white boys, 5; white girls, 10; negro boys and girls, none; home placement requests, white boys, 3; white girls, 3; negro boys and girls, none; inquiry for other courts, white boys and girls, none; negro boys, 1; negro girls, none; miscellaneous cases, white boys, 5; white girls, 3; negro boys and girls, none.

Mr. Wright reported the following as the causes for which the 387 cases brought before the juvenile court here in 1937 were adjudicated: Intoxication, fighting and disturbing the peace, trespassing, running away, destruction of property, auto theft, larceny, incorrigible, mischievousness, breaking and entering, neglect, sex and drunkenness, begging and soliciting, shooting and damaging property, burglary, parole requests, vagrancy and running away, threatening with dangerous weapons, profanity, vulgarity in public, robbery, truancy, forgery, possession of stolen property, carnal knowledge, mental cases, shooting at person, injury less than mayhem, gambling, shooting with intent to steal.

The juvenile court has jurisdiction over all minors brought before it who are 17 years of age or under. It functions for both white and colored and its investigations are carried on with the utmost discretion. Youths brought before its bar are shielded as far as possible from the glare of public notoriety and the Monroe newspapers do not publish their names in the crime news.

"The general theory of the juvenile court in Ouachita parish and elsewhere is that, for obvious reasons, children should not be judged in ways and by means designed for their elders," Mr. Wright explained. "In other words, the delinquent child is not to be regarded as a criminal, but merely as an unfortunate needing the special care and supervision of the state.

"The most advanced view of the matter is that such children, being themselves the victims of unfavorable environment over which they have no control, must be dealt with sympathetically and educationally," Mr. Wright continued. "From this standpoint, the juvenile court may well be considered a sociological and educational agency rather than a legal institution."

Mr. Wright explained that methods and procedure differ in one juvenile court and another, this being so due to the fact that each court bases its course of action upon local conditions. In general the scope of action for juvenile courts has broadened steadily and today includes every phase of juvenile delinquency, parental neglect, and maltreatment of children; every conceivable offense, in short, committed by or against children.

"Juvenile courts in various parts of the country differ in their scope of action and procedure depends very largely on the particular judge in charge, the nature of the community concerned, and the laws under which proceedings are conducted at any given place," Mr. Wright said. "The general attitude of juvenile courts, an attitude which has been assumed by the juvenile court of Ouachita parish, being corrective rather than punitive, hearings are simple and informal as well as private. No juries are called and no charges or criminal accusations can be made against juveniles, no matter what the offense may be, since a child cannot be considered a criminal under juvenile court laws," he said.

Children who are brought before the juvenile court in Ouachita parish and who are found delinquent are subjected to the following courses at the discretion of the judge:

The child may be returned to his home on probation, that is, in charge of a probation officer; placed out in some foster home until ready to return to his own; committed to the care of a children's society, or sent to the Louisiana Training institute.

"The general results of the establishment of juvenile courts in this country have been manifold and far-reaching," Mr. Wright declared. "The juvenile courts have accomplished at least four distinct and important results. They have separated the child offender from the adult criminal, thereby rescuing him from crime-breeding association and criminal court procedure; made the former victims of retributive justice objects of sincere solicitude to an official child-welfare agency; helped to lead parents to a better realization of their responsibilities for the child's waywardness, and obviated the necessity of jailing the juvenile offender, thus making the life-long sting of 'convict children' forever impossible."

Ghandi's Confession

A man who for fifty years has notably been living a life of rigid self-discipline and self-sacrifice, a man who has gained a wide reputation for his fearless devotion to his highest convictions, a man who has impressed the world as having complete control of himself, as having unfailingly directed his thoughts and actions into straight and narrow paths, has just made this startling confession:

"For the first time in fifty years I find myself in the slough of despons. All about me is darkness; I am praying for light. . . . I have detected in me a flaw which is unworthy of a votary of truth."

Yes, Mahatma Ghandi, famous Indian ascetic, has recently declared himself in the foregoing words.

Ghandi's experiences should bring hope and courage to those of us inclined to lose heart because we feel ourselves inadequate to master the spiritual obstacles which confront us, believing we haven't got what it takes. If Ghandi, who has devoted himself inflexibly to his conception of the better life can feel himself unfit after fifty years of concentrated, conscientious effort, the rest of us who haven't a tithe of the strength of character possesed by Ghandi, should feel encouraged to keep on keeping on. We are just this kind of being, and there is no use getting fussed up about it. Fight the good fight. Again, fight the good fight. Always and forever fight the good fight. That is all we can do. That is all we are expected to do. Thanks, Mahatma Ghandi, for letting us look into your heart.

And if the young people struggling with the temptations of this world could realize that their elders have exactly the same temptations, it would help them immeasurably. That sanctimonious pose of spiritual superiority which some grown folks seem to think necessary to adopt to impress the youngsters, does a lot more harm than good. A sympathetic arm around the shoulders with, "Son—or daughter—I know exactly how you feel. I have not only been all through that but I am still going through it—and probably shall be all my life," would put an end to the self-serving argument with which youngsters often amuse themselves, "Dad—or mother—can't understand how I feel. He—or she—has never been through anything like this!" Well, if he or she hasn't, it's because he or she is not human.

'PRETTY POLLY!'

New York state has banned the importation, sale or breeding of parrots because sometimes people get "psittacosis," or "parrot fever," and it's liable to kill them. Still, to bid farewell to Poor Poll is hard. In Kansas a harp in the parlor used to be a sign of affluence and culture; in the east the elegant home had its rubber plant, or orange tree, its pet pug-dog with spiked collar and its parrot.

Sometimes an uncle who had gone to sea brought home a parrot from the Celebes or Burma; sometimes the parrot came from the screaming confusion of a bird shop. Whatever the source, Poll took her place in the home. The family's standard of living was reflected in the appointments of her cage. What noble, burnished palaces those were, their circular battlements often adorned with a bow of pink ribbon, their Byzantine domes bright in the morning sun. Through the golden mesh was visible Poll herself, with the brilliance of the tropics on breast and wing. There she sat —monogamous and gregarious, a piece of apple in her minacious claw; or, perched on the top of the rocker, casting a cold glance at grandpa and greeting him with a mimetic gurgle.

Poll's vocabularic and tonal range was not great, it is true, but she was a great talker. Let it be said of her that she didn't know what she was saying, that there was neither affection in her soft vowel sounds nor hatred in the consonants of her curses. Would that all of us, including our statesmen, could speak with so little meaning! Some of us, in fact, do.

Poor Poll! Does no one want a cracker?

ASSET OR LIABILITY?

A judge in North Adams, Mass., has ordered a young WPA worker "either to sell or give away" his automobile and the decree is one which will meet with the approval of all thoughtful citizens who look the facts straight in the face, even though they may hold to the notion that an automobile is one of the necessities of life.

The young man's wife testified that he spent most of his $12 weekly earnings on his automobile, a statement which will be accepted without difficulty by any motorist engaged in a desperate struggle to sustain the spark of life in an ancient vehicle whose days of usefulness have ended. When the tires have been half soled and heeled or replaced, the valves ground, the brakes lined, the lights adjusted, the licenses bought, to say nothing of oil and gas, the family chariot proves to be a heavy investment, leaving little for rent, a hat for the wife and shoes for the children.

The support of an automobile is no slight responsibility. It is doubtful if this is an obligation to be assumed by even the most paternal of governments.

In this free land, nobody is accused of espionage. Nobody is even suspected unless he knows how to pronounce it.

WASHINGTON DAYBOOK

By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON—Kenneth Romney, house sergeant-at-arms, a Montanan by birth, thinks Texas has the ablest delegation of any state. He has been 25 years on the Hill and has this to say about some of the others:

Ablest Democrats: Speaker Bankhead of Alabama; Floor Leader Rayburn of Texas; O'Connor of New York, chairman of the powerful rules committee; Warren of North Carolina; Cooper of Tennessee, on the ways and means (taxation) committee; Jones of Texas, chairman of the agricultural committee.

Ablest Republican: Wadsworth of New York. (Used to be a senator.)

Best lawyer in the house: Hatton Sumners of Texas. (He's chairman of the judiciary committee.)

Most colorful Representative: Maury Maverick of Texas.

Best orator: Speaker Bankhead.

Outstanding humorist: "There isn't any."

Best speaker in 25 years: Jack Garner of Texas.

Romney didn't name "most useless delegation" or "most hopeless orator." He's a far better politician than the senate employe who a few years ago wrote a piece for a magazine. Most of what that fellow said didn't matter but the members called him out on the floor to learn what he meant by one sentence saying something to the effect that "Very few senators have taken bribes." He tried to explain that he referred to the whole history of the senate—but he lost his job anyway.

Panama Says 'Pay'

These Latin-American republics do seem to be having a good time.

The latest is Panama. Ever since Theodore Roosevelt "bought" the Panama canal right-of-way this country has been paying the little republic $250,000 a year compensation, a sort of rent. After gold devaluation in 1933, however, Panama refused to accept pay in devalued dollars. It has refused payment ever since.

Recently a new treaty was negotiated and submitted to the senate. It provided for increased payment as well as other changes in the treaty. But the senate has not yet ratified it so Panama still gets no money.

Meantime, it had to keep on paying interest on bonds, many of which were held privately in the United States.

Now a virtual ultimatum (strictly unofficial) has been served on the United States saying in effect that until the United States resumes payment of its Canal Zone rent Panama will pay no interest on certain of its bonds held in the United States. It was simply "you pay, then we pay."

COST OF BEING STUPID

By BRUCE CATTON

Although there is little enough on the horizon these days to create optimism, it might be a sound idea to inquire whether we are really as badly off as our home-grown Jeremiahs seem to believe.

You can neither turn on your radio nor pick up your magazine or newspaper nowadays without hearing someone complain that we are in dire danger. We are about to lose all of our liberties, or we are slipping over the edge of the precipice into war, or our economic system is indulging in the last labored breathing that precedes final extinction; and the implication is that we somehow are pretty stupid and unworthy people to let ourselves get into such a mess. Now it is perfectly true that we are in a bad mess, and there is no use in pretending otherwise. But the thing isn't altogether our fault, and we might be quicker about the business of getting out of this mess if we could understand just where the trouble lies.

The principal trouble seems to be the fact that we have moved into a world that makes more demands on its human inhabitants than it ever did before.

It is a densely populated world which has added to the ordinary problems of overcrowdng a brand-new set of problems arising out of speedy communications and an unimaginably complex and intricate set of economic and political relationships.

It is a world, in other words, in which the consequences of men's acts run farther and more swiftly than they ever did before. The rise of a dictator, the fall of a currency, the closing of an industry, the failure of a crop—all of these things send their effects winging around the world with unimaginable speed, and no man can get far enough away to escape the ripples they create.

Which simply means that it costs more to make a mistake now than it used to. Any error in our handling of human relations exacts of us a penality such as our grandfathers would not have dreamed of.

In plain English, we live in the sort of world now which demands that we be smarter people than we used to be. The price of survival is higher; the tax on stupidity and carelessness has gone up through the roof.

All of which may not be especially encouraging—except that it does indicate that our troubles do not arise because we are more stupid or more perverse than our forefathers were. To put it more simply, we have not deteriorated, and our troubles are not a by-product of some mass disintegration.

The main thing is to realize that we need to be more alert, less emotional, more intelligent—and try to guide ourselves accordingly.

A BOOK REVIEW

PIONEER'S DIARY YIELDS MELODRAMA

Strung across the west from Leavenworth to Boise, the fur traders cut an epic trail from 1820 to the Civil war, fighting Indians, building forts, piling up a fortune in skins, pushing back a whole frontier.

The record is dim now, but 100 years after these buckskinned pioneers guided their boats up the muddy Missouri from St. Louis another chapter has been uncovered in the dusty files of the United States war department to shed new light on the fur trade of the west.

Annie Heloise Abel reconstructs the story in an extremely rare book, "Chardon's Journal at Fort Clark, 1834-1839." Here is the almost incredible day-by-day diary of a French trader who defied warring Mandans, Sioux, Gros Ventres, and the ravages of the smallpox epidemic of 1837 to corral the rich fur business of the upper Missouri.

Fort Clark, one of a chain of fur trading posts along the Missouri river owned by the American Fur company, was located on the west bank of that stream about 60 miles above the present site of Bismarck, N. D. Here Francis A. Chardon stepped from the steamboat Assinniboine, June 18, 1834. Five days after his arrival his dairy drips with Mandan blood and echoes the pitiless privation of the post. Chardon was to know no peace but death thereafter.

Edited with a wealth of notes and appendices, the "Journal" proves one of the most vital source volumes of this particular era of American pioneer history ever uncovered. Certainly there has been nothing more graphic in a long time. The dank scent of Chardon's wet beaver skins will stay with you long after you have turned the last page.—P. G. F.

Human Side Of The News

By EDWIN C. HILL

(Copyright, 1938, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

IN THE ANCIENT TAROT of the Bohemians, fount of much of modern occultism, knitting symbolized the working of inexorable fate. If you had a dream in which someone was knitting, destiny had tapped you for a journey, a wedding, a change of occupation—not necessarily good or evil, but ruthlessly decreed.

So it has been in the mystic lore of many other times and peoples. The click of the knitting needles of the old beldames inched French noblemen closer to the guillotine, which historic incident was in close accord with the dramatic unities of all folk lore. The classic fates were all women. But only on Olympus did they hold the power of life and death, or to make or mar the lives of humankind. On earth, men attended to such matters.

But now, possibly for the first time in history, women actually do what previously they only symbolized. They sit on juries, and immediately there is raised in a White Plains, N. Y. courtroom the question of whether they may knit. Judge James W. Bailey says they may, and Mrs. Frank H. Vreeland, a motherly housewife, makes a doily as she hears the evidence in a murder case.

There's a bit of mordant, fantastic humor in that, as there is apt to be in even the grimmest of human dramas. I remember seeing Judd Gray in the death house at Sing Sing pulling up his trousers to preserve the crease, as he sat down in the electric chair. The judge concluded that knitting would not divert Mrs. Vreeland's mind from the evidence, which was no doubt true. But I have an idea that if I ever had to be tried for my life, innocent or guilty, I shouldn't like to face a jury of knitting women.

There is in all truth an esoteric sisterhood of women, in which man may not obtrude, and one senses this clearly when they are knitting, tatting, crocheting or talking about hats. They are supremely assured, so utterly aloof and detached from mere masculinity. The juror is at liberty to challenge the district attorney, but imagine the district attorney daring to object to the court because Mrs. Dubinsky had purled one and dropped only two, when it should have been three. He would be put in his place.

At any rate in the transition from symbols and abstractions to the full status of human beings, women are still on Olympus—clicking swift needles of destiny. But could they doom a knitting lady defendant who showed them a new stitch?

UNDER A NEW DECREE, boys and girls attending the New York Food Trades High school will have to bathe every morning before classes, in the school showers. It would be hard to find any objection to that, but, reckoning a growing list of social compulsions, here's one more instance in which the community or the states takes over a bit of what should be family business.

We have made somewhat of a fetich of cleanliness in America. We have had more than 100 years of free education, and we have provided the facilities for cleanliness to a degree unmatched in any nation at any time. Why should civic power be necessary to make children of high school grades take baths? Is the continual encroachment of the state on private lives made inevitable by our collective inertia and general all-around dumbness and laziness—mental and physical?

Thomas Jefferson feared that would happen. He spent 20 years building the University of Virginia, viewing the work with a spy glass from the parapet of Monticello, five miles away. Many times he said and wrote, in effect:

"The constitution and the laws and even the government we have set up are less important than our eventual success in public education. Governments are subordinate to the self-discipline and enlightenment of the citizens, and to the degree that we attain such inner freedom, government will become less necessary. The best government is that which governs least."

GOVERNMENT ALSO would have us grow in appreciation of the fine arts. We now have the Pepper-Coffee bill, known as the Fine Arts act, which would establish a permanent department of the arts. Art has flourished under great patrons, like the de Medicis, and artists have been nourished by state funds, but any historic view is apt to reveal the mill-run citizen as either indifferent, or with quaint ideas of his own, no matter how long or how intense his exposure to the art stimulus.

Immigrants to America from countries with magnificent art traditions, and with the noblest examples of art everywhere in view, build dreadful wattle-and-dab houses, with distressingly ugly interiors, and, as they get more money and start branching out, they revel in the lowest depths of plaster bric-a-brac and a general stew of ugliness and irrelevance in furnishing and decoration.

One might say that's all the more reason why we should have a department of fine arts. I don't think so. I think it's one more instance in which we can't lift ourselves by our governmental boot-straps. Some day we'll grow up culturally, but we won't heave ourselves up by a law.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

BY ALICIA HART
(NEA Service Staff Writer)

Fairly indelible rouge and lipstick, plenty of suntan lotion, some really good sungoggles, a jar of rich night cream and a bottle of hand lotion are most important among the important items without which no beauty-minded girl leaves for a vacation in a summer camp.

Nowadays, camp may mean anything from a little shack somewhere near a main dining room and hall to a deluxe suite in a rustic lodge. But whatever it may or may not mean in the way of accommodations, it does mean without a doubt a full schedule (hence the necessity for makeup that will stay on, and lots of sunshine (wonderful, of course, but likely to make the skin on face and hands pretty dry).

If you have decided that you are going to acquire a dark, rich coat of suntan, take along some fairly dark face powder as well as your regular supply. Also, before you dash out to get brownish or orange-toned rouge and lipstick, look at some of the new richly dark red shades and at the flower colors. These are considered smarter this season.

Fortunately, the decision as to whether to get suntanned a little or a lot or not at all rests with you and nobody else. If you look your best when your skin is dark, by all means go ahead and get some tan. If not, just stay white. In any event, however, use night cream and hand lotion faithfully.

Take advantage of all the sports the camp offers, of course, but don't over-do and come back practically exhausted. It's a mistake for the girl who hasn't had any exercise all winter to try to swim a mile the first day at camp. And it's unwise for her to try to be exceptionally active all day, then expect to dance all night. She ought to sleep nine hours out of every 24, whether she gets to bed at 10 or 2.

P. S.—Unless your legs are especially nice, how about wearing slacks instead of shorts around the camp?

Because it disappeared so suddenly, the Carolina rail bird once was thought to turn into a frog when winter came.

YOUR HEALTH

By Dr. Morris Fishbein
(Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine)

Among the peculiar conditions which affect human beings, one of the most extraordinary is that commonly called spider fingers, and known to the doctors as arachnodactylia (which means the same thing).

Although such conditions may have existed for many years, they did not have scientific recognition until some doctor realized their nature and described them in the scientific medical literature. Thus in 1896 for the first time this condition was recognized as one in which the fingers and toes are abnormally long and gracile. The amount of fat under the skin is less than usual. The muscles are underdeveloped and the ligaments, which move the bones and muscles, are relaxed.

In addition there as associated in at least half of the cases disturbances of the pupil of the eye, of the lens of the eye, prominent ears, a high arched palate, and a tendency toward lack of development.

In the past 40 years several hundreds of cases of this type have been described. The condition is most commonly seen in children and, of course, can be recognized almost at a glance.

Usually the arms and legs are long in proportion to the height of the patient. The hands and feet are also abnormally long and narrow. There are, moreover, disturbances of the feet such as flat feet, hammer toes, and club feet, because of the changes in the ligaments and in the joints.

While these patients are not abnormally weak, in many instances there are some who have from the time of birth abnormalities of the heart which tend toward weakness, so that they become blue and short of breath whenever they make an effort.

Today it is recognized that this condition is hereditary. It does not occur particularly in any one race of people, although the earliest reports have come from French and German physicians. If the condition exists in the family it may be transferred through either the mother or the father.

The exact cause of this condition, beyond heredity, is not known. Obviously the condition is associated with some error in development in the period before the child is born.

Because of the structural changes in the bodies of these patients, they are particularly susceptible to infections of the lungs and diseases of the breathing apparatus, so that they must, therefore, be guarded particularly against pneumonia. In such people it has far more frequently than usual a fatal result.

MIND YOUR MANNERS

Test your knowledge of correct social usage by answering the following questions, then checking against the authoritative answers below:

1. Should you ever ask anyone but someone you know well, to "fill in" at a dinner?
2. Where are the napkins placed when a table is set for a formal dinner?
3. How many salt cellars and pepper pots should be used on a dinner table?
4. When are olives and celery passed?
5. Is it correct to serve sherry as well as cocktails at a cocktail party?

What would you do if—

A servant does something wrong when there are guests—

(a) Reprimand her before the guests, so that they will know you realize what has happened?

(b) Wait until after the guests have gone to speak to her about the matter?

(c) Ask your guests to excuse you—and follow her to the kitchen to talk to her?

Answers

1. No.
2. On the service plate.
3. A pair at every other place.
4. During the soup course.
5. Yes.

Best "what would you do" solution—(b).

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

By Rodney Dutcher

WASHINGTON—Numerous guests at the Soviet embassy the other night wished they had been toting candid cameras.

There, in white ties and long coattails, were Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes of the supreme court and Justice Hugo L. Black, engaged in earnest—and cordial—conversation. Between them, listening in, was Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana, who led the successful fight against the Roosevelt supreme court plan last year.

One man who could have used a camera to good advantage had he been there was Congressman Maury Maverick of Texas, whose opponent in this year's Democratic primary already is campaigning against him on the issue that Maverick has been a guest at the Russian embassy. To disqualify from public office men guilty of that offense would depopulate Washington of nearly all its big shots, Republicans and Democrats alike.

Russians Rabid Senator Fans

Although Mr. Roosevelt is having trouble finding someone who wants the American ambassadorship at Moscow, there's no question that Ambassador and Mme. Troyanovsky are enjoying themselves in Washington.

One day you see the Troyanovskys at a nearby race track and a day or two later you see them at an American league baseball game. And a few evenings later you spot them coming out of a downtown movie house, then strolling slowly down F street and gazing into each shop window.

A visitor to Troyanovsky's office recently heard the ambassador talking on the telephone.

"Yes, yes!" the envoy from the U. S. S. R. was exclaiming with some glee, "we won in the last inning!"

He was talking about the Washington baseball team.

Mrs. Rogers And The Japanese

Edith Nourse Rogers, congresswoman, appeared conspicuously in a newsreel recently shown here. Entering the theater to see herself in action, she found she had come a few minutes too late. A full-length feature picture starring Ginger Rogers, not Edith, flashed on the screen. Uninterested, Mrs. Rogers departed.

Seeking to stem the flow of Japanese goods into this country, Mrs. Rogers has collected—and indignantly displays—some 20 or more souvenir articles sold in Washington stores, metallic reproductions of the Capitol, White House, Lincoln memorial, Washington monument and so on—all marked "Made in Japan."

Mrs. Rogers tells how an American manufacturer sold cheaply some glasses which were inferior because air bubbles had accidentally appeared in them. Japanese, she says, reproduced the glasses with the bubbles faithfully copied—at a still lower price.

So far, it appears, Mrs. Rogers hasn't heard that the Japanese lanterns assembled for a big White House party recently were also "Made in Japan."

STAMP NEWS

By I. S. Klein

ONE hundred and fifty years after Tadeusz Kosciuszko arrived in America and entered the army of the United States as a volunteer, his native country, Poland, honors the anniversary of the U. S. Constitution with a special stamp.

Kosciuszko brilliantly distinguished himself, especially at New York and Yorktown, and Washington promoted him to the rank of a colonel of the artillery and made him an adjutant. Kosciuszko's humanity and charm, moreover, made him one of the most popular of the American officers. After the war, in 1783, he was rewarded for his services and his devotion to the cause of American independence with the thanks of Congress, the privilege of American citizenship, a considerable annual pension, and the rank of brigadier-general.

Appearing on the Polish stamp below with Kosciuszko and George Washington is a third leading figure of the revolution, Thomas Paine, whose pamphlet, "Common Sense," and other writings in 1776 "worked a powerful change in the minds of many men," in Washington's own words. It was Paine who penned the famous line, "These are the times that try men's souls." It became the battle cry of the Revolution.

Ghandi's Confession

A man who for fifty years has notably been living a life of rigid self-discipline and self-sacrifice, a man who has gained a wide reputation for his fearless devotion to his highest convictions, a man who has impressed the world as having complete control of himself, as having unfailingly directed his thoughts and actions into straight and narrow paths, has just made this startling confession:

"For the first time in fifty years I find myself in the slough of despons. All about me is darkness; I am praying for light. . . . I have detected in me a flaw which is unworthy of a votary of truth."

Yes, Mahatma Ghandi, famous Indian ascetic, has recently declared himself in the foregoing words.

Ghandi's experiences should bring hope and courage to those of us inclined to lose heart because we feel ourselves inadequate to master the spiritual obstacles which confront us, believing we haven't got what it takes. If Ghandi, who has devoted himself inflexibly to his conception of the better life can feel himself unfit after fifty years of concentrated, conscientious effort, the rest of us who haven't a tithe of the strength of character possesed by Ghandi, should feel encouraged to keep on keeping on. We are just this kind of being, and there is no use getting fussed up about it. Fight the good fight. Again, fight the good fight. Always and forever fight the good fight. That is all we can do. That is all we are expected to do. Thanks, Mahatma Ghandi, for letting us look into your heart.

And if the young people struggling with the temptations of this world could realize that their elders have exactly the same temptations, it would help them immeasurably. That sanctimonious pose of spiritual superiority which some grown folks seem to think necessary to adopt to impress the youngsters, does a lot more harm than good. A sympathetic arm around the shoulders with, "Son—or daughter—I know exactly how you feel. I have not only been all through that but I am still going through it—and probably shall be all my life," would put an end to the self-serving argument with which youngsters often amuse themselves, "Dad—or mother—can't understand how I feel. He—or she—has never been through anything like this!" Well, if he or she hasn't, it's because he or she is not human.

'PRETTY POLLY!'

New York state has banned the importation, sale or breeding of parrots because sometimes people get "psittacosis," or "parrot fever," and it's liable to kill them. Still, to bid farewell to Poor Poll is hard. In Kansas a harp in the parlor used to be a sign of affluence and culture; in the east the elegant home had its rubber plant, or orange tree, its pet pug-dog with spiked collar and its parrot.

Sometimes an uncle who had gone to sea brought home a parrot from the Celebes or Burma; sometimes the parrot came from the screaming confusion of a bird shop. Whatever the source, Poll took her place in the home. The family's standard of living was reflected in the appointments of her cage. What noble, burnished palaces those were, their circular battlements often adorned with a bow of pink ribbon, their Byzantine domes bright in the morning sun. Through the golden mesh was visible Poll herself, with the brilliance of the tropics on breast and wing. There she sat—monogamous and gregarious, a piece of apple in her minacious claw; or, perched on the top of the rocker, casting a cold glance at grandpa and greeting him with a mimetic gurgle.

Poll's vocabularic and tonal range was not great, it is true, but she was a great talker. Let it be said of her that she didn't know what she was saying, that there was neither affection in her soft vowel sounds nor hatred in the consonants of her curses. Would that all of us, including our statesmen, could speak with so little meaning! Some of us, in fact, do.

Poor Poll! Does no one want a cracker?

ASSET OR LIABILITY?

A judge in North Adams, Mass., has ordered a young WPA worker "either to sell or give away" his automobile and the decree is one which will meet with the approval of all thoughtful citizens who look the facts straight in the face, even though they may hold to the notion that an automobile is one of the necessities of life.

The young man's wife testified that he spent most of his $12 weekly earnings on his automobile, a statement which will be accepted without difficulty by any motorist engaged in a desperate struggle to sustain the spark of life in an ancient vehicle whose days of usefulness have ended. When the tires have been half soled and heeled or replaced, the valves ground, the brakes lined, the lights adjusted, the licenses bought, to say nothing of oil and gas, the family chariot proves to be a heavy investment, leaving little for rent, a hat for the wife and shoes for the children.

The support of an automobile is no slight responsibility. It is doubtful if this is an obligation to be assumed by even the most paternal of governments.

In this free land, nobody is accused of espionage. Nobody is even suspected unless he knows how to pronounce it.

As we understand it, it isn't an act of war to bombard a city unless you send a formal note to say you're coming.

WASHINGTON DAYBOOK

By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON—Kenneth Romney, house sergeant-at-arms, a Montanan by birth, thinks Texas has the ablest delegation of any state. He has been 25 years on the Hill and has this to say about some of the others:

Ablest Democrats: Speaker Bankhead of Alabama; Floor Leader Rayburn of Texas; O'Connor of New York, chairman of the powerful rules committee; Warren of North Carolina; Cooper of Tennessee, on the ways and means (taxation) committee; Jones of Texas, chairman of the agricultural committee.

Ablest Republican: Wadsworth of New York. (Used to be a senator.)

Most colorful Representative: Maury Maverick of Texas.

Best orator: Speaker Bankhead.

Outstanding humorist :"There isn't any."

Best speaker in 25 years: Jack Garner of Texas.

Romney didn't name "most useless delegation" or "most hopeless orator." He's a far better politician than the senate employe who a few years ago wrote a piece for a magazine. Most of what that fellow said didn't matter but the members called him out on the floor to learn what he meant by one sentence saying something to the effect that "Very few senators have taken bribes." He tried to explain that he referred to the whole history of the senate—but he lost his job anyway.

Strung across the west from Leavenworth to Boise, the fur traders cut an epic trail from 1820 to the Civil war, fighting Indians, building forts, piling up a fortune in skins, pushing back a whole frontier.

The record is dim now, but 100 years after these buckskinned pioneers guided their boats up the muddy Missouri from St. Louis another chapter has been uncovered in the dusty files of the United States war department to shed new light on the fur trade of the west.

Annie Heloise Abel reconstructs the story in an extremely rare book, "Chardon's Journal at Fort Clark, 1834-1839." Here is the almost incredible day-by-day diary of a French trader who defied warring Mandans, Sioux, Gros Ventres, and the ravages of the smallpox epidemic of 1837 to corral the rich fur business of the upper Missouri.

Fort Clark, one of a chain of fur trading posts along the Missouri river owned by the American Fur company, was located on the west bank of that stream about 60 miles above the present site of Bismarck, N. D. Here Francis A. Chardon stepped from the steamboat Assinniboine, June 18, 1834. Five days after his arrival his dairy drips with Mandan blood and echoes the pitiless privation of the post. Chardon was to know no peace but death thereafter.

Edited with a wealth of notes and appendices, the "Journal" proves one of the most vital source volumes of this particular era of American pioneer history ever uncovered. Certainly there has been nothing more graphic in a long time. The dank scent of Chardon's wet beaver skins will stay with you long after you have turned the last page.—P. G. F.

Human Side Of The News

(Copyright, 1938, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

IN THE ANCIENT TAROT of the Bohemians, fount of much of modern occultism, knitting symbolized the working of inexorable fate. If you had a dream in which someone was knitting, destiny had tapped you for a journey, a wedding, a change of occupation—not necessarily good or evil, but ruthlessly decreed.

So it has been in the mystic lore of many other times and peoples. The click of the knitting needles of the old beldames inched French noblemen closer to the guillotine, which historic incident was in close accord with the dramatic unities of all folk lore. The classic fates were all women. But only on Olympus did they hold the power of life and death, or to make or mar the lives of humankind. On earth, men attended to such matters.

But now, possibly for the first time in history, women actually do what previously they only symbolized. They sit on juries, and immediately there is raised in a White Plains, N. Y. courtroom the question of whether they may knit. Judge James W. Bailey says they may, and Mrs. Frank H. Vreeland, a motherly housewife, makes a doily as she hears the evidence in a murder case.

There's a bit of mordant, fantastic humor in that, as there is apt to be in even the grimmest of human dramas. I remember seeing Judd Gray in the death house at Sing Sing pulling up his trousers to preserve the crease, as he sat down in the electric chair. The judge concluded that knitting would not divert Mrs. Vreeland's mind from the evidence, which was no doubt true. But I have an idea that if I ever had to be tried for my life, innocent or guilty, I shouldn't like to face a jury of knitting women.

There is in all truth an esoteric sisterhood of women, in which man may not obtrude, and one senses this clearly when they are knitting, tatting, crocheting or talking about hats. They are supremely assured, so utterly aloof and detached from mere masculinity. The juror is at liberty to challenge the district attorney, but imagine the district attorney daring to object to the court because Mrs. Dubinsky had purled one and dropped only two, when it should have been three. He would be put in his place.

At any rate in the transition from symbols and abstractions to the full status of human beings, women are still on Olympus—clicking swift needles of destiny. But could they doom a knitting lady defendant who showed them a new stitch?

UNDER A NEW DECREE, boys and girls attending the New York Food Trades High school will have to bathe every morning before classes, in the school showers. It would be hard to find any objection to that, but, reckoning a growing list of social compulsions, here's one more instance in which the community or the states takes over a bit of what should be family business.

We have made somewhat of a fetich of cleanliness in America. We have had more than 100 years of free education, and we have provided the facilities for cleanliness to a degree unmatched in any nation at any time. Why should civic power be necessary to make children of high school grades take baths? Is the continual encroachment of the state on private lives made inevitable by our collective inertia and general all-around dumbness and laziness—mental and physical?

Thomas Jefferson feared that would happen. He spent 20 years building the University of Virginia, viewing the work with a spy glass from the parapet of Monticello, five miles away. Many times he said and wrote, in effect:

"The constitution and the laws and even the government we have set up are less important than our eventual success in public education. Governments are subordinate to the self-discipline and enlightenment of the citizens, and to the degree that we attain such inner freedom, government will become less necessary. The best government is that which governs least."

GOVERNMENT ALSO would have us grow in appreciation of the fine arts. We now have the Pepper-Coffee bill, known as the Fine Arts act, which would establish a permanent department of the arts. Art has flourished under great patrons, like the de Medicis, and artists have been nourished by state funds, but any historic view is apt to reveal the mill-run citizen as either indifferent, or with quaint ideas of his own, no matter how long or how intense his exposure to the art stimulus.

Immigrants to America from countries with magnificent art traditions, and with the noblest examples of art everywhere in view, build dreadful wattle-and-dab houses, with distressingly ugly interiors, and, as they get more money and start branching out, they revel in the lowest depths of plaster bric-a-brac and a general stew of ugliness and irrelevance in furnishing and decoration.

One might say that's all the more reason why we should have a department of fine arts. I don't think so. I think it's one more instance in which we can't lift ourselves by our governmental boot-straps. Some day we'll grow up culturally, but we won't heave ourselves up by a law.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

BY ALICIA HART
(NEA Service Staff Writer)

Fairly indelible rouge and lipstick, plenty of suntan lotion, some really good sungoggles, a jar of rich night cream and a bottle of hand lotion are most important among the important items without which no beauty-minded girl leaves for a vacation in a summer camp.

Nowadays, camp may mean anything from a little shack somewhere near a main dining room and hall to a deluxe suite in a rustic lodge. But whatever it may or may not mean in the way of accommodations, it does mean without a doubt a full schedule (hence the necessity for makeup that will stay on, and lots of sunshine (wonderful, of course, but likely to make the skin on face and hands pretty dry).

If you have decided that you are going to acquire a dark, rich coat of suntan, take along some fairly dark face powder as well as your regular supply. Also, before you dash out to get brownish or orange-toned rouge and lipstick, look at some of the new richly dark red shades and at the flower colors. These are considered smarter this season.

Fortunately, the decision as to whether to get suntanned a little or a lot or not at all rests with you and nobody else. If you look your best when your skin is dark, by all means go ahead and get some tan. If not, just stay white. In any event, however, use night cream and hand lotion faithfully.

Take advantage of all the sports the camp offers, of course, but don't over-do and come back practically exhausted. It's a mistake for the girl who hasn't had any exercise all winter to try to swim a mile the first day at camp. And it's unwise for her to try to be exceptionally active all day, then expect to dance all night. She ought to sleep nine hours out of every 24, whether she gets to bed at 10 or 2.

P. S.—Unless your legs are especially nice, how about wearing slacks instead of shorts around the camp?

Because it disappeared so suddenly, the Carolina rail bird once was thought to turn into a frog when winter came.

YOUR HEALTH

By Dr. Morris Fishbein

(Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine)

Among the peculiar conditions which affect human beings, one of the most extraordinary is that commonly called spider fingers, and known to the doctors as arachnodactylia (which means the same thing).

Although such conditions may have existed for many years, they did not have scientific recognition until some doctor realized their nature and described them in the scientific medical literature. Thus in 1896 for the first time this condition was recognized as one in which the fingers and toes are abnormally long and gracile. The amount of fat under the skin is less than usual. The muscles are underdeveloped and the ligaments, which move the bones and muscles, are relaxed.

In addition there as associated in at least half of the cases disturbances of the pupil of the eye, of the lens of the eye, prominent ears, a high arched palate, and a tendency toward lack of development.

In the past 40 years several hundreds of cases of this type have been described. The condition is most commonly seen in children and, of course, can be recognized almost at a glance.

Usually the arms and legs are long in proportion to the height of the patient. The hands and feet are also abnormally long and narrow. There are, moreover, disturbances of the feet such as flat feet, hammer toes, and club feet, because of the changes in the ligaments and in the joints.

While these patients are not abnormally weak, in many instances there are some who have from the time of birth abnormalities of the heart which tend toward weakness, so that they become blue and short of breath whenever they make an effort.

Today it is recognized that this condition is hereditary. It does not occur particularly in any one race of people, although the earliest reports have come from French and German physicians. If the condition exists in the family it may be transferred through either the mother or the father.

The exact cause of this condition, beyond heredity, is not known. Obviously the condition is associated with some error in development in the period before the child is born.

Because of the structural changes in the bodies of these patients, they are particularly susceptible to infections of the lungs and diseases of the breathing apparatus, so that they must, therefore, be guarded particularly against pneumonia. In such people it has far more frequently than usual a fatal result.

MIND YOUR MANNERS

Test your knowledge of correct social usage by answering the following questions, then checking against the authoritative answers below:

1. Should you ever ask anyone but someone you know well, to "fill in" at a dinner?
2. Where are the napkins placed when a table is set for a formal dinner?
3. How many salt cellars and pepper pots should be used on a dinner table?
4. When are olives and celery passed?
5. Is it correct to serve sherry as well as cocktails at a cocktail party?

What would you do if—

A servant does something wrong when there are guests—

(a) Reprimand her before the guests, so that they will know you realize what has happened?

(b) Wait until after the guests have gone to speak to her about the matter?

(c) Ask your guests to excuse you—and follow her to the kitchen to talk to her?

Answers

1. No.
2. On the service plate.
3. A pair at every other place.
4. During the soup course.
5. Yes.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

By Rodney Dutcher

WASHINGTON—Numerous guests at the Soviet embassy the other night wished they had been toting candid cameras.

There, in white ties and long coattails, were Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes of the supreme court and Justice Hugo L. Black, engaged in earnest—and cordial—conversation. Between them, listening in, was Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana, who led the successful fight against the Roosevelt supreme court plan last year.

One man who could have used a camera to good advantage had he been there was Congressman Maury Maverick of Texas, whose opponent in this year's Democratic primary already is campaigning against him on the issue that Maverick has been a guest at the Russian embassy. To disqualify from public office men guilty of that offense would depopulate Washington of nearly all its big shots, Republicans and Democrats alike.

Russians Rabid Senator Fans

Although Mr. Roosevelt is having trouble finding someone who wants the American ambassadorship at Moscow, there's no question that Ambassador and Mme. Troyanovsky are enjoying themselves in Washington.

One day you see the Troyanovskys at a nearby race track and a day or two later you see them at an American league baseball game. And a few evenings later you spot them coming out of a downtown movie house, then strolling slowly down F street and gazing into each shop window.

A visitor to Troyanovsky's office recently heard the ambassador talking on the telephone.

"Yes, yes!" the envoy from the U. S. S. R. was exclaiming with some glee, "we won in the last inning!"

He was talking about the Washington baseball team.

Mrs. Rogers And The Japanese

Edith Nourse Rogers, congresswoman, appeared conspicuously in a newsreel recently shown here. Entering the theater to see herself in action, she found she had come a few minutes too late. A full-length feature picture starring Ginger Rogers, not Edith, flashed on the screen. Uninterested, Mrs. Rogers departed.

Seeking to stem the flow of Japanese goods into this country, Mrs. Rogers has collected—and indignantly displays—some 20 or more souvenir articles sold in Washington stores, metallic reproductions of the Capitol, White House, Lincoln memorial, Washington monument and so on—all marked "Made in Japan."

Mrs. Rogers tells how an American manufacturer sold cheaply some glasses which were inferior because air bubbles had accidentally appeared in them. Japanese, she says, reproduced the glasses with the bubbles faithfully copied—at a still lower price.

So far, it appears, Mrs. Rogers hasn't heard that the Japanese lanterns assembled for a big White House party recently were also "Made in Japan."

STAMP NEWS

By I. S. Klein

ONE hundred and fifty years after Tadeusz Kosciuszko arrived in America and entered the army of the United States as a volunteer, his native country, Poland, honors the anniversary of the U. S. Constitution with a special stamp.

Kosciuszko brilliantly distinguished himself, especially at New York and Yorktown, and Washington promoted him to the rank of a colonel of the artillery and made him an adjutant. Kosciuszko's humanity and charm, moreover, made him one of the most popular of the American officers. After the war, in 1783, he was rewarded for his services and his devotion to the cause of American independence with the thanks of Congress, the privilege of American citizenship, a considerable annual pension, and the rank of brigadier-general.

Appearing on the Polish stamp below with Kosciuszko and George Washington is a third leading figure of the revolution, Thomas Paine, whose pamphlet, "Common Sense," and other writings in 1776 "worked a powerful change in the minds of many men," in Washington's own words. It was Paine who penned the famous line, "These are the times that try men's souls." It became the battle cry of the Revolution.

MINERAL CODE'S FATE PONDERED

Senator Sweeney Of Lake Charles Calls It 'Dead As Doornail'

BATON ROUGE, La., June 11.—(AP)—Legislative observers wondered today if the proposed mineral code Governor Richard W. Leche submitted to the legislature would be adopted at this session.

The senate several weeks ago approved a resolution to create a house-senate committee to consider amendments to the proposal but the house voted, 62 to 29, to table consideration of the matter.

No subsequent action in either house has been taken. The code itself lies in judiciary "A" committee of the senate.

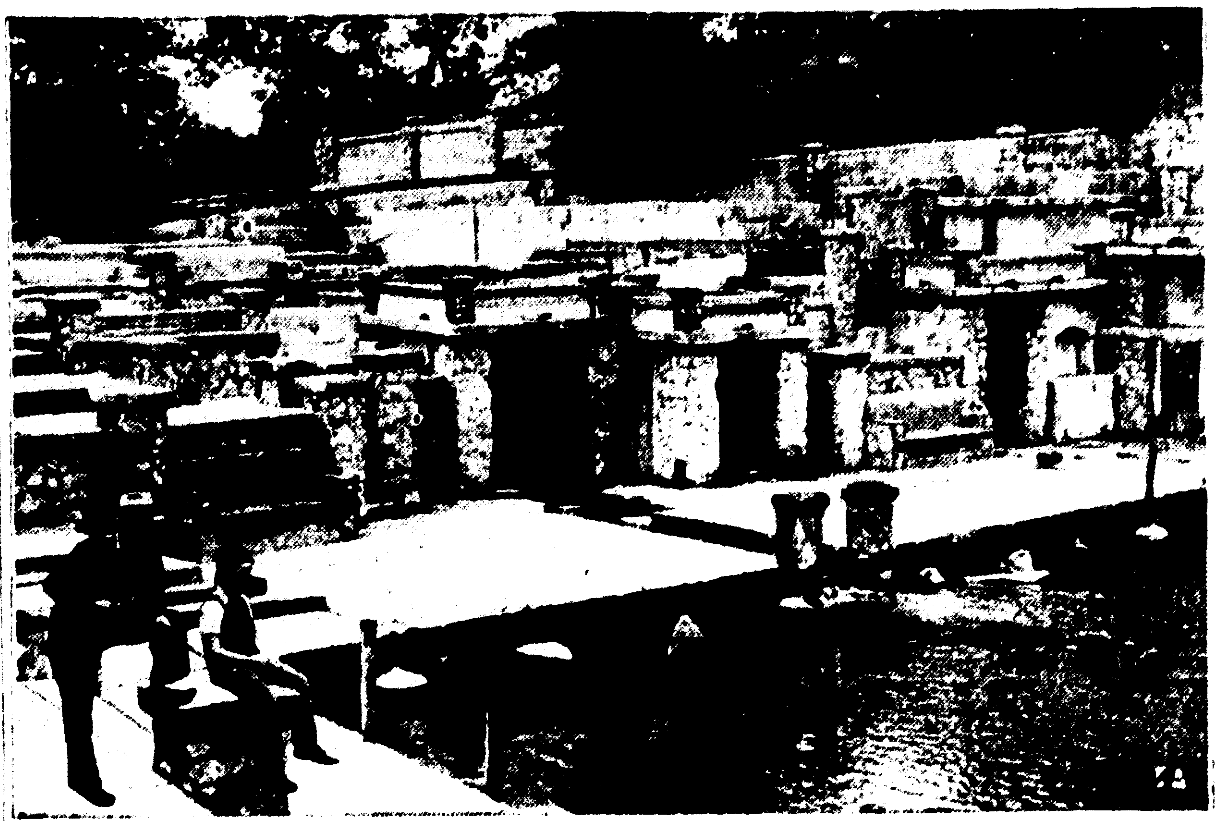
Senator Sidney W. Sweeney of Lake Charles, perhaps the code's bitterest foe in the legislature, has described it as "dead as a doornail."

The constitutional amendment under which authority the code was drafted requires that amendments be submitted during the first 20 days of the legislative session to a special committee," he said. "That committee was never appointed."

Others, however, pointed out that although this provision had not been complied with the code still could be adopted without amendment.

Sweeney, denouncing the code as broader than its authority, charged the code commission had not limited itself to codifying existing oil and mineral statutes but had placed new regulations into their draft.

'Coin' Harvey's Dream Of A U. S. Pyramid Is A Crumbling Ruin In The Ozark's Weeds



This is the foyer of "Coin" Harvey's projected pyramid. The pyramid itself was to rise from the trees in the background. The caretaker, shown with a boy, spends most of his time shooting at snakes and frogs in the terrace pool.

MONTE NE, Ark., June 11.—(AP)—Time has turned the tables on the late William Hope "Coin" Harvey. Civilization, which he feared would be destroyed, goes on. He started a great American pyramid in which to preserve the relics of civilization; that is disintegrating.

Coin Harvey died here two years ago. In the late nineteenth century he was famous through his book on finance, "Coin's Financial School," and another on politics, "The Tale of Two Nations."

He was high in the councils of the Democratic party in the days of William Jennings Bryan, but he split with the great commoner over financial theories. He retired to this Ozark region and tried to establish Monte Ne as a summer resort. That project failed. Then he retired to a rustic log home to write and study.

Believing civilization would be destroyed, he decided to build a huge pyramid to preserve a record of the world in which he lived.

The site of the pyramid was a spot Harvey thought would be the last on earth to be covered through natural erosion. Tons of cement were poured into holes drilled hundreds of feet into solid rock to anchor a proposed 120-foot tower of stone and concrete. Part of the foundation was made into an amphitheater with stone benches and spring-fed pools. Harvey spent more than $10,000 from the proceeds of his book sales on this preliminary work.

In a vault at the base of the pyramid, Harvey planned to place "The Book," a volume he was writing as his masterpiece. It was to give a complete history of civilization, its rise and growth; the dangers threatening its overthrow; a symposium of opinions on the cause of its threatened destruction. There were to be volumes on industry and scientific attainment; pictures of outstanding inventions and discoveries and of people and animals. With them was to be a book to aid in translation into the language in use when the pyramid would be opened.

On the six-foot square top was to have been placed a bronze plate bearing this inscription: "When this can be read, go below and find the record of and cause of the death of a former civilization."

Fearing he would not be able to complete his dream, Harvey organized the Pyramid association, composed of close friends. Most of them have died, none of the survivors is financially able to carry on the project. His son, Tom Harvey, to whom was left completion of the pyramid, has announced no plans for completion.

Mrs. Harvey, the writer's secretary for 40 years, has been living with relatives since his death, awaiting settlement of litigation over the property virtually all of which was debt-encumbered as result of her husband's prolonged illness and failure of the Monte Ne resort project.

Residents of this section evince little interest in the pyramid.

It, the deserted Harvey home and the dilapidated resort depot deteriorate unnoticed, lonely as the simple tomb nearby in which lies the body of "Coin" Harvey.

COUPLE ACCUSED OF INSURANCE MURDER

ALPINE, Tex., June 11.—(AP)—Youthful Mr. and Mrs. Francis Black, San Antonio couple who two months ago took tousled, 13-year-old Marvin Dale Nobbitt from his widowed mother to "give him a good home," today were accused of tumbling him off a 400-foot mountain precipice in a ghastly insurance death plot.

Murder charges were filed against the couple by District Attorney Fraser after an all-night sifting of circumstances surrounding the tragic drop of the lad into a rock-filled canyon Thursday. Fraser said "the boy's death was not accidental."

Two days ago the Blacks, who brought the frail lad here ostensibly on a vacation, took him to the wild Big Bend country for an outing. From atop a high cliff he toppled to death and his companions told authorities he slipped and fell while tossing stones down the hillside.

Sheriff Elmer Taylor and deputies went to the isolated spot and returned several hours later to arrest the couple a few minutes after they had sat, sobbing, at funeral services for the boy they claimed they had legally adopted. Fraser said no adoption papers had been found.

Fraser said the insurance angle had been investigated and from a San Antonio insurance firm, it was learned the boy's life had been insured for $5,000 on May 27 and that Mr. and Mrs. Black had been named beneficiaries.

GILLETTE ACCEPTS ROOSEVELT'S BID

WASHINGTON, June 11.—(AP)—The capital wondered tonight if President Roosevelt were baking a dove of political peace into the luncheon pie he will serve Sunday afternoon to Senator Gillette, Democrat, Iowa.

The White House announced the invitation, Gillette accepted, and neither made any comment to reporters.

The forthcoming meal is important because Gillette was renominated in last week's Iowa primary, defeating Representative Otha Wearin, who had received indications of administration favor from Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins and James Roosevelt, secretary-son of the president.

There was little doubt in the minds of most politicians here that the president and Gillette would find a basis for future harmony.

Prior to announcement of his White House date, the senator in an interview advised other Democratic senators opposed by administration-supported candidates to fight their own battles.

Referring to a proposal for "flying squadron" of some senators who, like himself, opposed the Roosevelt supreme court revision bill, Gillette said voters resent "outside interference."

CHARGE NEGRO MADE FALSE STATEMENT

SHREVEPORT, La., June 11.—(Special)—Harvey G. Fields, United States district attorney for the western district of Louisiana, upon presentation of a report from the agricultural department and department of justice, authorized the arrest of Levy Hendricks, negro, also known as Coy H. Hendricks, of Farmerville. The man is charged with having furnished the government with a false waiver from his landlord, L. B. Bragg, negro, on land Hendricks rented.

It is also charged that the defendant disposed of sufficient cotton to have paid the loan without applying the full proceeds on the loan. Hendricks also is charged with having obtained one loan under the name of Levy Hendricks and then to have filled out another application under the name of Coy H. Hendricks, thereby securing another loan. In his second application he is charged with having stated that he had had no previous government loan on which there was a balance due.

SEN. NOE OPPOSES UTILITY MEASURE

as much as six per cent interest, and further providing that there shall be charged for light and water service a sum sufficient to pay the expense of operating the utilities—its upkeep and improvements—and in addition to this, pay the interest on the bonds, and further providing a sinking fund to retire the principal. This simply means that there will be no limit on what you will have to pay for lights and water if this kind of a proposition goes through. More than that, it is proposed that if the bonds are not paid that the holder may come in by executory process that is commonly known as a 'cut-throat' process, seize the plant and sell it to the highest bidder, and that is not all—the purchaser of the plant automatically gets a forty-year franchise with absolutely no limitations as to what he may charge for service.

"I have read with a great deal of interest the resolution published in the Monroe News-Star of Friday, June 10, 1938, and I am astonished at the statement that Mr. Benoit and Mr. Tidwell do not know anything about this bill, when they were in Baton Rouge almost continuously since the legislature convened lobbying to get the municipal election postponed. This bill was introduced by Senator Lorio who, I understand, comes from a district that does not have within its limits a municipality owning its own public utilities.

"I am opposed to this legislation and when it came up in the senate I moved that the bill be indefinitely postponed. In the debate that followed, Senator Lorio stated that he knew nothing about the bill. I finally secured an agreement that action on the bill would be postponed until Monday night, but that at that time it will be brought up for a vote.

"I called up a friend of mine in the city of Monroe on Thursday and told him about the situation and he, in turn, called up the city attorney and the mayor and the result was that on Friday, June 10, 1938, the resolution which I have mentioned was adopted and published in the afternoon's paper.

"This is the most barefaced attempt that can be imagined on the part of municipal authorities somewhere to sacrifice some town's or city's public utilities. It is significant that on May 24, 1938, there was published in the Monroe News-Star on page 11, under the head of legal advertisements a resolution adopted by the city council of the city of Monroe authorizing the city of Monroe to file an application with the Reconstruction Finance corporation for a loan to aid in the financing of the construction of public works in the city and designating Mayor H. H. Benoit as the proper officer to furnish all the information to the Reconstruction Finance corporation that might be required. I am informed that it has been publicly stated by members of the city administration and by members of the state administration that it was the intention of the city of Monroe to borrow $1,500,000 and to secure the same by a mortgage on the city's public utilities, and in view of the fact that the law as it now is would not permit this to be done without a vote of the people, it is to say the least an extraordinary coincidence that there should immediately follow this constitutional amendment and enabling act which, if adopted and passed, would give the city council of the city of Monroe authority to do that very thing. This is especially true in view of the fact that the city of Monroe is bonded right square up to the legal limit and can not issue any other type of securities, save the ones specifically authorized by the bills I am fighting.

"I propose to fight these outrageous bills in the senate and if they are steamrollered over me, I will do everything in my power to defeat them in the house and before the house committee.

"I am issuing this statement to the people of the city of Monroe in order that they may know just what is going on.

"Most sincerely yours,
(Signed) "JAMES A. NOE."

MINERAL CODE'S FATE PONDERED

Senator Sweeney Of Lake Charles Calls It 'Dead As Doornail'

BATON ROUGE, La., June 11.—(AP)—Legislative observers wondered today if the proposed mineral code Governor Richard W. Leche submitted to the legislature would be adopted at this session.

The senate several weeks ago approved a resolution to create a house-senate committee to consider amendmnts to the proposal but the house voted, 62 to 29, to table consideration of the matter.

No subsequent action in either house has been taken. The code itself lies in judiciary "A" committee of the senate.

Senator Sidney W. Sweeney of Lake Charles, perhaps the code's bitterest foe in the legislature, has described it as "dead as a doornail."

"The constitutional amendment under which authority the code was drafted requires that amendments be submitted during the first 20 days of the legislative session to a special committee," he said. "That committee was never appointed."

Others, however, pointed out that although this provision had not been complied with the code still could be adopted without amendment.

Sweeney, denouncing the code as broader than its authority, charged the code commission had not limited itself to codifying existing oil and mineral statutes but had placed new regulations into their draft.

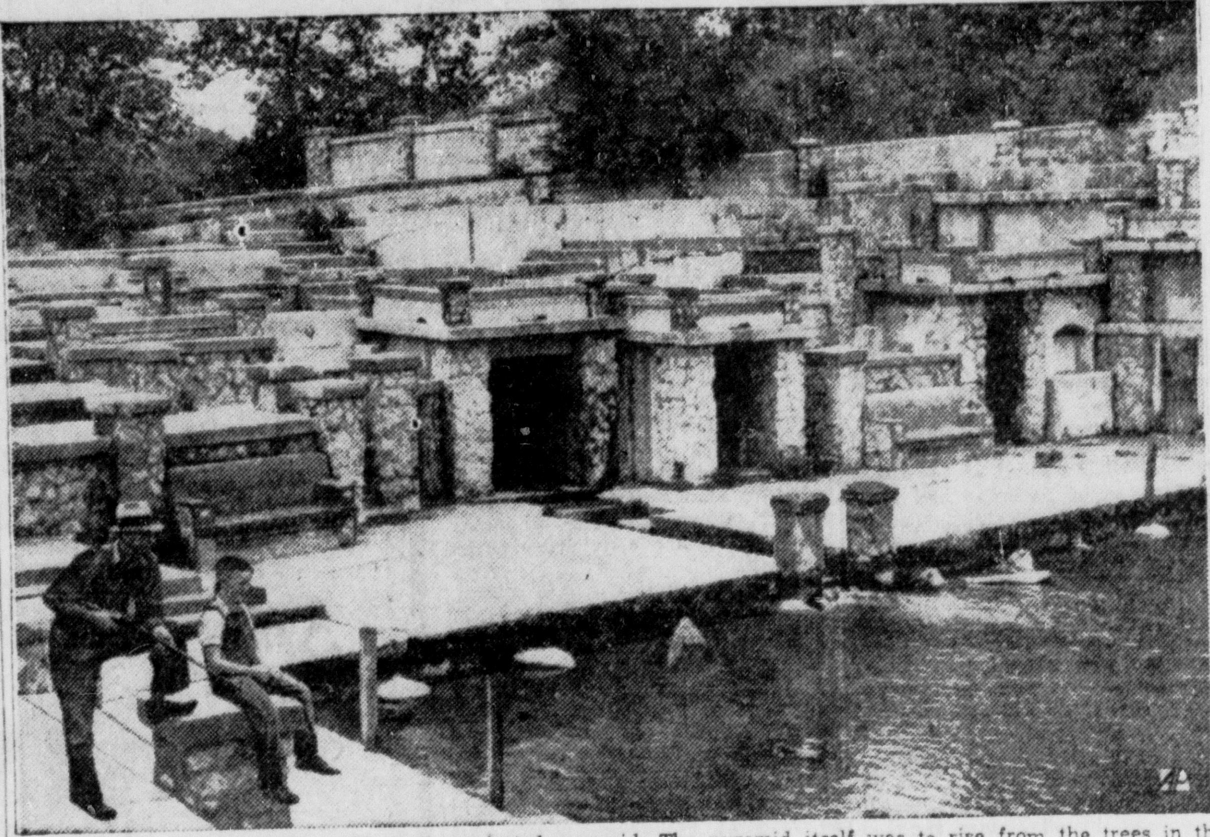
'Coin' Harvey's Dream Of A U. S. Pyramid Is A Crumbling Ruin In The Ozark's Weeds



This is the foyer of "Coin" Harvey's projected pyramid. The pyramid itself was to rise from the trees in the background. The caretaker, shown with a boy, spends most of his time shooting at snakes and frogs in the terrace pool.

MONTE NE, Ark., June 11.—(AP)—Time has turned the tables on the late William Hope "Coin" Harvey. Civilization, which he feared would be destroyed, goes on. He started a great American pyramid in which to preserve the relics of civilization; that is disintegrating.

Coin Harvey died here two years ago. In the late nineteenth century he was famous through his book on finance, "Coin's Financial School." and another on politics, "The Tale of Two Nations."

He was high in the councils of the Democratic party in the days of William Jennings Bryan, but he split with the great commoner over financial theories. He retired to this Ozark region and tried to establish Monte Ne as a summer resort. That project failed. Then he retired to a rustic log home to write and study.

Believing civilization would be destroyed, he decided to build a huge pyramid to preserve a record of the world in which he lived.

The site of the pyramid was a spot Harvey thought would be the last on earth to be covered through natural erosion. Tons of cement were poured into holes drilled hundreds of feet into solid rock to anchor a proposed 120-foot tower of stone and concrete. Part of the foundation was made into an amphitheater with stone benches and spring-fed pools. Harvey spent more than $10,000 from the proceeds of his book sales on this preliminary work.

In a vault at the base of the pyramid, Harvey planned to place "The Book," a volume he was writing as his masterpiece. It was to give a complete history of civilization; its rise and growth; the dangers threatening its overthrow; a symposium of opinions on the cause of its threatened destruction. There were to be volumes on industry and scientific attainment; pictures of outstanding inventions and discoveries, and of people and animals. With them was to be a book to aid in translation into the language in use when the pyramid would be opened.

On the six-foot square top was to have been placed a bronze plate bearing this inscription: "When this can be read, go below and find the record of and cause of the death of a former civilization."

Fearing he would not be able to complete his dream, Harvey organized the Pyramid association, composed of close friends. Most of them have died; none of the survivors is financially able to carry on the project. His son, Tom Harvey, to whom was left completion of the pyramid, has announced no plans for completion.

Mrs. Harvey, the writer's secretary for 40 years, has been living with relatives since his death, awaiting settlement of litigation over the property virtually all of which was debt-encumbered as result of her husband's prolonged illness and failure of the Monte Ne resort project.

Residents of this section evince little interest in the pyramid.

It, the deserted Harvey home and the dilapidated resort depot deteriorate unnoticed, lonely as the simple tomb nearby in which lies the body of "Coin" Harvey.

COUPLE ACCUSED OF INSURANCE MURDER

ALPINE, Tex., June 11.—(AP)—Youthful Mr. and Mrs. Francis Black, San Antonio couple who two months ago took tousled, 13-year-old Marvin Dale Nobbitt from his widowed mother to "give him a good home," today were accused of tumbling him off a 400-foot mountain precipice in a ghastly insurance death plot.

Murder charges were filed against the couple by District Attorney Fraser after an all-night sifting of circumstances surrounding the tragic drop of the lad into a rock-filled canyon Thursday. Fraser said "the boy's death was not accidental."

Two days ago the Blacks, who brought the frail lad here ostensibly on a vacation, took him to the wild Big Bend country for an outing. From atop a high cliff he toppled to death and his companions told authorities he slipped and fell while tossing stones down the hillside.

Sheriff Elmer Taylor and deputies went to the isolated spot and returned several hours later to arrest the couple a few minutes after they had sat, sobbing, at funeral services for the boy they claimed they had legally adopted. Fraser said no adoption papers had been found.

Fraser said the insurance angle had been investigated and from a San Antonio insurance firm, it was learned the boy's life had been insured for $5,000 on May 27 and that Mr. and Mrs. Black had been named beneficiaries.

GILLETTE ACCEPTS ROOSEVELT'S BID

WASHINGTON, June 11.—(AP)—The capital wondered tonight if President Roosevelt were baking a dove of political peace into the luncheon pie he will serve Sunday afternoon to Senator Gillette, Democrat, Iowa.

The White House announced the invitation, Gillette accepted, and neither made any comment to reporters.

The forthcoming meal is important because Gillette was renominated in last week's Iowa primary, defeating Representative Otha Wearin, who had received indications of administration favor from Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins and James Roosevelt, secretary-son of the president.

There was little doubt in the minds of most politicians here that the president and Gillette would find a basis for future harmony.

Prior to announcement of his White House date, the senator in an interview advised other Democratic senators opposed by administration-supported candidates to fight their own battles.

Referring to a proposal for "flying squadron" of some senators who, like himself, opposed the Roosevelt supreme court revision bill, Gillette said voters resent "outside interference."

CHARGE NEGRO MADE FALSE STATEMENT

SHREVEPORT, La., June 11.—(Special)—Harvey G. Fields, United States district attorney for the western district of Louisiana, upon presentation of a report from the agricultural department and department of justice, authorized the arrest of Levy Hendricks, negro, also known as Coy H. Hendricks, of Farmerville. The man is charged with having furnished the government with a false waiver from his landlord, L. B. Bragg, negro, on land Hendricks rented.

It is also charged that the defendant disposed of sufficient cotton to have paid the loan without applying the full proceeds on the loan. Hendricks also is charged with having obtained one loan under the name of Levy Hendricks and then to have filled out another application under the name of Coy H. Hendricks, thereby securing another loan. In his second application he is charged with having stated that he had had no previous government loan on which there was a balance due.

as much as six per cent interest, and further providing that there shall be charged for light and water service a sum sufficient to pay the expense of operating the utilities—its upkeep and improvements—and in addition to this, pay the interest on the bonds, and further providing a sinking fund to retire the principal. This simply means that there will be no limit on what you will have to pay for lights and water if this kind of a proposition goes through. More than that, it is proposed that if the bonds are not paid that the holder may come in by executory process—that is commonly known as a 'cut-throat' process, seize the plant and sell it to the highest bidder, and that is not all—the purchaser of the plant automatically gets a forty-year franchise with absolutely no limitations as to what he may charge for service.

"I have read with a great deal of interest the resolution published in the Monroe News-Star of Friday, June 10, 1938, and I am astonished at the statement that Mr. Benoit and Mr. Tidwell do not know anything about this bill, when they were in Baton Rouge almost continuously since the legislature convened lobbying to get the municipal election postponed. This bill was introduced by Senator Lorio, who, I understand, comes from a district that does not have within its limits a municipality owning its own public utilities!

"I am opposed to this legislation and when it came up in the senate I moved that the bill be indefinitely postponed. In the debate that followed, Senator Lorio stated that he knew nothing about the bill. I finally secured an agreement that action on the bill would be postponed until Monday night, but that at that time it will be brought up for a vote.

"I called up a friend of mine in the city of Monroe on Thursday and told him about the situation and he, in turn, called up the city attorney and the mayor and the result was that on Friday, June 10, 1938, the resolution which I have mentioned was adopted and published in the afternoon's paper.

"This is the most barefaced attempt that can be imagined on the part of municipal authorities somewhere to sacrifice some town's or city's public utilities. It is significant that on May 24, 1938, there was published in the Monroe News-Star on page 11, under the head of legal advertisements a resolution adopted by the city council of the city of Monroe authorizing the city of Monroe to file an application with the Reconstruction Finance corporation for a loan to aid in the financing of the construction of public works in the city and designating Mayor H. H. Benoit as the proper officer to furnish all the information to the Reconstruction Finance corporation that might be required. I am informed that it has been publicly stated by members of the city administration and by members of the state administration that it was the intention of the city of Monroe to borrow $1,500,000 and to secure the same by a mortgage on the city's public utilities, and in view of the fact that the law as it now is, would not permit this to be done without a vote of the people, it is to say the least an extraordinary coincidence that there should immediately follow this constitutional amendment and enabling act which, if adopted and passed, would give the city council of the city of Monroe authority to do that very thing. This is especially true in view of the fact that the city of Monroe is bonded right square up to the legal limit and can not issue any other type of securities, save the ones specifically authorized by the bills I am fighting.

"I propose to fight these outrageous bills in the senate and if they are steamrollered over me, I will do everything in my power to defeat them in the house and before the house committee.

"I am issuing this statement to the people of the city of Monroe in order that they may know just what is going on.

"Most sincerely yours,
(Signed) "JAMES A. NOE."

VETERANS' GRAVES WILL BE RECORDED

Under the supervision of the American Legion of Louisiana, the Works Progress administration has begun a project to prepare a comprehensive record of the graves of veterans of all wars, buried in the state's cemeteries, it was announced by James H. Crutcher, state WPA administrator.

The research work will be carried on in every parish of the state. The first unit will be started in New Orleans and when the routine of organization is perfected the units will be formed in each of the parishes. A crew of 121 WPA "white collar" workers will be assigned to the task.

The project is sponsored by the adjutant general's office, and Roland Cocreham, department adjutant of the American Legion, has been designated as the sponsor's representative in carrying out the program.

The exact location of the graves shown on cemetery maps will be recorded by the workers as will all information available on the veteran, including his rank, military organization, cause of death, along with the place and date of burial.

"Such a record is invaluable to the various patriotic and service organizations of the state of Louisiana," said Mr. Cocreham. "The legion now has a program of grave marking which will be aided by the new project and other service and patriotic organizations have similar programs to honor the soldier dead of the nation's wars."

The complete data, according to Mr. Cocreham, will be turned over to the adjutant general's office where it will always be available to the public. It is planned by the American Legion and other service organizations to continue the record with their own personnel after the project is completed, insuring an accurate record of the dead of all wars.

INTEREST GROWS IN MODEL HOME

Southall, Bledsoe And Luneau Begin Work On Painting And Decorating

Public interest in Monroe's model duplex apartment home, the first exhibition home built in this city in the last 12 years, is becoming more and more evident as the structure develops toward completion. The apartment home is being erected at the corner of North Fifth and K streets by Slagle-Johnson Lumber company, the Johns-Manville company, with the cooperation of local concerns and the Federal Housing administration. As soon as the building is completed it will be furnished by the Monroe Furniture company and will be open for inspection by the public.

Widespread interest is being taken in a contest for a $10 cash prize for the best name suggested for the apartment home. Suggestions are to be mailed to Slagle-Johnson Lumber company not later than June 20.

Work on the house during the past week included setting windows and bathroom fixtures, in addition to painting and interior decorating. Rain interfered with the placing of the Johns-Manville shingle siding, which is expected to be started Monday, as will the Johns-Manville Dutch overlap black roof.

Interior tiles will also be laid this week. The painting, which will continue this week, is under the direction of J. D. Southall and W. E. Bledsoe, experienced decorators, and the paper hanging and interior painting by P. D. Luneau, who has been 20 years in the business. Mr. Luneau assisted in the decoration of Hotel Frances and the Paramount theater. He has done similar work in theaters in all parts of Louisiana.

Sherwin-Williams Paint company, whose paints are being used for the model apartment home, will install "Imperial Washable" wallpaper of the newest 1938 designs and color combinations.

Materials used in constructing the home include Johns-Manville asbestos roofing and shingle siding, rock wool insulation, Celotex, Johns-Manville Flex-board, scored wainscoating and aluminum molding. The lumber will be Frost pine.

Business firms furnishing materials and services include Monroe Tent and Awning company, awnings; Monroe Furniture company, Montgomery Ward and company, plumbing; Jones Electric company, electricians; Luneau, Southall and Bledsoe, painting contractor; Sherwin-Williams company, paints; Zephyr company, attic ventilation; Service Tile company, tile; Pittsburgh Plate Glass company, glass construction brick.

The contractor is W. V. Clark, J. Y. Hamilton, the supervisor, assisted by W. B. Waldroup and other competent craftsmen.

LOCAL RADIO CLUB WILL TAKE PART IN NATIONAL PROGRAM

Members of the Monroe Amateur Radio club, in conjunction with similar clubs in other parts of the country, yesterday commenced the observance of a two-day field program designed to coordinate the activities of amateur radio stations so that they may be prepared for any emergency such as that of the Ohio valley flood of last year during which amateur radio operators rendered splendid service.

In observance of the two-day field program, the Monroe Amateur Radio club is maintaining and operating three short-wave radio transmitters independent of local power mains at the fairgrounds in West Monroe.

The equipment used is entirely portable so that field installation may be made at any point and is designed to supplant local communication systems such as telephone and telegraph in the event of a catastrophe resulting in the breakdown of these services.

Included in the equipment of the Monroe Amateur Radio club are transmitters designed to maintain contact with Shreveport, Jackson, Miss., Little Rock and Pine Bluff, Ark., New Orleans and Alexandria, while contact with further northern and eastern points is continuously maintained by a second installation. Another complete station is maintained as a "standby" in case of equipment breakdown for use on several frequencies.

A complete list of all equipment and operating personnel has been filed with the Ouachita chapter of the American Red Cross, the telegraph companies and railroads, as well as with municipal authorities.

During the observance of the two-day field program the amateur radio equipment at the fairgrounds is being operated by Mrs. Jewel L. Caraway, W5FJW; P. P. Lynch, W5EGK; Howard Griffith, W5CNG; Cortland McCoy, W5DXL; Allen J. Christmas, W5DRF; Carl Stevenson, W5GPE; Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Wells, W5HEJ and W5HEK.

The playground season will last for 13 weeks in Monroe and there will be special days set aside for celebrations. On July 4, there will be a lantern parade, swimming and diving contests and other aquatic events at the R. D. Swayze natatorium.

CRIPPLE CLINIC HELD

FERRIDAY, La., June 11.—(Special)—Dr. C. L. Mengis of Winnsboro came to Ferriday on Friday and gave examinations to a number of crippled children at the Ferriday hospital. Both white and negro crippled children were examined free of charge and plans were discussed for several operations and for other treatments. LOCAL RADIO CLUB WILL TAKE PART IN NATIONAL PROGRAM

Members of the Monroe Amateur Radio club, in conjunction with similar clubs in other parts of the country, yesterday commenced the observance of a two-day field program designed to coordinate the activities of amateur radio stations so that they may be prepared for any emergency such as that of the Ohio valley flood of last year during which amateur radio operators rendered splendid service.

In observance of the two-day field program, the Monroe Amateur Radio club is maintaining and operating three short-wave radio transmitters independent of local power mains at the fairgrounds in West Monroe.

The equipment used is entirely portable so that field installation may be made at any point and is designed to supplant local communication systems such as telephone and telegraph in the event of a catastrophe resulting in the breakdown of these services.

Included in the equipment of the Monroe Amateur Radio club are transmitters designed to maintain contact with Shreveport, Jackson, Miss., Little Rock and Pine Bluff, Ark., New Orleans and Alexandria, while contact with further northern and eastern points is continuously maintained by a second installation. Another complete station is maintained as a "standby" in case of equipment breakdown for use on several frequencies.

A complete list of all equipment and operating personnel has been filed with the Ouachita chapter of the American Red Cross, the telegraph companies and railroads, as well as with municipal authorities.

CONCESSIONS TO DICTATORS HIT

with a demand for a "clear stand" against Nazi-fascist power politics.

His attack, the most forceful since he quit the cabinet February 20 in protest against Chamberlain's "realistic" foreign policy, came as Czechoslovakia and warring Spain held Europe's attention as danger spots.

Czechoslovakia will hold the third and last of a series of municipal elections tomorrow amid blasts from Germany's government-inspired press.

Berlin newspapers referred to Hitler's determination to protect Germans outside Germany even as they did nearly three months ago when Austria was seized.

The climax in the explosive issue between Czechoslovakia and her autonomy-demanding minority of 3,500,000 Sudeten Germans may come within a week.

A Sudeten German party communique, warning that future developments depended upon the measure to which the government met the minority's demands, declared the government's draft of the proposed nationalities statute was expected to be received next week, "probably Tuesday."

Tomorrow's election is strictly municipal but, with the votes on May 22 and May 29, is expected to give an index to the strength of the Sudeten Germans led by Konrad Henlein.

British diplomats, balked temporarily in their effort to find a means for halting devastating insurgent Spanish air raids upon British shipping, concentrated upon developments in Praha and Berlin.

Among the blasts in the German press was the declaration of the Boersen Zeitung which said every blow in the face of a Sudeten German "is also a blow in the face of the 75,000,000 Germans in the Reich of Adolf Hitler. It is a blow in the face of a great, proud nation."

France, pledged in a mutual assistance pact to aid Czechoslovakia if she were invaded, sought to achieve a master stroke—a military alliance with Turkey.

Indications grew in London that the British government was not planning any decisive step to halt the almost daily series of Spanish insurgent raids on British ships carrying food and other supplies to Spanish government ports.

Politicians and newspapers sympathetic toward insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco repeatedly have pointed out ships have been warned they go to Spain at their own risk.

CZECHS APPROVE BRITISH WATCHERS

PRAHA, Czechoslovakia, June 11.—(AP)—The Czechoslovak government approved tonight the presence of British observers in Sudeten German (Nazi) districts so they could get a clear picture should disorders develop during Sunday's municipal elections.

While an estimated 300,000 trained Czechoslovaks were under arms, ready for rapid transport to any threatened center on the frontier, the presence of the neutral men was welcomed in view of recurrent rumors that the election week-end would be "rough."

The visitors, Major Sutton Pratt, British assistant military attache, and Peter Pares, British consul at Reichenberg, had started their preliminary tour tonight.

Defense was the keynote in other ways, too, as residents of 8,170 communities, including more than 1,000,000 Sudeten Germans, decorated their buildings and streets in preparation for the voting, the last of a series of three communal elections.

A nationwide appeal asked voluntary contributions to a billion-crown ($35,000,000) defense fund. Boys and girls took street collections for the air force.

have been banned already by invocation of the neutrality act.

The neutrality law has not been invoked against sales of planes or bombs to Japan or China, however.

It was reported reliably that some manufacturers already had shown a willingness to reject contracts for the shipment of bombing planes to the regions the secretary has in mind.

Japan, whose war planes have killed hundreds in Canton, China, became the United States' best customer for war supplies in the last six months.

From December 1 to June 1, Japan spent $6,091,090 for war equipment in the United States, compared with China's $5,819,739 of purchases. Aircraft and parts, commercial as well as military, comprised the bulk of the exports.

In May, licenses were issued to export $1,334,606 worth of arms to Japan, of which $599,490 represented military aircraft and $528,900 commercial planes and equipment. For the month, however, Brazil led Japan with $1,494,824 of purchases.

Altogether American manufacturers sold to all nations $31,090,054 worth of war material in the six-month period.

DIFFERENTIALS PLACED IN BILL

taxes, operating costs such as light, heat and power rates, and other economic factors.

The ban against considering only the geographical location of the units within the industry was considered a concession to northerners on the committee, but the jubilant southerners said the other factors counter-balanced this.

Largely because the classification clause was included, four conferees voted against adoption of the wage section of the bill. They were Senators Borah, Republican, Idaho, and Walsh, Democrat, Massachusetts, and Representatives Welch, Republican, California, and Hartley, Republican, New Jersey. Senator Murray, Democrat, Montana, did not vote. All, however, joined in final approval of the bill.

The wage controversy in the committee was settled by an agreement on the following formula:

A "bedrock" wage of 25 cents an hour in all interstate commerce, effective the first year and advancing to 30 cents the second year.

Thereafter an independent administrator in the labor department would appoint boards for each interstate industry. These boards would be charged with increasing the minimum wage to 40 cents an hour as rapidly as possible.

The boards would classify each industry and fix minima for each classification. Once their orders were approved by the administrator they would stand until he reconvened the board to re-investigate conditions in the industry.

At the end of seven years' operation of the law, all existing wage orders would be wiped out automatically and a minimum scale of 40 cents an hour would go into effect.

This would shift the "burden of proof" on the industries. To obtain exemptions they would have to show that they could not pay their employes 40 cents an hour without curtailing seriously the opportunities for employment.

Here again, however, the southerners won a point. They obtained a provision that all of the factors considered by the boards in their classification of industries must be considered in determining whether the 40 cent wage would bring unemployment.

SAYS NAVAL STORES GRANTED EXEMPTION

WASHINGTON, June 11.—(AP)—An informed southern senator said today conferees had agreed to exempt the naval stores industry from provisions of the wage-hour bill.

The gum turpentine and rosin exemption was written into the senate bill last year. They admittedly fearful of a defeat, naval stores congressmen did not offer their amendment in the house.

Representatives of the industry declared southern naval stores operations would cease unless they won exemption from the minimum wage requirements.

Although both the senate and house bills exempted agriculture, southern congressmen said that classification probably would not be construed to include naval stores unless specific provisions were made for it.

A committee of the American Turpentine Farmers association has been in Washington for weeks seeking approval of the naval stores amendment.

began to get the best of me. My stomach refused to digest foods properly regardless of what I ate and I would have dizzy spells until I could hardly stand up. My vitality was very much reduced and I lacked the strength and energy to do my household duties. It was so discouraging as medicine after medicine failed to help me and medical authorities advised an operation. But upon hearing so much praise for this new Gly-Cas I decided to give it the opportunity to help me and it was wonderful."

"My bowels were regulated in a most natural manner after the first few doses of this new Gly-Cas," continued Mrs. Tremont. "In a short time I was eating and enjoying my meals and was never bothered afterwards. Indigestion, heartburn and dizziness has left me entirely and I no longer have to be careful of my diet. I enjoy a perfect night's sleep, nerves are quieted and I feel fine. My work is a pleasure since I have been given back my strength and I enjoy my daily household duties. Gly-Cas is the first medicine I have ever found that did exactly as it claimed to do."

normal population of more than 1,500,000.

About 40 Japanese gunboats and transports were reported already to be within 250 miles of Hankow, far up the river and already in action.

Japanese columns in the Cleveland drive now are fighting westward through Honan province, and another column is approaching Anking, 215 miles downstream from Hankow.

China prepared for siege of the capital with arrival there of a vanguard of troops from Szechuan province, in the southwest, said to be the first of 100,000 new troops expected from Szechuan.

Chiang Kai-Shek ordered a general conscription of men for the army, regardless of family, wealth or influence.

A second main theater of war had as its stage Chengchow, about 300 miles north of Hankow on the Peiping-Hankow railway, where stubborn Chinese defenders still held on after a persistent weeks-long attack along the Lunghai railway.

Tremendous quantities of water were reported coursing through a large break in the Yellow river dykes northeast of Chengchow, threatening to create a flood of devastating proportions.

Confronted by the Japanese fleet's threat upon Hankow, the Chinese were confident their Yangtze defenses would hold. Reports from Hankow said it would take the Japanese months to get past great booms at Kiukiang, 135 miles down the river from Hankow.

The Japanese navy in announcing the Yangtze drive advised all foreign shipping to evacuate a 200-mile zone between Kiukiang and Wuhu, 326 miles from Hankow.

British, French and United States gunboats are the only foreign vessels now in the river. American gunboats are at Nanking, Kuikiang, Ichang and Hankow.

CORONER'S JURY BLAMES M'CALL

May 28, and subsequently he received three ransom notes.

"Did you make any answer to the third?" he was asked.

"No, except I delivered the money."

Cash said he went to the funeral home after the boy's body was found and there identified the pajamas which "Skeegie" had worn the night of the kidnaping.

Asked by a juror if he recognized the kidnaper's voice when he paid the ransom, Cash said the man had not spoken.

Inspector E. J. Connelley of the federal bureau of investigation testified to McCall's confession in virtually the same language used by J. Edgar Hoover yesterday in announcing it and related how McCall led them to the body while he still maintained innocence of everything except the writing of the notes and collection of the $10,000 ransom.

McCall was booked yesterday on an open charge—"Held for the state attorney."

headed golf club found hanging in the house.

At Brooke's side as he started for jail was his father, Colonel William Brooke, U. S. A., retired, who came here from his home in San Antonio, Tex.

The slain woman, Brooke's second wife, was an army nurse before her marriage.

Hicks Fort, prominent Columbus criminal lawyer acted as attorney for Brooke. He said he has not yet been definitely retained.

Commissioner Brown said he was not authorized to accept bond in capital cases.

Following the hearing, Fort issued an oral statement that "at the proper time the defense will be made known." Fort said Major Brooke wished to "express his heart-felt appreciation for the many telegrams of sympathy and support which have come to him from friends in all parts of the country."

Major Brooke was brought before the commissioner by United States Marshal G. W. Walker. Attorney Fort showed him to a seat before the desk. Brooke sat slumped slightly forward.

"Judge Brown, this is Major Brooke—Major Brooke, Judge Brown," said Fort.

They acknowledged the introduction. Silence.

The small office was ringed with attaches and newspapermen, who waited for a marshal to bring the complaint paper.

Buzz of a fan sounded through the room. The temperature was 97.

The complaint was brought. Brown read the charge that Major Brooke "did unlawfully and knowingly with malice aforethought, murder one Elizabeth S. Brooke in violation of title 18, U. S. C. A. 452."

Fort read it, arose and said: "As counsel for the defendant, I enter a plea of not guilty and waive preliminary hearing."

He signed a typewritten statement of it.

They stood. Fort made his statement for Brooke to news men. Asked for comment, Brooke nodded his head: "That's all I have to say."

The marshal placed handcuffs on the major and led him down a corridor to the marshal's office. Brooke wore a tan shirt, blue sport coat, pin striped white trousers, white shoes and socks.

Before and during the hearing he did not speak but smoked one cigarette after another as he waited to be called before the commissioner.

Mississippi, of the house conferees predicted a satisfactory compromise on the bill would be worked out over the week-end. The committee will meet formally Monday.

One house members expressed the view Mr. Roosevelt had been influenced by a senate amendment to vest the federal government with a full title of all reservoirs, flood control as well as power.

This amendment, with another giving the federal power commission instead of the army engineers authority to determine hydroelectric potentialities, was advocated by Senate Majority Leader Barkley, Democrat, Kentucky, presumably with presidential sanction.

House members said the proposed new policy on financing flood control reservoirs would not cut the 100 per cent local contributions now required for purely local works such as flood walls and levees. An amendment by Barkley, however, would extend the reduction to channel improvements for flood control.

Their equipment now consists of two modern all-steel tow boats, the steamer "Captain Alphin" which is equipped with 750 h.p., and the 210 h.p. Deisel towboat "City of Monroe." Their barge equipment consists of 31 all-steel barges.

WOMAN RECEIVES SHOTGUN WOUNDS

Sadie Wilson, 31, negro woman, was recovering from shotgun wounds in St. Francis sanitarium last night, while Rufus Heath, said to have shot the woman and who was arrested on a charge of drawing and displaying a dangerous weapon, was free under $100 bond.

The shooting was said to have occurred late Friday near the home of the negro on Bright Oak road near Louisville avenue. Heath shot the negro once with a single barrel shotgun in the back and neck as she was crossing a small bridge over a ditch, it was reported.

Heath, police said, reported he had been having trouble with the woman for some time and that she was threatening him when he got the gun and told her to leave his place which adjoins that of the negro. She reputedly continued advancing until she saw he intended to shoot, Heath allegedly reported, and then whirled to run. Heath said he was already pressing the trigger when she turned and was unable to keep the gun from discharging.

The negro woman said Heath had no cause to shoot her. She claimed Heath had previously held a lease on the property where she is now living, but that she and her husband had got a lease on the land last year and that Heath had "had it in for us ever since."

Factories and homes alike were evacuated as roof tiles crashed to earth and windows were shattered. Reports from all parts of the country told of a "thunder-like rolling noise" accompanying the shocks.

have been banned already by invocation of the neutrality act.

The neutrality law has not been invoked against sales of planes or bombs to Japan or China, however.

It was reported reliably that some manufacturers already had shown a willingness to reject contracts for the shipment of bombing planes to the regions the secretary has in mind.

Japan, whose war planes have killed hundreds in Canton, China, became the United States' best customer for war supplies in the last six months.

From December 1 to June 1, Japan spent $6,091,090 for war equipment in the United States, compared with China's $5,819,739 of purchases. Aircraft and parts, commercial as well as military, comprised the bulk of the exports.

In May, licenses were issued to export $1,334,608 worth of arms to Japan, of which $599,490 represented military aircraft and $528,900 commercial planes and equipment. For the month, however, Brazil led Japan with $1,494,824 of purchases.

Altogether American manufacturers sold to all nations $31,090,054 worth of war material in the six-month period.

DIFFERENTIALS PLACED IN BILL

taxes, operating costs such as light, heat and power rates, and other economic factors.

The ban against considering only the geographical location of the units within the industry was considered a concession to northerners on the committee, but the jubilant southerners said the other factors counter-balanced this.

Largely because the classification clause was included, four conferees voted against adoption of the wage section of the bill. They were Senators Borah, Republican, Idaho, and Walsh, Democrat, Massachusetts, and Representatives Welch, Republican, California, and Hartley, Republican, New Jersey. Senator Murray, Democrat, Montana, did not vote. All, however, joined in final approval of the bill.

The wage controversy in the committee was settled by an agreement on the following formula:

A "bedrock" wage of 25 cents an hour in all interstate commerce, effective the first year and advancing to 30 cents the second year.

Thereafter an independent administrator in the labor department would appoint boards for each interstate industry. These boards would be charged with increasing the minimum wage to 40 cents an hour as rapidly as possible.

The boards would classify each industry and fix minima for each classification. Once their orders were approved by the administrator they would stand until he reconvened the board to re-investigate conditions in the industry.

At the end of seven years' operation of the law, all existing wage orders would be wiped out automatically and a minimum scale of 40 cents an hour would go into effect.

This would shift the "burden of proof" on the industries. To obtain exemptions they would have to show that they could not pay their employes 40 cents an hour without curtailing seriously the opportunities for employment.

Here again, however, the southerners won a point. They obtained a provision that all of the factors considered by the boards in their classification of industries must be considered in determining whether the 40 cent wage would bring unemployment.

SAYS NAVAL STORES GRANTED EXEMPTION

WASHINGTON, June 11.—(AP)—An informed southern senator said today conferees had agreed to exempt the naval stores industry from provisions of the wage-hour bill.

The gum turpentine and rosin exemption was written into the senate bill last year. They admittedly fearful of a defeat, naval stores congressmen did not offer their amendment in the house.

Representatives of the industry declared southern naval stores operations would cease unless they won exemption from the minimum wage requirements.

Although both the senate and house bills exempted agriculture, southern congressmen said that classification probably would not be construed to include naval stores unless specific provisions were made for it.

A committee of the American Turpentine Farmers association has been in Washington for weeks seeking approval of the naval stores amendment.

began to get the best of me. My stomach refused to digest foods properly regardless of what I ate and I would have dizzy spells until I could hardly stand up. My vitality was very much reduced and I lacked the strength and energy to do my household duties. It was so discouraging as medicine after medicine failed to help me and medical authorities advised an operation. But upon hearing so much praise for this new Gly-Cas I decided to give it the opportunity to help me and it was wonderful."

"My bowels were regulated in a most natural manner after the first few doses of this new Gly-Cas," continued Mrs. Tremont. "In a short time I was eating and enjoying my meals and was never bothered afterwards. Indigestion, heartburn and dizziness has left me entirely and I no longer have to be careful of my diet. I enjoy a perfect night's sleep, nerves are quieted and I feel fine. My work is a pleasure since I have been given back my strength and I enjoy my daily household duties. Gly-Cas is the first medicine I have ever found that did exactly as it claimed to do."

Gly-Cas is sold by Phoenix Drug company, 348 DeSiard street, this city, and by the leading druggists in surrounding towns.

About 40 Japanese gunboats and transports were reported already to be within 250 miles of Hankow, far up the river and already in action.

Japanese columns in the Cleveland drive now are fighting westward through Honan province, and another column is approaching Anking, 215 miles downstream from Hankow.

China prepared for siege of the capital with arrival there of a vanguard of troops from Szechuan province, in the southwest, said to be the first of 100,000 new troops expected from Szechuan.

Chiang Kai-Shek ordered a general conscription of men for the army, regardless of family, wealth or influence.

A second main theater of war had as its stage Chengchow, about 300 miles north of Hankow on the Peiping-Hankow railway, where stubborn Chinese defenders still held on after a persistent weeks-long attack along the Lunghai railway.

Tremendous quantities of water were reported coursing through a large break in the Yellow river dykes northeast of Chengchow, threatening to create a flood of devastating proportions.

Confronted by the Japanese fleet's threat upon Hankow, the Chinese were confident their Yangtze defenses would hold. Reports from Hankow said it would take the Japanese months to get past great booms at Kiukiang, 135 miles down the river from Hankow.

The Japanese navy in announcing the Yangtze drive advised all foreign shipping to evacuate a 200-mile zone between Kiukiang and Wuhu, 326 miles from Hankow.

British, French and United States gunboats are the only foreign vessels now in the river. American gunboats are at Nanking, Kuikiang, Ichang and Hankow.

CORONER'S JURY BLAMES M'CALL

May 28, and subsequently he received three ransom notes.

"Did you make any answer to the third?" he was asked.

"No, except I delivered the money."

Cash said he went to the funeral home after the boy's body was found and there identified the pajamas which "Skeegie" had worn the night of the kidnaping.

Asked by a juror if he recognized the kidnaper's voice when he paid the ransom, Cash said the man had not spoken.

Inspector E. J. Connelley of the federal bureau of investigation testified to McCall's confession in virtually the same language used by J. Edgar Hoover yesterday in announcing it and related how McCall led them to the body while he still maintained innocence of everything except the writing of the notes and collection of the $10,000 ransom.

McCall was booked yesterday on an open charge—"Held for the state attorney."

headed golf club found hanging in the house.

At Brooke's side as he started for jail was his father, Colonel William Brooke, U. S. A., retired, who came here from his home in San Antonio, Tex.

The slain woman, Brooke's second wife, was an army nurse before her marriage.

Hicks Fort, prominent Columbus criminal lawyer acted as attorney for Brooke. He said he has not yet been definitely retained.

Commissioner Brown said he was not authorized to accept bond in capital cases.

Following the hearing, Fort issued an oral statement that "at the proper time the defense will be made known." Fort said Major Brooke wished to "express his heart-felt appreciation for the many telegrams of sympathy and support which have come to him from friends in all parts of the country."

Major Brooke was brought before the commissioner by United States Marshal G. W. Walker. Attorney Fort showed him to a seat before the desk. Brooke sat slumped slightly forward.

"Judge Brown, this is Major Brooke—Major Brooke, Judge Brown," said Fort.

They acknowledged the introduction. Silence.

The small office was ringed with attaches and newspapermen, who waited for a marshal to bring the complaint paper.

Buzz of a fan sounded through the room. The temperature was 97.

The complaint was brought. Brown read the charge that Major Brooke "did unlawfully and knowingly with malice aforethought, murder one Elizabeth S. Brooke in violation of title 18, U. S. C. A. 452."

Fort read it, arose and said: "As counsel for the defendant, I enter a plea of not guilty and waive preliminary hearing."

He signed a typewritten statement of it.

They stood. Fort made his statement for Brooke to news men. Asked for comment, Brooke nodded his head: "That's all I have to say."

The marshal placed handcuffs on the major and led him down a corridor to the marshal's office. Brooke wore a tan shirt, blue sport coat, pin striped white trousers, white shoes and socks.

Before and during the hearing he did not speak but smoked one cigarette after another as he waited to be called before the commissioner.

Mississippi, of the house conferees predicted a satisfactory compromise on the bill would be worked out over the week-end. The committee will meet formally Monday.

One house members expressed the view Mr. Roosevelt had been influenced by a senate amendment to vest the federal government with a full title of all reservoirs, flood control as well as power.

This amendment, with another giving the federal power commission instead of the army engineers authority to determine hydroelectric potentialities, was advocated by Senate Majority Leader Barkley, Democrat, Kentucky, presumably with presidential sanction.

House members said the proposed new policy on financing flood control reservoirs would not cut the 100 per cent local contributions now required for purely local works such as flood walls and levees. An amendment by Barkley, however, would extend the reduction to channel improvements for flood control.

WOMAN RECEIVES SHOTGUN WOUNDS

Sadie Wilson, 31, negro woman, was recovering from shotgun wounds in St. Francis sanitarium last night, while Rufus Heath, said to have shot the woman and who was arrested on a charge of drawing and displaying a dangerous weapon, was free under $100 bond.

The shooting was said to have occurred late Friday near the home of the negro on Bright Oak road near Louisville avenue. Heath shot the negro once with a single barrel shotgun in the back and neck as she was crossing a small bridge over a ditch, it was reported.

Heath, police said, reported he had been having trouble with the woman for some time and that she was threatening him when he got the gun and told her to leave his place which adjoins that of the negro. She reputedly continued advancing until she saw he intended to shoot, Heath allegedly reported, and then whirled to run. Heath said he was already pressing the trigger when she turned and was unable to keep the gun from discharging.

The negro woman said Heath had no cause to shoot her. She claimed Heath had previously held a lease on the property where she is now living, but that she and her husband had got a lease on the land last year and that Heath had "had it in for us ever since."

THAT UMPIRING

There has been considerable comment concerning umpiring in the Cotton States league this season. A hundred fans have told us that it's lousy. Yet the other day a baseball fan who knows the game thoroughly took particular pains to praise the brand of officiating we've had this year. "It's much better than the guessing we had last season," he said.

From our viewpoint, we can't agree with our friend who though the umps were okay. The officiating last year was pretty terrible, taken as a whole, but there seems to be no improvement this season. A scout for a major league club, for instance, was here a week ago and he was up in arms over the officiating he's seen around the circuit.

"It looks to me like you sports writers would do something about it," he said. "Give 'em the devil. They call 'em wrong on those young ball players and first thing you know, the boys are up there swinging at anything, to keep the umpire from calling 'em out on strikes."

Frankly, we don't believe it's up to the sports writers. The president of the league won't listen to any protests as far as his umpires are concerned, and that's that. He adopts the attitude that his umps are right and whatever the sports writers have to say about it is motivated by prejudice. It's the club owners who should do the squawking, and in no uncertain terms.

Umpire Thomason, who worked the Monroe-Pine Bluff game here Friday night, is one of the arbiters who is under fire. Thomason gained more or less nation-wide fame when he called a balk on Bobby Schang, Monroe catcher, at Pine Bluff a month or so ago and waved in the winning run from third base. Many writers have commented on Thomason's ruling, some pro and others con. Most of them agree that the umpire stretched a point when he donated the Judges the winning run. It's true that he was within the rules, but how many times does a catcher step out of his box to receive a ball when a batter is being walked intentionally? We've seen it happen fifty times in the local park, and we've yet to see an umpire call a balk on the catcher. Particularly, in such a crucial spot.

Thomason, incidentally, gave the poorest exhibition of ball-and-strike umpiring Friday night that we've seen in many a month.

With all the respect in the world we'd like to suggest to the league president that he hire umpires who have at least had baseball experience in the past. A diploma from the George Barr school at Hot Springs most certainly doesn't qualify a man to umpire in Class C baseball.

MONTGOMERY A PRO

Local boxing fans who followed the fortunes of the Northeast Center of L. S. U. mitt team last winter have wondered if and when Lloyd Montgomery, stellar heavyweight, would turn pro. The answer came out of Little Rock yesterday when it was announced that Montgomery would fight his first professional battle at Benton, Ark., on June 30. His opponent has not been selected. Benton is just a stone's throw from Bauxite, Montgomery's home town.

Northeast Center athletic officials and Montgomery's teammates were hopeful that Lloyd would forego a professional career and return to the Indians' squad next fall. But apparently the big fellow figures he can cash in on his fame and campaign among the money boys with more than average success.

Snyder Parham, stellar Northeast Center lightweight and fellow-townsman of Montgomery, told us the other night that he thought Monty might decline all professional offers and remain an amateur at least for another year. At the same time, Parham expressed the opinion that Montgomery's handlers should carry him slowly if he did decide to join the pro ranks.

"There's plenty of difference between amateur and professional fighting," Parham said. "I stay in pretty good shape the year 'round, but I know I couldn't step 10 rounds. Most amateurs who are used to three-round bouts are in the same boat. A boxer must advance by slow stages to be able to fight eight, ten or 15 rounds, and there's no exception. If Montgomery turns pro, I hope he's able to put away his opponent in the early rounds, because he may find it difficult to go the route."

Parham, who knows what he is talking about, said a mouthful. A boxer may be a whirlwind in three rounds but stepping ten is something else again. Here's hoping the lad they match with Montgomery isn't too tough.

Incidentally, the Indians should be plenty hard to beat in the ring again next winter. Captain Parham, who is about the classiest lightweight in college circles in the south, will head the list of battlers who will return for the 1938-39 campaign. Montgomery may be the only boxer lost from last year's squad, and from all reports, Jim Malone will have several heavyweights to take his place. They may not be as good as Monty but they're

U. S. TEAM WINS WIGHTMAN TITLE

Led By Helen Wills Moody, Americans Squelch British Players, 5-2

WIMBLEDON, Eng., June 11.—(AP)—The United States exerted its monopoly on the Wightman Cup for the eighth consecutive year today, when merciless Helen Wills Moody froze out Kay Stammers in the deciding match of the two-day international tennis series, 6-3, 3-6, 6-3.

The final score was 5 to 2. But after Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan of Boston had defeated Margot Lumb, 5-7, 6-2, 6-3, and Helen had beaten Miss Stammers, the last two matches merely were exhibitions.

In the third singles match Alice Marble whipped Peggy Scriven, 6-3, 3-6, 6-0, and in the concluding doubles Joan Ingram and Evelyn Dearman won from Mrs. Moody and Dorothy May Bundy, 6-2, 7-5.

High spot of the day was Miss Stammers' fight against Mrs. Moody. This was a battle of Mrs. Moody's style and experience against the courage of the petite English southpaw.

Helen took the first game on Kay's service, lost the second, then ran away with the set at 6-3. But Miss Stammers, gradually getting used to Mrs. Moody's pace, finally developed a cunning drop shot and from then on it was a battle.

In the second set Kay kept Helen racing in after these tricky, spinning teasers and, while she lost nearly as many points as she made with the shot, she did manage to break up the rhythm of Mrs. Moody's game.

Miss Stammers broke through in the sixth game, then kept thumping forehand drives back at the American veteran and won the set, 6-3.

Helen got a long rest because of the rain before the final set and, when play was resumed, took a 2-0 lead. Again a shower stopped play, and this time Miss Stammers came back with some of the finest driving of her career. But no matter what miracles she produced, Helen always could conjure up one more, and she won the set, 6-3, and the match.

Thos, in her first cup competition since 1932, the 33-year-old Californian gained two of the four United States singles points.

By winning the trophy again, the United States team brought the standing in the series, begun in 1923, to: United States 12, Britain 4.

PATTY BERG WINS TRANS-MISS TITLE

TULSA, Okla., June 11.—(AP)—Little Patty Berg of Minneapolis has her championship at last.

The red-headed stylist, often a runner-up, played her smartest golf today to defeat the veteran Mrs. Opal S. Hill of Kansas City, in the 36-hole final of the trans-Mississippi tourney, six and five.

Mrs. Hill made a great battle of it on the morning round, the first eighteen ending with Miss Berg one up.

It was a different story in the afternoon. Patty kept her skill on the fairways and found her putting touch while Mrs. Hill, who is 25 years older than her 20-year-old opponent, showed the strain of the game.

Finally they came to the thirteenth with Patty five up.

Boths made the slanting green in three. Mrs. Hill's putt from 15 feet barely missed and Patty's ball nearly stymied.

While the gallery of 2,000 held its breath, Patty firmly stroked in her 10 footer for a par four, winning the hole, the match and the championship.

BROWNS TRADE KNOTT TO WHITE SOX FOR BILL COX

ST. LOUIS, June 11.—(AP)—The St. Louis Browns announced tonight veteran Jack Knott, pitcher, had been traded to the Chicago White Sox for Bill Cox, youthful right hander.

The deal, which gave the Browns a pitcher seven years younger than the 31-year-old hurler they traded, was a straight player trade.

Knott has appeared in seven games this season for a record of one victory and two defeats. Cox has appeared in seven games and been charged with two defeats.

GOLF STARS TO COMPETE IN WESTERN OPEN MEET

Medal play in the 72-hole event will begin on the Westwood Country club course Tuesday and continue through Thursday.

EVANGELINE LEAGUE

(By Associated Press)

The Abbeville Athletics increased their lead in the Evangeline league Saturday night by an 8 to 2 win over the New Iberia Cardinals.

McKenna and Amaral yielded 10 hits while their mates were only able to get to Pulford, Athletic hurler, for half as many.

Second-place Lake Charles, meantime, dropped a 4 to 3 decision to the Rayne Rice Birds. Williams, chunking for the Skippers, held the Birds to five hits. But Kilgour, giving up nine safe knocks, kept them scattered.

In the only other contest of the day the Alexandria Aces bore down on Lafayette to win without trouble, 8 to 2. Even though the Aces made two errors while their rivals played perfect ball, it was the big stickwork that counted.

DEFENDER POSTS 184 TO OVERTAKE METZ FOR CROWN

Dick Blows Up On Final 18 And Comes In Six Strokes Behind Champ

By Alan Gould

DENVER, June 11.—(AP)—Ralph Guldahl, burly Texas-born professional from the Braidburn club of Madison, N. J., today won the American Open golf championship for the second straight year with a smashing last-round comeback. He spread-eagled the field with a final 69, two under Cherry Hills' par for a 72-hole total of 284 to become the first repeater since Bob Jones did in 1930.

Guldahl, trailing handsome Dick Metz of Chicago by four full strokes at the close of the third round this morning, came from behind with an electrifying finish to prove himself every inch a champion.

His victorious total, comprising successive rounds of 74, 70, 71 and 69, was three strokes short of the world record he set for major open championships in capturing the title at Oakland Hills for the first time with 281, but he won today by a much more impressive margin—six strokes.

This was the biggest winning margin in 17 years of United States Open championship history or since 1921, when Long Jim Barnes finished nine strokes in front of Walter Hagen at the Columbia club, Chevy Chase, Md.

Metz, who looked like a winner when he led Guldahl, 211 to 215 at the 54-hole mark, participated in a general blowup that blasted the chances of all but the defending champion. Metz finished second as he staggered to the finish with a last-round 79 for a total of 290.

There were only four contenders with a title chance when the surviving field of 60 began the last round, after Henry Picard, the Hershey, Pa., star, had fallen abruptly from the pace-setting position with a third-round 77.

Besides Metz and Guldahl, the quartet of potential winners included long-hitting Jimmie Hines, Metropolitan New York Open champion, and Emery Zimmerman, the slender 28-year-old "dark horse" from Portland, Ore., but the pressure quickly caught up with and disposed of all but the champion.

Hines folded quickly and wound up with an 83 for a total of 297. Zimmerman hung on longer, showing his gameness under fire, but the youngster from the Pacific northwest finally skidded to a 78 for a total of 294, 10 strokes behind the winner.

Meantime Guldahl, having rated himself exactly four strokes off the pace for three successive rounds, turned on the heat.

The issue was decided on the fourth, fifth and sixth holes. In that short stretch Guldahl picked up five strokes on the faltering Metz and three on Hines. The champion shot 4-4-2 on these holes against par of 4-5-3. Big Ralph Cooly dropped putts of 15 and nine feet for his birdies on the fifth and sixth.

Guldahl went onto the turn in 34, one under par. He had picked up no less than seven strokes on both Metz and Hines and four on Zimmerman. From there on only a crackup by the champion himself could affect the outcome. He never displayed the slightest trace of even bending under the pressure as a swarming crowd of nearly 10,000 spectators trailed him through a shower of rain to victory.

Guldahl applied the crowning touches to his great finish midway on the homecoming nine. To the roaring delight of one of the biggest crowds that has romped over the hills since Jones won his last Open at Interlachen eight years ago, big Ralph bagged a brace of birdies on the 13th and 14th. He struck long irons to the greens so accurately that he needed to get down putts of only seven and six feet for birdie threes.

Even Lady Luck rode with the winner. On the 13th, he went too boldly for the pin but his ball struck a slope of the green, nearly 20 feet from the cup, stopped in its tracks and rolled back more than half-way, just as if it were searching for the hole. His only mistakes on the last round put him in a trap on the eighth and over the green on the 18th. He had seven one-putt greens and everything so completely under control that all possible thrill was extracted from the stretch run.

Only two years ago Guldahl was close to real adversity, from a golfing as well as an economic viewpoint. He was just a big fellow who had muffed his chance in 1933, when he was runnerup to Johnny Goodman at Chicago. But he started a comeback that has now reached astonishing proportions and put his name in the game's exclusive hall of fame.

Only three players, up to today, had repeated in the National Open. Besides Jones they were Willie Anderson, who won three times in a row in 1903-05, and Jack McDermott, who turned the trick in 1911-12. Only in two previous tournaments has Guldahl's winning total been beaten—by his own record

LOMBARDI LEADS NATIONAL LEAGUE

Cincinnati Catcher Boosts Average To .359 To Top Hitting Rivals

NEW YORK, June 11.—(AP)—The catchers had the time of their lives in the National league hitting race last week.

The pitchers just couldn't seem to throw anything but base hits to the fellows who wear the mask and pads for a living. As a result, you find Ernie (Schnozzola) Lombardi of Cincinnati's Reds, leading the league in hitting in the standings up to and including Friday's games, Gabby Hartnett, the Cubs' backstop, in fifth place, and Babe Phelps, Brooklyn's roly-poly receiver, in sixth.

Lombardi, in fourth place a week ago, collected six hits in 15 appearances during the seven-day span ended Friday, boosted his average six points to .359 and took the lead from Brooklyn's Cookie Lavagetto. Cookie dropped five points to .356 and second place.

Hartnett, injured after banging out two hits in two appearances early in the week, gained 12 points and showed a fifth-place mark of .339. He was only two above Phelps, whose 19 trips to the plate resulted in nine hits, for a 31-point gain of .337.

The week's walloping also featured the beginning of a comeback on the part of Ducky-Wucky Medwick of the Cardinals, who climbed from eighth to fourth place in the hitting race, with a .345 mark, and made his first appearance among the runs-batted-in leaders. In this latter department, Mel Ott, the Giants' little larruper, took over the lead, having driven in 49 tallies so far this season, while Augie Galan of the Cubs, who set the pace a week ago, dropped to a second-place tie with Medwick, each with 41.

Buck McCormick, the Reds' rookie first baseman, was in third place in the batting parade with a .354 mark. The rest of the first 10 included Chuck Klein of the Phillies, seventh with 3356; Jojo Moore of the Giants and Herschel Martin of the Phillies, deadlocked for eighth with .335 each, and Enos Slaughter, Cardinals' rookie, tenth with .333.

In addition to the runs-batted-in department, several other divisions of individual play also saw changes among the leaders during the week.

Ott retained the lead in run-scoring, with 46, but Stan Hack of the Cubs took sole possession of second place, with 37. Ott's Giant teammate, Moore, took over the lead in base hits with 68 for the season, while McCormick dropped to second place with 67. Gus Suhr of the Pirates and Don Gutteridge of the Cardinals pulled up to make it a five-way tie with Johnny Rizzo of Pittsburgh, Ival Goodman of Cincinnati and Johnny Mize of St. Louis for first place in hitting triples. Each had five three-baggers to his credit.

McCormick still was out in front in doubles, with 17 two-baggers to 16 for the Phillies' Martin. Goodman retained the laurels as the No. 1 long-range clouter, with 13 homers, but Ott was hot on his trail with an even dozen.

The Cubs' speedsters, Augie Galan and Stan Hack, continued to run one-two in base stealing, Augie with six and Hack with five.

Danny MacFayden, the bespectacled Boston Bees' flinger, climbed to the top among the pitchers with five or more decisions. Deacon Danny had five victories and one defeat, while Carl Hubbell of the Giants, leader a week ago, dropped to a second place tie with Shutout Bill Lee of the Cubs and Mace Brown, Pittsburgh's ace relief hurler. Each had seven wins and two set-backs.

FINAL OF SERIES WITH PINE BLUFF STOPPED BY RAIN

Nugent And Howell Or Bieze To Pitch For Locals In Double Header

The cellar-dwelling Hot Springs Bathers, who were defeated in a pair of games here last Monday and Tuesday nights, return to Casino park today for a double header with Monroe's White Sox. The first game will start at 2:30 o'clock.

Last night's scheduled second game between the Sox and Pine Bluff Judges was postponed because of wet grounds. Yesterday afternoon's shower failed to wash away the contest, but it started raining again shortly after 6 o'clock and the diamond became too soggy to permit playing of the game.

The Bathers have undergone several changes since they appeared here the first of last week. Spike Hunter has been deposed as manager of the Arkansas club, and Hal Grant, veteran first baseman, is temporarily in charge of the club. It is rumored that Grant will be made permanent pilot. Grant played at Pine Bluff last season and was one of the most consistent hitters in the circuit. Hunter was offered a job as a member of the hurling corps but it isn't known whether he accepted.

The Bathers also are expected to show a new shortstop today. Duke Wells, former Monticello A. and M. college [illegible] and before that a baseball and football star at Hendrix [illegible] college, was signed [illegible] today. Two new [illegible] are expected to join the Bathers [illegible] tomorrow, coming [illegible] sponsor of the Hot Springs club.

Manager Grant is expected to start [illegible] against the White Sox.

THAT UMPIRING

There has been considerable comment concerning umpiring in the Cotton States league this season. A hundred fans have told us that it's lousy. Yet the other day a baseball fan who knows the game thoroughly took particular pains to praise the brand of officiating we've had this year. "It's much better than the guessing we had last season," he said.

From our viewpoint, we can't agree with our friend who though the umps were okay. The officiating last year was pretty terrible, taken as a whole, but there seems to be no improvement this season. A scout for a major league club, for instance, was here a week ago and he was up in arms over the officiating he's seen around the circuit.

"It looks to me like you sports writers would do something about it," he said. "Give 'em the devil. They call 'em wrong on those young ball players and first thing you know, the boys are up there swinging at anything, to keep the umpire from calling 'em out on strikes."

Frankly, we don't believe it's up to the sports writers. The president of the league won't listen to any protests as far as his umpires are concerned, and that's that. He adopts the attitude that his umps are right and whatever the sports writers have to say about it is motivated by prejudice. It's the club owners who should do the squawking, and in no uncertain terms.

Umpire Thomason, who worked the Monroe-Pine Bluff game here Friday night, is one of the arbiters who is under fire. Thomason gained more or less nation-wide fame when he called a balk on Bobby Schang, Monroe catcher, at Pine Bluff a month or so ago and waved in the winning run from third base. Many writers have commented on Thomason's ruling, some pro and others con. Most of them agree that the umpire stretched a point when he donated the Judges the winning run. It's true that he was within the rules, but how many times does a catcher step out of his box to receive a ball when a batter is being walked intentionally? We've seen it happen fifty times in the local park, and we've yet to see an umpire call a balk on the catcher. Particularly, in such a crucial spot.

Thomason, incidentally, gave the poorest exhibition of ball-and-strike umpiring Friday night that we've seen in many a month.

With all the respect in the world we'd like to suggest to the league president that he hire umpires who have at least had baseball experience in the past. A diploma from the George Barr school at Hot Springs most certainly doesn't qualify a man to umpire in Class C baseball.

MONTGOMERY A PRO

Local boxing fans who followed the fortunes of the Northeast Center of L. S. U. mitt team last winter have wondered if and when Lloyd Montgomery, stellar heavyweight, would turn pro. The answer came out of Little Rock yesterday when it was announced that Montgomery would fight his first professional battle at Benton, Ark., on June 30. His opponent has not been selected. Benton is just a stone's throw from Bauxite, Montgomery's home town.

Northeast Center athletic officials and Montgomery's teammates were hopeful that Lloyd would forego a professional career and return to the Indians' squad next fall. But apparently the big fellow figures he can cash in on his fame and campaign among the money boys with more than average success.

Snyder Parham, stellar Northeast Center lightweight and fellow-townsman of Montgomery, told us the other night that he thought Monty might decline all professional offers and remain an amateur at least for another year. At the same time, Parham expressed the opinion that Montgomery's handlers should carry him slowly if he did decide to join the pro ranks.

"There's plenty of difference between amateur and professional fighting," Parham said. "I stay in pretty good shape the year 'round, but I know I couldn't step 10 rounds. Most amateurs who are used to three-round bouts are in the same boat. A boxer must advance by slow stages to be able to fight eight, ten or 15 rounds, and there's no exception. If Montgomery turns pro, I hope he's able to put away his opponent in the early rounds, because he may find it difficult to go the route."

Parham, who knows what he is talking about, said a mouthful. A boxer may be a whirlwind in three rounds but stepping ten is something else again. Here's hoping the lad they match with Montgomery isn't too tough.

Incidentally, the Indians should be plenty hard to beat in the ring again next winter. Captain Parham, who is about the classiest lightweight in college circles in the south, will head the list of battlers who will return for the 1938-39 campaign. Montgomery may be the only boxer lost from last year's squad, and from all reports, Jim Malone will have several heavyweights to take his place. They may not be as good as Monty but they're

Guldahl Stages Rally To Retain National Open Title

U. S. TEAM WINS WIGHTMAN TITLE

Led By Helen Wills Moody, Americans Squelch British Players, 5-2

WIMBLEDON, Eng., June 11.—(AP)—The United States exerted its monopoly on the Wightman Cup for the eighth consecutive year today, when merciless Helen Wills Moody froze out Kay Stammers in the deciding match of the two-day international tennis series, 6-3, 3-6, 6-3.

The final score was 5 to 2. But after Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan of Boston had defeated Margot Lumb, 5-7, 6-2, 6-3, and Helen had beaten Miss Stammers, the last two matches merely were exhibitions.

In the third singles match Alice Marble whipped Peggy Scriven, 6-3, 3-6, 6-0, and in the concluding doubles Joan Ingram and Evelyn Dearman won from Mrs. Moody and Dorothy May Bundy, 6-2, 7-5.

High spot of the day was Miss Stammers' fight against Mrs. Moody. This was a battle of Mrs. Moody's style and experience against the courage of the petite English southpaw.

Helen took the first game on Kay's service, lost the second, then ran away with the set at 6-3. But Miss Stammers, gradually getting used to Mrs. Moody's pace, finally developed a cunning drop shot and from then on it was a battle.

In the second set Kay kept Helen racing in after these tricky, spinning teasers and, while she lost nearly as many points as she made with the shot, she did manage to break up the rhythm of Mrs. Moody's game.

Miss Stammers broke through in the sixth game, then kept thumping forehand drives back at the American veteran and won the set, 6-3.

Helen got a long rest because of the rain before the final set and, when play was resumed, took a 2-0 lead. Again a shower stopped play, and this time Miss Stammers came back with some of the finest driving of her career. But no matter what miracles she produced, Helen always could conjure up one more, and she won the set, 6-3, and the match.

Thos, in her first cup competition since 1932, the 33-year-old Californian gained two of the four United States singles points.

By winning the trophy again, the United States team brought the standing in the series, begun in 1923, to: United States 12, Britain 4.

PATTY BERG WINS TRANS-MISS TITLE

TULSA, Okla., June 11.—(AP)—Little Patty Berg of Minneapolis has her championship at last.

The red-headed stylist, often a runner-up, played her smartest golf today to defeat the veteran Mrs. Opal S. Hill of Kansas City, in the 36-hole final of the trans-Mississippi tourney, six and five.

Mrs. Hill made a great battle of it on the morning round, the first eighteen ending with Miss Berg one up.

It was a different story in the afternoon. Patty kept her skill on the fairways and found her putting touch while Mrs. Hill, who is 25 years older than her 20-year-old opponent, showed the strain of the game.

Finally they came to the thirteenth with Patty five up.

Boths made the slanting green in three. Mrs. Hill's putt from 15 feet barely missed and Patty's ball nearly stymied.

While the gallery of 2,000 held its breath, Patty firmly stroked in her 10 footer for a par four, winning the hole, the match and the championship.

BROWNS TRADE KNOTT TO WHITE SOX FOR BILL COX

ST. LOUIS, June 11.—(AP)—The St. Louis Browns announced tonight veteran Jack Knott, pitcher, had been traded to the Chicago White Sox for Bill Cox, youthful right hander.

The deal, which gave the Browns a pitcher seven years younger than the 31-year-old hurler they traded, was a straight player trade.

Knott has appeared in seven games this season for a record of one victory and two defeats. Cox has appeared in seven games and been charged with two defeats.

GOLF STARS TO COMPETE IN WESTERN OPEN MEET

ST. LOUIS, June 11.—(AP)—The country's leading professional golfers will battle par in the second major tournament in six days when they move here from Denver for the Western Open championship next week.

"Virtually all of the players who competed in the National Open will be in St. Louis," President Gorton Fauntleroy of the Western Golf association, wired from Denver tonight.

Medal play in the 72-hole event will begin on the Westwood Country club course Tuesday and continue through Thursday.

RETAINS TITLE

Ralph Guldahl, above, retained his National Open golf championship yesterday by finishing with a score of 284 over the Cherry Hills course at Denver.

(By Associated Press)

The Abbeville Athletics increased their lead in the Evangeline league Saturday night by an 8 to 2 win over the New Iberia Cardinals.

McKenna and Amaral yielded 10 hits while their mates were only able to get to Pulford, Athletic hurler, for half as many.

Second-place Lake Charles, meantime, dropped a 4 to 3 decision to the Rayne Rice Birds. Williams, chunking for the Skippers, held the Birds to five hits. But Kilgour, giving up nine safe knocks, kept them scattered.

In the only other contest of the day the Alexandria Aces bore down on Lafayette to win without trouble, 8 to 2. Even though the Aces made two errors while their rivals played perfect ball, it was the big stickwork that counted.

Himzl, Ace hurler, held Lafayette to five hits while his teammates hammered out twelve off Fatherree and Borbolla.

By Alan Gould

DENVER, June 11.—(AP)—Ralph Guldahl, burly Texas-born professional from the Braidburn club of Madison, N. J., today won the American Open golf championship for the second straight year with a smashing last-round comeback. He spread-eagled the field with a final 69, two under Cherry Hills' par for a 72-hole total of 284 to become the first repeater since Bob Jones did in 1930.

Guldahl, trailing handsome Dick Metz of Chicago by four full strokes at the close of the third round this morning, came from behind with an electrifying finish to prove himself every inch a champion.

His victorious total, comprising successive rounds of 74, 70, 71 and 69, was three strokes short of the world record he set for major open championships in capturing the title at Oakland Hills for the first time with 281, but he won today by a much more impressive margin—six strokes.

This was the biggest winning margin in 17 years of United States Open championship history or since 1921, when Long Jim Barnes finished nine strokes in front of Walter Hagen at the Columbia club, Chevy Chase, Md.

Metz, who looked like a winner when he led Guldahl, 211 to 215 at the 54-hole mark, participated in a general blowup that blasted the chances of all but the defending champion. Metz finished second as he staggered to the finish with a last-round 79 for a total of 290.

There were only four contenders with a title chance when the surviving field of 60 began the last round, after Henry Picard, the Hershey, Pa., star, had fallen abruptly from the pace-setting position with a third-round 77.

Besides Metz and Guldahl, the quartet of potential winners included long-hitting Jimmie Hines, Metropolitan New York Open champion, and Emery Zimmerman, the slender 28-year-old "dark horse" from Portland, Ore., but the pressure quickly caught up with and disposed of all but the champion.

Hines folded quickly and wound up with an 83 for a total of 297. Zimmerman hung on longer, showing his gameness under fire, but the youngster from the Pacific northwest finally skidded to a 78 for a total of 294, 10 strokes behind the winner.

Meantime Guldahl, having rated himself exactly four strokes off the pace for three successive rounds, turned on the heat.

The issue was decided on the fourth, fifth and sixth holes. In that short stretch Guldahl picked up five strokes on the faltering Metz and three on Hines. The champion shot 4-4-2 on these holes against par of 4-5-3. Big Ralph Cooly dropped putts of 15 and nine feet for his birdies on the fifth and sixth.

Guldahl went onto the turn in 34, one under par. He had picked up no less than seven strokes on both Metz and Hines and four on Zimmerman. From there on only a crackup by the champion himself could affect the outcome. He never displayed the slightest trace of even bending under the pressure as a swarming crowd of nearly 10,000 spectators trailed him through a shower of rain to victory.

Guldahl applied the crowning touches to his great finish midway on the homecoming nine. To the roaring delight of one of the biggest crowds that has romped over the hills since Jones won his last Open at Interlachen eight years ago, big Ralph bagged a brace of birdies on the 13th and 14th. He struck long irons to the greens so accurately that he needed to get down putts of only seven and six feet for birdie threes.

Even Lady Luck rode with the winner. On the 13th, he went too boldly for the pin but his ball struck a slope of the green, nearly 20 feet from the cup, stopped in its tracks and rolled back more than half-way, just as if it were searching for the hole. His only mistakes on the last round put him in a trap on the eighth and over the green on the 18th. He had seven one-putt greens and everything so completely under control that all possible thrill was extracted from the stretch run.

Only two years ago Guldahl was close to real adversity, from a golfing as well as an economic viewpoint. He was just a big fellow who had muffed his chance in 1933, when he was runnerup to Johnny Goodman at Chicago. But he started a comeback that has now reached astonishing proportions and put his name in the game's exclusive hall of fame.

Only three players, up to today, had repeated in the National Open. Besides Jones they were Willie Anderson, who won three times in a row in 1903-05, and Jack McDermott, who turned the trick in 1911-12. Only in two previous tournaments has Guldahl's winning total been beaten—by his own record

LOMBARDI LEADS NATIONAL LEAGUE

Cincinnati Catcher Boosts Average To .359 To Top Hitting Rivals

NEW YORK, June 11.—(AP)—The catchers had the time of their lives in the National league hitting race last week.

The pitchers just couldn't seem to throw anything but base hits to the fellows who wear the mask and pads for a living. As a result, you find Ernie (Schnozzola) Lombardi, of Cincinnati's Reds, leading the league in hitting in the standings up to and including Friday's games; Gabby Hartnett, the Cubs' backstop, in fifth place, and Blimp Phelps, Brooklyn's roly-poly receiver, in sixth.

Lombardi, in fourth place a week ago, collected six hits in 15 appearances during the seven-day span ended Friday, boosted his average six points to .359 and took the lead from Brooklyn's Cookie Lavagetto. Cookie dropped five points to .356 and second place.

Hartnett, injured after banging out two hits in two appearances early in the week, gained 12 points, and showed a fifth-place mark of .339. He was only two above Phelps, whose 19 trips to the plate resulted in nine hits, for a 31-point gain of .337.

The week's walloping also featured the beginning of a comeback on the part of Ducky-Wucky Medwick of the Cardinals, who climbed from eighth to fourth place in the hitting race, with a .345 mark, and made his first appearance among the runs-batted-in leaders. In this latter department, Mel Ott, the Giants' little larruper, took over the lead, having driven in 49 tallies so far this season, while Augie Galan of the Cubs, who set the pace a week ago, dropped to a second-place tie with Medwick, each with 41.

Buck McCormick, the Reds' rookie first baseman, was in third place in the batting parade, with a .354 mark. The rest of the first 10 included Chuck Klein of the Phillies, seventh with .3356; Jojo Moore of the Giants and Herschel Martin of the Phillies, deadlocked for eighth with .335 each, and Enos Slaughter, Cardinals' rookie, tenth with .333.

In addition to the runs-batted-in department, several other divisions of individual play also saw changes among the leaders during the week.

Ott retained the lead in run-scoring, with 46, but Stan Hack of the Cubs took sole possession of second place, with 37. Ott's Giant teammate, Moore, took over the lead in base hits with 68 for the season, while McCormick dropped to second place with 67. Gus Suhr of the Pirates and Don Gutteridge of the Cardinals pulled up to make it a five-way tie with Johnny Rizzo of Pittsburgh, Ival Goodman of Cincinnati and Johnny Mize of St. Louis for first place in hitting triples. Each had five three-baggers to his credit.

McCormick still was out in front in doubles, with 17 two-baggers to 16 for the Phillies' Martin. Goodman retained the laurels as the No. 1 long-range clouter, with 13 homers, but Ott was hot on his trail with an even dozen.

The Cubs' speedsters, Augie Galan and Stan Hack, continued to run one-two in base stealing, Augie with six and Hack with five.

Danny MacFayden, the bespectacled Boston Bees' flinger, climbed to the top among the pitchers with five or more decisions. Deacon Danny had five victories and one defeat, while Carl Hubbell of the Giants, leader a week ago, dropped to a second place tie with Shutout Bill Lee of the Cubs and Mace Brown, Pittsburgh's ace relief hurler. Each had seven wins and two set-backs.

FINAL OF SERIES WITH PINE BLUFF STOPPED BY RAIN

Nugent And Howell Or Bieza To Pitch For Locals In Double Header

The cellar-dwelling Hot Springs Bathers, who were defeated in a pair of games here last Monday and Tuesday nights, return to Casino park today for a double header with Monroe's White Sox. The first game will start at 2:30 o'clock.

Last night's scheduled second game between the Sox and Pine Bluff Judges was postponed because of wet grounds. Yesterday afternoon's shower failed to wash away the contest, but it started raining again shortly after 6 o'clock, and the diamond became too soggy to permit playing of the game.

The Bathers have undergone several changes since they appeared here the first of last week. Spike Hunter has been deposed as manager of the Arkansas club, and Hal Grant, veteran first baseman, is temporarily in charge of the club. It is rumored that Grant will be made permanent pilot. Grant played at Pine Bluff last season and was one of the most consistent hitters in the circuit. Hunter was offered a job as a member of the hurling corps but it isn't known whether he accepted.

The Bathers also are expected to show a new shortstop today. Duke Wells, former Monticello A. and M. college assistant coach and before that a baseball and football star at Henderson State Teachers college, was signed last week and he's expected to be in the lineup today. Two new hurlers also are expected to join the Bathers today or tomorrow, coming from the Detroit club, sponsor of the Hot Springs team.

Manager Grant is expected to start Ganish and Holmes against the White Sox.

VANDER MEER HURLS NO-HIT GAME FOR REDS

ROOKIE SUBDUES BEES TO WIN 3-0 IN HURLING DUEL

Cincinnati Strikeout Artist Walks But Three And Strikes Out Four

CINCINNATI, June 11.—(AP)—Young Johnny Vander Meer, the Cincinnati Reds' 23-year-old southpaw from Jersey, pitched himself into baseball's hall of fame today with a no-hit, no-run performance against the Boston Bees.

Only 28 men faced him, and only three reached first base, all on walks. None got past first as he came in with a 3-0 victory, the first National league no-hit nine-inning job since Daffy Dean turned the trick back in 1934, and the first southpaw to accomplish the stunt in the majors since Bob Burke did it for Washington's Senators in 1931.

After it was all over, teammates and fans carried the fast-balling strikeout artist off the field on their shoulders. Vander Meer seemed surprised.

"I had no idea of pitching a no-hitter," he told his mates. "My arm felt better as I went along, and I bore down harder, particularly in the late innings."

Young Johnny, a six-footer, showed the benefits of Will McKechnie's coaching this spring. He was erratic and wild last year.

Today's win was his sixth against two defeats.

PIRATES SHADE PHILS

PITTSBURGH, June 11.—(AP)—Bill Swift went the route for the first time this season today and hit a homer with two aboard to give the Pirates a 4 to 3 decision over the Phillies.

The Pirates collected only seven hits off Bucky Walters, while Swift gave up 11, but he was tight in the pinches, especially in the ninth, when, with the tying run on base and none out, he finished three batters in a row.

GIANTS, CARDS TIE

ST. LOUIS, June 11.—(AP)—The Cardinals just beat out the rain today to score two runs and tie the New York Giants at 2-all in a game cut to eight innings by a sudden downpour.

Don Gutteridge hit a homer to start off the eighth with the Cards first run. Then Jimmy Brown and Pepper Martin walked, and Ducky Medwick singled the tying run across.

The Giants had scored both their runs in the sixth.

Terry Moore, the Cards' outfielder, suffered a brain concussion when he crashed into the base of the center field stands in trying to field Kampouris' three-bagger in the sixth. He was carried unconscious from the field and later sent to a hospital for an X-ray examination.

DETROIT BATTERS HIT HARD TO COP GAME FROM NATS

Four Triples And Double Rattle Off Bengals' Bats In Easy Victory

WASHINGTON, June 11.—(AP)—Detroit capitalized on lengthy hitting and Roxie Lawson's pitching today to beat Washington, 7 to 2. Four triples and a double went into the Tigers' attack.

Detroit made the most off of Dutch Leonard's knuckle-ball pitching.

A'S SHADE BROWNS

PHILADELPHIA, June 11.—(AP)—The Athletics came from behind today to score a ninth-inning 5-to-4 victory over the St. Louis Browns.

With one out in the ninth, Bob Johnson doubled off Relief Pitcher Ed Linke. Chapman was purposely passed. Mule Haas fanned, but Wayne Ambler singled over second to score Johnson with the winning run and give George Caster his sixth win of the season.

JOE JUDGE, JR., IS ONE-MAN BALL SQUAD

WASHINGTON, June 11.—(AP)—Meet the one-boy ball team—10-year-old Joe Judge, Jr., son of the old Senator first sacker.

His team—the Joe Judge All Stars—was trailing by one run yesterday in a fierce struggle with the Tennesson Street Terrors.

Came the last of the ninth.

Joe Junior, first up, smacked a home run to tie the score. Then—after he got his breath—he ordered himself to pinch hit for his third baseman and drew a walk.

Reverting to strategy again, Joe stopped the game and ordered the boy he had just batted for to run in his place. This settled, Joe returned to the plate and pinch hit for his left fielder.

He won the game by blasting out a double, which scored the boy who was running for Joe, who had hit a double batting for somebody else.

In addition to naming the team the Joe Judge All Stars, Joe's other connections with the club are:

First baseman, team manager, captain and club president.

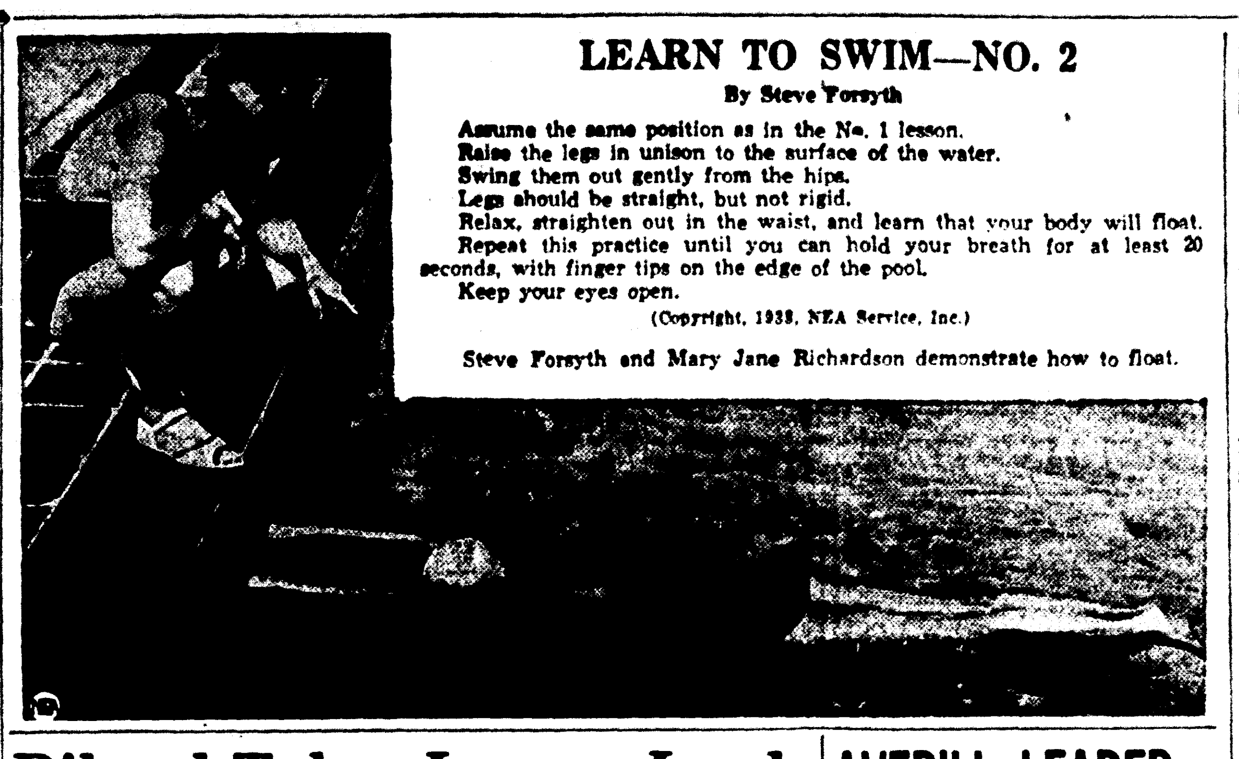
You must have a lot of extra time on your hands, Joey?

"Well," he said, "when I ain't too busy, I coach."

JENA ACES AND POLLOCK TO PLAY AT JENA TODAY

JENA, La., June 11.—(Special)—The Jena Aces will meet the strong Pollock All-Stars here Sunday afternoon at 2:30 on the local City Park diamond for the first game ever played between these two aggregations.

The Pollock team was organized only recently but has shown considerable power in their games so far this season and a large crowd is expected to the game. Jim Melvin, formerly with the Good Pine Cardinals, will hurl for the Jena team while the Pollock moundsman has not been announced.



LEARN TO SWIM—NO. 2

By Steve Forsyth

Assume the same position as in the No. 1 lesson.
Raise the legs in unison to the surface of the water.
Swing them out gently from the hips.
Legs should be straight, but not rigid.
Relax, straighten out in the waist, and learn that your body will float.
Repeat this practice until you can hold your breath for at least 20 seconds, with finger tips on the edge of the pool.
Keep your eyes open.

Steve Forsyth and Mary Jane Richardson demonstrate how to float.

Rikard Takes League Lead In Batting With .368 Mark

Former Monroe Player Displaces Teammate; Rhea Tops In Stolen Bases

Cully Rikard, Greenville outfielder, displaced his teammate, Johnny Cummings, as the Cotton States league's leading batter last week, according to averages released yesterday, which include games of June 8.

Rikard is clouting the ball for a mark of .368, whereas Cummings' average is .361. However, the Greenville club's team batting average of .288, with several of their sluggers hitting above the .300 mark, is the chief reason why the Buckshots are topping the circuit at present. In addition to Rikard and Cummings, Roberts and Farrell are hitting above .300, with Bagrosky and Grantham just three points shy of that mark.

Bishop, of Pine Bluff, and Tone, of El Dorado, have perfect pitching marks with four and three victories, respectively, apiece but the real leader is "Chick" Galeria, veteran Greenville southpaw, who has won nine games and lost but one.

Beauford Rhea, Monroe outfielder, is leading in stolen bases, with 24 pilfered sacks for the season. Les Rock is topping White Sox batsmen with a mark of .306, Les being the only Monroe player in the charmed .300 circle.

The Monroe club continued to lead the league in team fielding last week, but the Sox were forceed to share the top berth with El Dorado. The two teams are fielding .950. The locals advanced a notch in team batting, with Pine Bluff taking over the cellar berth in that respect. Monroe is batting at a .255 clip, with the Judges hitting only .246.

Following Rock in the individual batting averages are Bobby Schang, with .293; Johnny Conway, with .268; Rhea with .264, and Hank Taylor, with .253. Players hitting below .250 are not included in the averages.

AVERILL LEADER IN JUNIOR LOOP

Cleveland Outfielder Displaces Teammate As Top American Hitter

CHICAGO, June 11.—(AP)—Earl Averill, the Cleveland Indians' star outfielder, who has been among the top-ranking American league batsmen since the season opened, took over the No. 1 position this week at the expense of Teammate Hal Trosky.

Averill, according to averages which included games of Friday, added only one point to his plate percentage during the seven-day period, but his mark of .371 was five points better than Trosky's average of .366.

During the week, Averill banged out 11 hits in 29 times up while Trosky, husky Indian infielder, slumped 22 points with only seven safeties in 27 official appearances.

Jimmy Foxx, veteran Boston Red Sox first sacker who is enjoying a great come-back, added 23 points to his average to jump from sixth place to third among the first 10 batsmen of the junior circuit with a mark of .359.

Henry Steinbacher, the hard-hitting Chicago White Sox outfielder, was in fourth place with a .348 average. Other leaders were: Cecil Travis, Washington, .342; Buddy Myer, Washington, .341; Charley Gehringer, Detroit, .328; Bill Dickey, New York, .328; Frank Hayes, Philadelphia, .326; and Pete Fox, Detroit, .325.

Travis and young Buddy Lewis of Washington shared honors for the most hits, each with 66. Foxx had scored the most runs, 43, and again was the pace-maker for runs batted in with a total of 68. Joe Cronin, Boston pilot, had 16 doubles to his credit for top honors in that department.

A total of seven triples, Averill's mark, was high for three-base-hit laurels. Foxx took the home run lead away from Detroit's Hank Greenberg, the Boston slugger having made 18. Lewis of Washington set the stolen base pace with 10 sacks pilfered.

Robert Moses Grove, the Boston hurler who has been standing batters on their heads since the season opened, took the pitching leadership away from Detroit's ace, Vern Kennedy. Grove's record was 10 victories and one defeat, with Kennedy's mark nine victories and one setback.

Buck Newsom of St. Louis wasn't up among the leaders in games won and lost but his strikeout mark of 67 was tops for the league's flingers.

DIXIE TOURNEY OPENS TUESDAY

Tough Course Awaits Efforts Of Golfers Seeking Southern Crown

PONTE VEDRA BEACH, Fla., June 11.—(AP)—One of the toughest battlegrounds over which the tournament has been played awaited tonight a record gathering of some 250 golfers who will unloose a barrage of strokes in quest of the Southern Amateur championship.

Sectional, state, collegiate and a sprinkling of former champions were among entries for the 36th annual competition over the hazardous Ponte Vedra Country club course.

The 1938 field presented one of the most wide open fields in the history of this ancient championship. Tournament officials actually found it difficult to point out a single favorite.

Although the tournament does not get under way until Tuesday morning, with the first of two 18-hole qualifying rounds, many of the golfers had put in their appearance today, anxious to familiarize themselves with the many pitfalls on the course.

The second 18 holes of the qualifying is scheduled for Wednesday. The 32 low scorers will qualify for the championship flight. There will be two rounds of match play elimination each on Thursday and Friday. The 36-hole championship finals will be played on Saturday. All matches except the finals are at 18 holes.

There will be no defending champion, since Fred Haas, Jr., of New Orleans, who won a year ago by defeating Charlie Yates of Atlanta, the newly crowned British titleholder, is in Scotland.

The former champions have already filed their entries, Sam Perry, the little but dangerous contender and two-time winner from Birmingham, Ala., and Jack Munger, the Dallas, Tex., shotmaker who beat Haas for the crown two years ago at Memphis.

Louisiana and Georgia present two potential winners in Paul Leslie of Baton Rouge, the Louisiana champion and for the last two years runnerup in the National Intercollegiate, and Tommy Barnes of Atlanta, recent winner of the Southern Intercollegiate crown.

Alabama will have a strong threat in Scudday Horner, a Louisiana State university freshman who recently won the Montgomery Invitation. The Louisiana school also presents another contender in Henry Castillo, a young Spaniard from Tampa, Fla., who is the Southeastern conference champion.

In the qualifying round of 36 holes, the golfing brigade of simon pures will be firing at the record score of 70-69—139 established at Memphis two years ago by Haas.

JONESVILLE LIONS MEET CAMP BEAUREGARD TEAM

JONESVILLE, La., June 11.—(Special)—The Jonesville Lions, local semi-pro baseball team, after a month of inactivity, have reorganized under new management, and will play their first home game Sunday, when they meet Camp Beauregard at 3:30 p.m.

Sunday June 19 the Lions will meet the St. Joseph Tigers on the local diamond. This game will be watched with undue interest as Manager Wilds, of the Tigers, always put a good team on the field, and does his utmost to win every game.

Teams desiring to schedule games with the Lions are asked to communicate with H. P. Wheeler, Sr., Jonesville, La.

BUDGE CAPTURES AUTEUIL CROWN

Californian Completes 'Grand Slam' By Beating Menzel In Straight Sets

AUTEUIL, France, June 11.—(AP)—Don Budge completed his tennis "grand slam" today.

The red-headed Californian crushed Roderich Menzel, huge Czech, 6-3, 6-2, 6-4, to add the French hard courts championship to his American, British and Australian singles titles and become the first player in history to hold all four at the same time.

If that's not honor enough, Budge can aim at repeating his British and American championship victories later this summer and thus win all four singles crowns in the same year.

Menzel did not belong on the same court with Budge today. After the Czech had cracked his service for a 3-2 lead in the opening set, Budge stormed the net and put over a series of winners that left Menzel helpless.

Menzel came back to give the American a run for his money in the final set. The Czech put over four service aces to win the opening game and held Budge all even through the first eight games.

Budge became the seventh foreigner, but the first American, to win the French title. Tomorrow he and Gene Mako will seem to annex the doubles title in a battle with the French team of Bernard Destremeau and Yvon Petra.

The women's singles championship went to France's veteran No. 1, Mme. Simone Mathieu, who defeated Nelly Adamson of Belgium, 6-0, 6-3.

What will you give Dad?

Give Dad Arrow shirts—in white and fancy patterns, Arrows are his weakness.

He's keen about their special fit—and the non-popping buttons. (Arrow buttons are anchored, not just attached.) Sanforized—guaranteed not to shrink. $2 and up.

P. S. Other recommendations — Arrow ties, handkerchiefs and underwear.

Cincinnati Strikeout Artist Walks But Three And Strikes Out Four

CINCINNATI, June 11.—(AP)—Young Johnny Vander Meer, the Cincinnati Reds' 23-year-old southpaw from Jersey, pitched himself into baseball's hall of fame today with a no-hit, no-run performance against the Boston Bees.

Only 28 men faced him, and only three reached first base, all on walks. None got past first as he came in with a 3-0 victory, the first National league no-hit nine-inning job since Daffy Dean turned the trick back in 1934, and the first southpaw to accomplish the stunt in the majors since Bob Burke did it for Washington's Senators in 1931.

After it was all over, teammates and fans carried the fast-balling strike-out artist off the field on their shoulders. Vander Meer seemed surprised.

"I had no idea of pitching a no-hitter," he told his mates. "My arm felt better as I went along, and I bore down harder, particularly in the late innings.

Young Johnny, a six-footer, showed the benefits of Will McKechnie's teaching this spring. He was erratic and wild last year.

Today's win was his sixth against two defeats.

PIRATES SHADE PHILS

PITTSBURGH, June 11.—(AP)—Bill Swift went the route for the first time this season today and hit a homer with two aboard to give the Pirates a 4 to 3 decision over the Phillies.

The Pirates collected only seven hits off Bucky Walters, while Swift gave up 11, but he was tight in the pinches, especially in the ninth, when, with the tying run on base and none out, he finished three batters in a row.

GIANTS, CARDS TIE

ST. LOUIS, June 11.—(AP)—The Cardinals just beat out the rain today to score two runs and tie the New York Giants at 2-all in a game cut to eight innings by a sudden downpour.

Don Gutteridge hit a homer to start off the eighth with the Cards first run. Then Jimmy Brown and Pepper Martin walked, and Ducky Medwick singled the tying run across.

The Giants had scored both their runs in the sixth.

Terry Moore, the Cards' outfielder, suffered a brain concussion when he crashed into the base of the center field stands in trying to field Kampouris' three-bagger in the sixth. He was carried unconscious from the field and later sent to a hospital for an X-ray examination.

JOE JUDGE, JR., IS ONE-MAN BALL SQUAD

WASHINGTON, June 11.—(AP)—Meet the one-boy ball team—10-year-old Joe Judge, Jr., son of the old Senator first sacker.

His team—the Joe Judge All Stars—was trailing by one run yesterday in a fierce struggle with the Tennesson Street Terrors.

Came the last of the ninth.

Joe Junior, first up, smacked a home run to tie the score. Then—after he got his breath—he ordered himself to pinch hit for his third baseman and drew a walk.

Reverting to strategy again, Joe stopped the game and ordered the boy he had just batted for to run in his place. This settled, Joe returned to the plate and pinch hit for his left fielder.

He won the game by blasting out a double, which scored the boy who was running for Joe, who had hit a double batting for somebody else.

In addition to naming the team the Joe Judge All Stars, Joe's other connections with the club are:

First baseman, team manager, captain and club president.

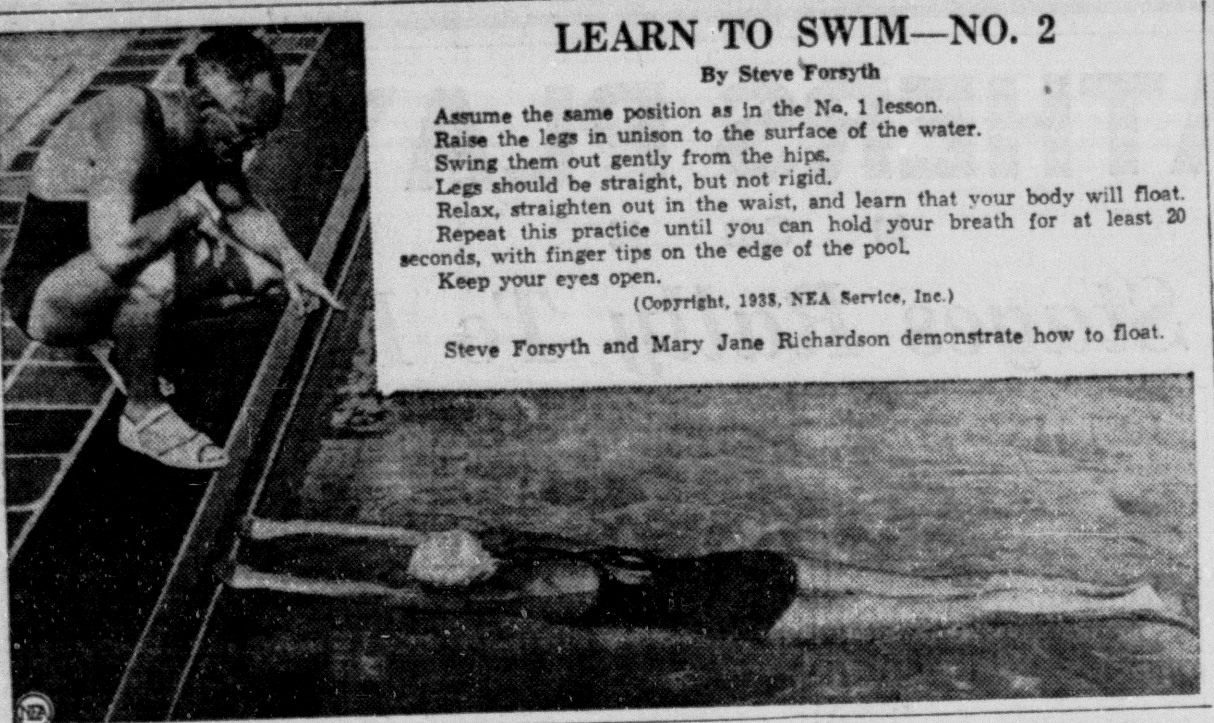
You must have a lot of extra time on your hands, Joey?

"Well," he said, "when I ain't too busy, I coach."

JENA ACES AND POLLOCK TO PLAY AT JENA TODAY

JENA, La., June 11.—(Special)—The Jena Aces will meet the strong Pollock All-Stars here Sunday afternoon at 2:30 on the local City Park diamond for the first game ever played between these two aggregations.

The Pollock team was organized only recently but has shown considerable power in their games so far this season and a large crowd is expected to the game. Jim Melvin, formerly with the Good Pine Cardinals, will hurl for the Jena team while the Pollock moundsman has not been announced.



LEARN TO SWIM—NO. 2

By Steve Forsyth

Assume the same position as in the No. 1 lesson.

Raise the legs in unison to the surface of the water.

Swing them out gently from the hips.

Legs should be straight, but not rigid.

Relax, straighten out in the waist, and learn that your body will float.

Repeat this practice until you can hold your breath for at least 20 seconds, with finger tips on the edge of the pool.

Keep your eyes open.

Rikard Takes League Lead In Batting With .368 Mark

Former Monroe Player Displaces Teammate; Rhea Tops In Stolen Bases

Cully Rikard, Greenville outfielder, displaced his teammate, Johnny Cummings, as the Cotton States league's leading batter last week, according to averages released yesterday, which include games of June 8.

Rikard is clouting the ball for a mark of .368, whereas Cummings' average is .361. However, the Greenville club's team batting average of .288, with several of their sluggers hitting above the .300 mark, is the chief reason why the Buckshots are topping the circuit at present. In addition to Rikard and Cummings, Roberts and Farrell are hitting above .300, with Bagrosky and Grantham just three points shy of that mark.

Bishop, of Pine Bluff, and Tone, of El Dorado, have perfect pitching marks with four and three victories, respectively, apiece but the real leader is "Chick" Galeria, veteran Greenville southpaw, who has won nine games and lost but one.

Beauford Rhea, Monroe outfielder, is leading in stolen bases, with 24 pilfered sacks for the season. Les Rock is topping White Sox batsmen with a mark of .306, Les being the only Monroe player in the charmed .300 circle.

The Monroe club continued to lead the league in team fielding last week, but the Sox were forceed to share the top berth with El Dorado. The two teams are fielding .950. The locals advanced a notch in team batting, with Pine Bluff taking over the cellar berth in that respect. Monroe is batting at a .255 clip, with the Judges hitting only .246.

Following Rock in the individual batting averages are Bobby Schang, with .293; Johnny Conway, with .268; Rhea with .264, and Hank Taylor, with .253. Players hitting below .250 are not included in the averages.

The averages:

AVERILL LEADER IN JUNIOR LOOP

Cleveland Outfielder Displaces Teammate As Top American Hitter

CHICAGO, June 11.—(AP)—Earl Averill, the Cleveland Indians' star outfielder, who has been among the top-ranking American league batsmen since the season opened, took over the No. 1 position this week at the expense of Teammate Hal Trosky.

Averill, according to averages which included games of Friday, added only one point to his plate percentage during the seven-day period, but his mark of .371 was five points better than Trosky's average of .366.

During the week, Averill banged out 11 hits in 29 times up while Trosky, husky Indian infielder, slumped 22 points with only seven safeties in 27 official appearances.

Jimmy Foxx, veteran Boston Red Sox first sacker who is enjoying a great come-back, added 23 points to his average to jump from sixth place to third among the first 10 batsmen of the junior circuit with a mark of .359.

Henry Steinbacher, the hard-hitting Chicago White Sox outfielder, was in fourth place with a .348 average. Other leaders were: Cecil Travis, Washington, .342; Buddy Myer, Washington, .341; Charley Gehringer, Detroit, .328; Bill Dickey, New York, .328; Frank Hayes, Philadelphia, .326; and Pete Fox, Detroit, .325.

Travis and young Buddy Lewis of Washington shared honors for the most hits, each with 66. Foxx had scored the most runs, 43, and again was the pace-maker for runs batted in with a total of 68. Joe Cronin, Boston pilot, had 16 doubles to his credit for top honors in that department.

A total of seven triples, Averill's mark, was high for three-base-hit laurels. Foxx took the home run lead away from Detroit's Hank Greenberg, the Boston slugger having made 18. Lewis of Washington set the stolen base pace with 10 sacks pilfered.

Robert Moses Grove, the Boston hurler who has been standing batters on their heads since the season opened, took the pitching leadership away from Detroit's ace, Vern Kennedy. Grove's record was 10 victories and one defeat, with Kennedy's mark nine victories and one setback.

Buck Newsom of St. Louis wasn't up among the leaders in games won and lost but his strikeout mark of 67 was tops for the league's flingers.

DIXIE TOURNEY OPENS TUESDAY

Tough Course Awaits Efforts Of Golfers Seeking Southern Crown

PONTE VEDRA BEACH, Fla., June 11.—(AP)—One of the toughest battlegrounds over which the tournament has been played awaited tonight a record gathering of some 250 golfers who will unloose a barrage of strokes in quest of the Southern Amateur championship.

Sectional, state, collegiate and a sprinkling of former champions were among entries for the 36th annual competition over the hazardous Ponte Vedra Country club course.

The 1938 field presented one of the most wide open fields in the history of this ancient championship. Tournament officials actually found it difficult to point out a single favorite.

Although the tournament does not get under way until Tuesday morning, with the first of two 18-hole qualifying rounds, many of the golfers had put in their appearance today, anxious to familiarize themselves with the many pitfalls on the course.

The second 18 holes of the qualifying is scheduled for Wednesday. The 32 low scorers will qualify for the championship flight. There will be two rounds of match play elimination each on Thursday and Friday. The 36-hole championship finals will be played on Saturday. All matches except the finals are at 18 holes.

There will be no defending champion, since Fred Haas, Jr., of New Orleans, who won a year ago by defeating Charlie Yates of Atlanta, the newly crowned British titleholder, is in Scotland.

The former champions have already filed their entries, Sam Perry, the little but dangerous contender and two-time winner from Birmingham, Ala., and Jack Munger, the Dallas, Tex., shotmaker who beat Haas for the crown two years ago at Memphis.

Louisiana and Georgia present two potential winners in Paul Leslie of Baton Rouge, the Louisiana champion and for the last two years runnerup in the National Intercollegiate, and Tommy Barnes of Atlanta, recent winner of the Southern Intercollegiate crown.

Alabama will have a strong threat in Scudday Horner, a Louisiana State university freshman who recently won the Montgomery Invitation. The Louisiana school also presents another contender in Henry Castillo, a young Spaniard from Tampa, Fla., who is the Southeastern conference champion.

In the qualifying round of 36 holes, the golfing brigade of simon pures will be firing at the record score of 70-69—139 established at Memphis two years ago by Haas.

JONESVILLE LIONS MEET CAMP BEAUREGARD TEAM

JONESVILLE, La., June 11.—(Special)—The Jonesville Lions, local semi-pro baseball team, after a month of inactivity, have reorganized under new management, and will play their first home game Sunday, when they meet Camp Beauregard at 3:30 p.m.

H. P. Wheeler, local business man, succeeds Dalton Faircloth as manager of the local team and is anxious to book as many games possible with other semi-pro teams of the state.

Sunday June 19 the Lions will meet the St. Joseph Tigers on the local diamond. This game will be watched with undue interest as Manager Wilds, of the Tigers, always put a good team on the field, and does his utmost to win every game.

Teams desiring to schedule games with the Lions are asked to communicate with H. P. Wheeler, Sr., Jonesville, La.

BUDGE CAPTURES AUTEUIL CROWN

Californian Completes 'Grand Slam' By Beating Menzel In Straight Sets

AUTEUIL, France, June 11.—(AP)—Don Budge completed his tennis "grand slam" today.

The red-headed Californian crushed Roderich Menzel, huge Czech, 6-3, 6-2, 6-4, to add the French hard courts championship to his American, British and Australian singles titles and become the first player in history to hold all four at the same time.

If that's not honor enough, Budge can aim at repeating his British and American championship victories later this summer and thus win all four singles crowns in the same year.

Menzel did not belong on the same court with Budge today. After the Czech had cracked his service for a 3-2 lead in the opening set, Budge stormed the net and put over a series of winners that left Menzel helpless.

Menzel came back to give the American a run for his money in the final set. The Czech put over four service aces to win the opening game and held Budge all even through the first eight games.

Budge became the seventh foreigner, but the first American, to win the French title. Tomorrow he and Gene Mako will seem to annex the doubles title in a battle with the French team of Bernard Destremeau and Yvon Petra.

The women's singles championship went to France's veteran No. 1, Mme. Simone Mathieu, who defeated Nelly Adamson of Belgium, 6-0, 6-3.

STYLES OF SCHMELING AND LOUIS UNCHANGED

JOE'S REACTION TO FIRST RIGHT WILL BE PAYOFF

Boxing Expert Figures If Blow Knocks Negro Down, He'll Be Beaten

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Gayle Talbot, Associated Press sports reporter at the training camps of Max Schmeling and Joe Louis, has covered many of the leading sports events in this country and Europe in recent years. In the following story he tells how the two fighters are being trained for the world's heavyweight championship bout and gives interesting possibilities on how the battle will be fought.)

By Gayle Talbot

NEW YORK, June 11.—(AP)—When Joe Louis and Max Schmeling face each other again in the glare of the lights at Yankee stadium a week from Wednesday night and start shuffling and fiddling around for the first opening, they will look just like they did on that memorable evening two Junes ago.

Neither has changed to outward appearances. Max, at 32, doesn't look a day older, and he still fights in the same precise, methodical fashion that once carried him to the world championship and later blasted Louis into defeat.

Louis has a more mature look about his jowls and seems a little fiercer at times when his sparring partners stir him up over at Pompton Lakes, but outside of that he is the same Joe—a devastating puncher with a curious inability to protect his chin from a good right.

They will look the same, but this time the crowd stretching far up under the dark eaves of the stadium will be filled with a tense expectancy that was lacking the other time.

Instead of wondering how long Max can last, they will be watching breathlessly for Schmeling right fist to explode on the champion's chops, and to see if Joe has learned to take it.

At that instant, when Max connects for the first time, they will know whether he is to return to Germany in triumph as the first fighter in history to regain the heavyweight championship, or is to take a beating from a black man.

Louis' reaction to that first right should be the pay-off. If it knocks him down or even confuses him, then Schmeling will win, for this one great punch of his is the cruellest, most unerring weapon in the business.

But if the 24-year-old champion takes it standing up, and merely blinks his eyes, as he solemnly promises he will do, then Schmeling is in for a bad evening.

This observer, after watching Schmeling train, honestly doesn't believe that Louis or any man living can absorb a half-dozen of the German's rights without being seriously damaged. And Louis, unless he sails in and stops the Schlager right off the bat, will sample more of them than a half-dozen. Many more.

True, Max Baer once knocked the German silly so quick that some of the customers in the back rows scarcely had gotten seated. But Schmeling is a vastly improved man in every way since that blistering hot night, and he is very hard to hit solidly.

Louis, furthermore, still is not an aggressive fighter, despite all the teachings and pleading of his trainer, old Jack Blackburn.

Schmeling in action looks like he always did, except that his right seems to dart out a trifle faster, and more often. His weight, about 193, hasn't varied more than a pound or two for several years. He still looks youthful and fresh and hasn't a mark to show for 14 years of fighting except an old scar on his bushy left eyebrow.

When he sidles out against Louis the crowd will see the same wide leg-spread which keeps him far back and makes him such a difficult target. His left shoulder will be high, pointing at Louis, and his poisonous right fist will be cocked and resting on his chest. His strange, unorthodox stance has made him pigeon-toed.

Despite his absolute confidence that he can stop Louis again, Max asserts this won't make him careless. He is determined to score a knockout, but he also has plenty of respect for the dynamite in Joe's fists.

"No," he says. "Like always I will be careful. I will fight with my left until Louis makes his first mistake, then it will be all over maybe."

There is an outside chance that Louis, who by nature is a counter-fighter like Max, will attempt to keep on top of his man this time and try to beat him down with youth and strength and the sheer fury of his attack.

He is trying hard in training to make himself an in-fighter, a hustling, bustling ringman like Henry Armstrong, but it is our duty to report that the only apparent resemblance between them still is in their color. Joe plainly doesn't have his heart in the effort.

The consensus is that if he does try such tactics on Schmeling he will run into a series of rights that will jar his back teeth, and that he quickly will revert to his natural style of fighting, standing nearly erect and jabbing away at Schmeling's nose.

His left jab still is about the best there ever has been. Even the old-timers who will fight you for a slighting reference to John L. Sullivan are willing to concede that much. It is a beautiful blow, delivered with no apparent effort but with a snap on the end that tears men's faces apart.

It is the one great blow he always had, even as an amateur, says John Roxborough, co-manager with Julian Black of the erstwhile Bomber. Most of Joe's other equipment has been painstakingly developed by Jack Blackburn.

If Louis is seriously stung early in the fight, he might even try to stay clear away from Schmeling and jab out a victory. He did it to Tommy Farr, the Welshman, last autumn, after he had cracked his right hand. The other time against Schmeling he kept right on throwing hooks from too great a distance, and every time he missed he nearly got his noggin knocked off. He says he knows better this time. Maybe he does.

Whatever Joe's tactics, Schmeling is dead certain he will reach his chin with a right sooner or later. His sparring partners will bet you on it. And they also will bet a few bob that Louis doesn't survive it.

"I see where Joe is telling people he's a grown man now and not no baby like he was two years ago," one of them remarked. "Boy, boy! He'll feel older when that guy Max cracks him good."

The present odds of 8 to 5 in Louis' favor reflect the careful judgment of those who think the past two years are bound to have taken something out of the veteran German. They doubt, frankly, that he can stand a really hot pace for 15 rounds, and they call your attention to the recent fate of Barney Ross.

Maybe so, but you can't tell it from watching Max run up and down the Adirondack hills for hours at a time or from studying his workouts. Until he reached the peak of his training last week he was boxing eight fast rounds and then doing another four rounds of exercises without drawing a deep breath. If he isn't even a better man physically than he was two summers ago he has a lot of persons fooled.

Including, incidentally, this observer.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By Eddie Brietz

SPECULATOR, N. Y., June 11.—(AP)—Except for Ferndale (which was kept exclusive for Barney Ross) this is the most ideal fight camp your agent ever has covered. . . . We were here in 1936 when Max Baer trained for Louis, and hated to leave. . . . Max Schmeling likes it so well he has trained here for several of his important jousts. . . . Until Baer came a cropper against Louis, the Osborne brothers, who run the town, say it had never turned out a loser. . . . Max's dismal exhibition against the Bomber not only broke the collective hearts of the Osbornes, who own the hotel, general store, bar and most of the real estate, but it left most of the mountain folk hereabouts flat. . . . They go to town with all they've got for the boys who train at Speculator.

The air is tops, the golfing good and it is nice to be back among people who know how to flavor country sausage with a bit of garlic, turn out pancakes (with no limit on the molasses) and give you vegetables (cooked in fatback) and biscuits and corn bread almost as good as the kind mother used to turn out. . . . Yum, yum.

Schmeling seems better satisfied here, too. . . . He is more democratic and approachable. . . . Instead of burying himself far back in the woods as he did at Napanoch while prepping for his first fight with Louis, he now hangs his hat in a cottage almost directly across the big road from the open air arena where he works. . . . Passing autoists can see him reading on the porch or perhaps shooting arrows at poor Otto Petri, his closest friend, in the yard. . . . Mebbe this bit of friendliness has been responsible for the crowds of from 3,000 to 5,000 paid customers who have been watching his Saturday and Sunday workouts.

Today Max was both boxer and lawyer. . . . The Hon. Brigadier-General John J. Phelan, head of the boxing commission, was here and Max made a personal plea for the reinstatement of Joe (Yussel the Muscle) Jacobs, his American representative. . . . Herr Jacobs is in the commission's doghouse at present and will be unable to second and (he hopes) Heil Schmeling June 22 unless the ban is lifted. . . . Max Machon, the trainer, does most of the talking for the firm. . . . "Is Max in shape?" . . . "Ja." . . . "Can he repeat over Louis?" . . . "Ach, Ja, ja!" . . . "Why?" . . . "He win before, he win again, ain't it?" . . . As for Schmeling, he simply says: "You go ask Joe Louis is he afraid of me?"

Max is training perfectly. . . . As a matter of fact he reached his peak the middle of this week. . . . He boxes well and his legs respond nicely. . . . He is as confident as ever. . . . But before you lay down that dough, remember that's what they said about Barney Ross.

MARBLES CHAMPS MEET AT GULFPORT MONDAY

GULFPORT, Miss., June 11.—(AP)—Seventeen marbles players, all kingpins in their own home towns, will meet here Monday in the annual southern marbles tournament.

The first three days will be devoted to preliminaries with the 17 champions divided into three leagues. The three league winners meet in the semi-finals Thursday morning and the battle for the title starts at noon.

The southern champion will go to Wildwood, N. J., for the eastern tournament on June 26. After a week there as a guest he will tie up with the champs from the east, north and west.

The tournament here, sponsored by newspapers and civic organizations, will be directed by Paul W. Van Camp of Pittsburgh. R. E. Shelton, city recreation director of Birmingham, will be supervisor of play.

SOFTBALL LOOP FORMED BY JENA ENTHUSIASTS

JENA, La., June 11.—(Special)—A business men's softball organization has been formed here by W. F. Mackey, local telephone man, and E. W. Plummer, LaSalle parish school supervisor, to give the local citizens a chance for exercise and recreation.

Games are played every afternoon between two chosen teams at 5:00 p.m., and, according to the two managers, games will be scheduled with other business men from surrounding towns.

Vols Recruit Fast Semi-Pro Team From Louisiana Tech And Home Talent

RUSTON, La., June 11.—(Special)—Sporting one of the fastest semi-pro ball clubs in this section, the Ruston Volunteers, composed of college boys from Louisiana Tech and local talent, most of whom are former college players, have just completed a run-away race for first half title honors in the Ouachita Valley league, a four team industrial loop. The club, piloted by Roy Fraser, veteran semi-pro enthusiast here, lost but four games in clinching the first half flag, with two yet to be played. Their margin was four games last Friday.

Lawrence "Lefty" Hinton, ace of the 1937-38 Tech mound staff, paced the Vols to their first league honors in six years, winning seven and losing but two. Both of his losses were received after relieving one of his faltering mates. In the second loss, he pitched to but three men after rescuing Zere Lewis, husky righthander now a member of the Shreveport Sports, in the twelfth inning. His earned runs allowed for the 65 innings he worked were 21, while he whiffed a total of 39 batters and walked but 12. His best day's work was in the flag-clincher when he gave up but five hits in beating Crossett 10-1.

Lewis, before leaving to join the Sports, was in second place among the pitchers, with three victories against but one defeat. In 47 innings he gave up 14 earned runs, whiffed 21 and walked only eight. In his first time out, he worked ten innings against Hodge, contributing two doubles and a game winning home run in addition to his pitching.

In fielding and hitting, the Vols were paced by Berry "Dick" Hinton, older brother of the Vol southpaw, and Jimmy Sumrall, recently named captain of the 1939 Tech baseball squad. Both wound up with averages of .365, with runs batted in honors also being even at 18 each. Hinton's two doubles, four triples and one home run were topped by Sumrall with four doubles, two triples and three round-trippers.

Sam Gooch, 200 pound freshman at Tech and nephew of the veteran Johnny Gooch, former National league catcher, later manager of the Birmingham Barons, led all the catchers in the league with a batting average of .290 and an errorless game behind the plate. In addition to his handling of 70 strikeouts perfectly, he pulled down 21 pop flies without a bobble.

Base stealing honors went to Dick Hinton, who pulled the trick ten times, three of which were of home plate, twice with the winning run. On two occasions he stole second and third consecutively, and upon one occasion, walked, stole second, third and home consecutively. Not an unusually fast man, he has the knack of taking advantage of every motion made by the pitcher, or fielder, and has yet to be thrown out in an attempted steal.

Batting and pitching averages for the team, during the first 16 games during which the Vols clinched the first half title, follow:

rection of Manager Doug Taitt, will start Tex Nugent, veteran righthander, in the first game. Taitt said he was undecided on his second hurler, but indicated that Bill Howell or Dick Bieze, the latter a lefthander, would get the assignment. However, Taitt can call on any of his hurlers except Al Bronkhurst, who was beaten by Pine Bluff Friday night, and they should be ready. John Yellovic worked a couple of innings Friday and "Red" Andrews pitched one frame, but they may be used today.

Last night's postponement was the third of the week for the White Sox. Games with Clarksdale were rained out Wednesday and Thursday nights.

Doyle Brannan, third baseman signed Thursday, may see action today. "Doodle" Harper was used at third base against Pine Bluff Friday night, but Brannan is ticketed for that post when Harper leaves and he may be used in one of the games today. Taitt said. The outfield will consist of Beauford Rhea, Frank Rolek, new gardener, and Manager Taitt. Against righthanded hurlers the Monroe skipper may put Les Rock in right field. If so, he will shift Rhea to center and send Rolek to the bench. Rock is a lefthanded batter.

Following today's double header with Hot Springs, the White Sox will go to Greenville Monday for two games there and then return to the home park for eight more games here.

(By Associated Press)

Rainy weather caused postponement of two games in the Cotton States league Saturday but the Hot Springs Bathers kept in their stumbling stride by dropping an 8 to 5 contest to El Dorado.

The Bathers matched the number of their runs with their errors.

It was a pleasant ball game for the Lions who smacked out 14 hits off Day and Goff, the Bather hurlers.

On the other end of the league heap the Greenville Buckshots, top-flight nine, took a 6 to 1 clubbing from Helena. The Bucks got to Schuessler, Seaporter hurler, for five hits. His mates made only one more than that off Williams. But the Bucks weren't able to turn any of their safeties into a tally until the final frame.

Then Schuessler tightened up and put the ball game in his pocket.

The postponed games were those scheduled between Clarksdale and Greenwood and between Pine Bluff and Monroe.

281 of last year and by Tony Manero's victorious 282, the previous record in 1936 at Baltusrol.

He collected the $1,000 prize money and hastened off to give a radio talk as the first step in a campaign he hopes may enrich him by $25,000 worth of byproducts.

Metz, whose 54-hole total of 211 equalled the championship record, had a two-stroke margin of second-place safety with his 290 total. Trailing him, in a tie for third place at 292, were Tony Penna of Dayton, O., who came through with a last-round 68 to cut himself a bigger slice of the money than he expected, and Harry Cooper, the hard-luck king. Cooper finished with 71 for 292, after blowing his chances with a third-round 76.

There was another two-way tie for fifth place, between Emery Zimmerman and Byron Nelson of Reading, Pa., at 294 each. Zimmerman soared to a final 78 after three fine previous rounds of 72, 71 and 73.

BOULWARE, TOLEY TO TENNIS FINALS

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., June 11.—(AP)—Burtz Boulware, hard-smashing Atlanta tennis star, will face George Toley, Miami university, in finals of the Cotton States tennis tournament here tomorrow.

Boulware went into the championship round by overpowering stocky little Bill Hardie, Miami university player who upset Garnar Mulloy from the tournament. In a wearing five-set match, Boulware's smashing type of play finally wore down Hardie, 6-1, 6-8, 9-7, 0-6, 6-3. The Atlantan was forced to earn his points, as the methodical Hardie made few errors.

Toley encountered almost as much difficulty in defeating another Miami university teammate, George Pero, by scores of 5-7, 6-4, 6-3. Pero's lack of a soft shot left him unable to recover after a difficult set and found him out of position for Toley's return.

In junior play, Earl Bartlett, New Orleans, sensation, turned back Calvin Karrh, Bessemer, Ala., 6-3, 1-6, 6-4.

Frances Grossnickle, Columbus, Miss., stroker, supplied women's play with an upset when she defeated Louise Fowler, seeded No. 1 for the tournament, 3-6, 7-5, 6-1.

Today's scores included:

Women's singles—semi-finals.

Jesse Grossnickle, Columbus, Miss., defeated Jeanne Giles, Birmingham, 6-0, 6-1.

IS DIZZY NEXT?

"Schoolboy" Rowe and Paul Dean have been sent to the minors but that, apparently, isn't the final chapter of the tragic story of the three young men who were heroes of their respective clubs some four years ago. It looks like Dizzy Dean may join his fellow-heroes before long

Dizzy, whose sale to the Chicago Cubs created quite a stir in baseball circles this spring, seems destined to disappointment, along with his many admirers, in his campaign to regain the effectiveness that made him one of the game's greatest hurlers.

As everyone knows, Dean's arm wasn't in the best of shape during the Cardinals' spring training activities. Then, after joining the Cubs, he was forced to take a rest to forestall a permanent injury. He wasn't allowed to throw a ball for a couple of weeks, confining his activities to shagging flies in the outfield during batting practice. Then by slow stages he started exercising his throwing arm.

During the recent Giants-Cubs series at Chicago Dizzy was kept in the bullpen, warming up to be ready for any emergency that might arise. Dean was particularly active during the final game, which the Giants won, 8 to 5. He warmed up furiously through the last few innings. But when the game was over, what was the result? Dizzy's arm was almost as sore as when he was shunted to the sidelines several weeks ago.

The showdown will come some time this week. According to rumors from Chicago, Manager Charlie Grimm will toss Dizzy in there to determine once and for all whether or not the Great One can go. Dean has been begging for a chance to pitch, but after his experience in the Cubs' bullpen last week he may not be so anxious for the test. But Grimm, tired of fooling around with the righthander, has decided that he may as well know now just what to expect from Dizzy.

Thus 1938 may go down in baseball history as the year that three pitchers who were tops three years ago sang their swan songs in the major leagues. And all are comparatively young men. Rowe and Paul Dean already have been shunted to the minors. Will Dizzy follow? Maybe we'll know the answer to that one this week.

RUCKER THE TYPE

There is a crying need for catchers in the majors and higher class minors and youngsters with the physical proportions of Paul Rucker of Hot Springs represent the type that is being sought. They are worth their weight in platinum.

Rucker caught for Osceola of the Northeast Arkansas league in 1936 and was just about the best receiver in the circuit. He batted .344, which placed him among the "big three," and as a catcher he was picked for the all-star nine by the circuit writers.

Last year, he was shunted from Meridian to Bartlesville and then back to Osceola. He lost his bearings, but picked up after he got established at Osceola and wound up the year batting .280 and ranking first on defense.

This year, he seems to have found his batting eye from the start and has been doing his share of the hitting for the Bathers.

Rucker got his pro start with Fayetteville of the Arkmo loop in 1935, but ran into a managerial complex that all but shoved him out of the picture. Pete Casey and Fred Cato, both of whom had flings at piloting the team, were catchers and a kid trying to break in didn't have much of a chance.

The next year, Fred Hawn, also a catcher, was named Fayetteville manager. There was little opportunity for Rucker to work, so he was sent to Osceola.

The Bather backstop, a Kappa Sigma from the University of Arkansas, was a three-year football man for the Razorbacks and made all-southwest and all-southern teams in 1933. He also drew some all-American mention. With six feet, four inches of height and 200 pounds of heft, he is ideally put up for a catcher, and if he can continue to hit, there is a place up above for him.

You can see him in action at Casino park today.

OUACHITA VALLEY

RUSTON AT BROWN

The Brown Paper mill Safety Firsts will wind up their first half schedule in the Ouachita Valley loop against the league's strongest and weakest teams, according to the present loop standings. The Brownies tackle the league leading Ruston Vols at Brown park tomorrow afternoon, and then go to Hodge next Wednesday for the closing battle of the half.

Manager Herbert Steed had made several changes in his lineup the past week, and has commented favorably on the work of the Brown aggregation in its remodeled condition. Should the locals be able to turn back the Vols today they feel the new lineup will have stood its test.

The Brownies will also be strengthened by the return of "Chuck" Baragona, stellar shortstop, who has been missing from the lineup for the past few weeks. Baragona has been one of Brown's most consistent hitters and his return should add to the renewed strength of the club.

Truman Mayes is slated to hurl for the Safety Firsts with Woodrow Duncan catching.

TOURNEY DATES ANNOUNCED

NEW ORLEANS, June 11.—(AP)—The Times-Picayune will conduct its third annual hole-in-one tournament on the third hole of the No. 2 course at City park from June 26 to July 1.

Anyone is eligible to attempt to sink a 150-yard shot. No aces have been scored in the previous tournaments. A shot 1 1-2 inches from the cup won last year. The 1936 winner got within 7 1-2 inches.

SOGGY TRACK STOPS GLENN CUNNINGHAM

NEW YORK, June 11.—(AP)—A rain soaked track thwarted Glenn Cunningham's bid for a new three-quarter mile record today as he marked up his second victory of the afternoon in the feature event of the 140th games of the New York A. C.

Cunningham, who had run an exhibition half mile at the New Jersey A. A. U. meet in East Orange earlier today, treated the crowd of 4,000 to another masterful performance as he raced to a two-yard victory over Howie Borck, Manhattan college's intercollegiate mile champion, in 3 minutes, 6.3 seconds. Gene Venzke of the New York A. C. was third, another two yards back.

The time was far slower than the world record of 3:00.4, held by Josef Mostert of Belgium, who will run against Glenn in the Princeton Invitation meet next week, and Cunningham's own American mark of 3:00.8. In his half-mile, the former Kansan also was far off the record, although his 1:54.4 in a handicap race was considered fast for the sodden track.

The best performance of the meet, so far as records went, was turned in by the De La Salle institute relay team of New York. Running their last race as a group, John Quigley, Lou Collado, George Tucknott and Ed Rodgers, equalled the national interscholastic mile relay mark of 3:21.4, set by Hollywood High school nine years ago.

MONROE DRILLERS PLAY TALLULAH HERE MONDAY

The Monroe Drillers, local negro baseball team, will meet the strong Tallulah Owls here tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at Casino park. The game will be a special entertainment feature of the state convention of the negro order of Elks which opens here today.

It will be the first appearance here of the strong Tallulah aggregation, one of the strongest negro semi-pro teams of north Louisiana, which has yet to be handed a defeat this year.

The batteries will probably be Treadway and Bluford, Monroe, Webb and James, Tallulah.

VALLEY LOOP PLANS MEETING ON MONDAY

A meeting of Ouachita Valley league officials and team managers has been called for Monday night at 8 o'clock at the studio of KMLB in Hotel Frances, according to an announcement last night by George Lofton, president of the organization.

Plans for conducting the second half schedule of the league will be taken up at this session, and other business that needs to be disposed of, it was said.

The first half schedule of the Valley loop closes Wednesday with the Ruston Volunteers already well installed as circuit leaders for the first half.

STYLES OF SCHMELING AND LOUIS UNCHANGED

JOE'S REACTION TO FIRST RIGHT WILL BE PAYOFF

Boxing Expert Figures If Blow Knocks Negro Down, He'll Be Beaten

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Gayle Talbot, Associated Press sports reporter at the training camps of Max Schmeling and Joe Louis, has covered many of the leading sports events in this country and Europe in recent years. In the following story he tells how the two fighters are being trained for the world's heavyweight championship bout and gives interesting possibilities on how the battle will be fought.)

By Gayle Talbot

NEW YORK, June 11.—(AP)—When Joe Louis and Max Schmeling face each other again in the glare of the lights at Yankee stadium a week from Wednesday night and start shuffling and fiddling around for the first opening, they will look just like they did on that memorable evening two Junes ago.

Neither has changed to outward appearances. Max, at 32, doesn't look a day older, and he still fights in the same precise, methodical fashion that once carried him to the world championship and later blasted Louis into defeat.

Louis has a more mature look about his jowls and seems a little fiercer at times when his sparring partners stir him up over at Pompton Lakes, but outside of that he is the same Joe—a devastating puncher with a curious inability to protect his chin from a good right.

They will look the same, but this time the crowd stretching far up under the dark eaves of the stadium will be filled with a tense expectancy that was lacking the other time.

Instead of wondering how long Max can last, they will be watching breathlessly for Schmeling right fist to explode on the champion's chops, and to see if Joe has learned to take it.

At that instant, when Max connects for the first time, they will know whether he is to return to Germany in triumph as the first fighter in history to regain the heavyweight championship, or is to take a beating from a black man.

Louis' reaction to that first right should be the pay-off. If it knocks him down or even confuses him, then Schmeling will win, for this one great punch of his is the cruellest, most unerring weapon in the business.

But if the 24-year-old champion takes it standing up, and merely blinks his eyes, as he solemnly promises he will do, then Schmeling is in for a bad evening.

This observer, after watching Schmeling train, honestly doesn't believe that Louis or any man living can absorb a half-dozen of the German's rights without being seriously damaged. And Louis, unless he sails in and stops the Schlager right off the bat, will sample more of them than a half-dozen. Many more.

True, Max Baer once knocked the German silly so quick that some of the customers in the back rows scarcely had gotten seated. But Schmeling is a vastly improved man in every way since that blistering hot night, and he is very hard to hit solidly.

Louis, furthermore, still is not an aggressive fighter, despite all the teachings and pleading of his trainer, old Jack Blackburn.

Schmeling in action looks like he always did, except that his right seems to dart out a trifle faster, and more often. His weight, about 193, hasn't varied more than a pound or two for several years. He still looks youthful and fresh and hasn't a mark to show for 14 years of fighting except an old scar on his bushy left eyebrow.

When he sidles out against Louis the crowd will see the same wide leg-spread which keeps him far back and makes him such a difficult target. His left shoulder will be high, pointing at Louis, and his poisonous right fist will be cocked and resting on his chest. His strange, unorthodox stance has made him pigeon-toed.

Despite his absolute confidence that he can stop Louis again, Max asserts this won't make him careless. He is determined to score a knockout, but he also has plenty of respect for the dynamite in Joe's fists.

"No," he says. "Like always I will be careful. I will fight with my left until Louis makes his first mistake, then it will be all over maybe."

There is an outside chance that Louis, who by nature is a counter-fighter like Max, will attempt to keep on top of his man this time and try to beat him down with youth and strength and the sheer fury of his attack.

He is trying hard in training to make himself an in-fighter, a hustling, bustling ringman like Henry Armstrong, but it is our duty to report that the only apparent resemblance between them still is in their color. Joe plainly doesn't have his heart in the effort.

The consensus is that if he does try such tactics on Schmeling he will run into a series of rights that will jar his back teeth, and that he quickly will revert to his natural style of fighting, standing nearly erect and jabbing away at Schmeling's nose.

His left jab still is about the best there ever has been. Even the old-timers who will fight you for a slighting reference to John L. Sullivan are willing to concede that much. It is a beautiful blow, delivered with no apparent effort but with a snap on the end that tears men's faces apart.

It is the one great blow he always had, even as an amateur, says John Roxborough, co-manager with Julian Black of the erstwhile Bomber. Most of Joe's other equipment has been painstakingly developed by Jack Blackburn.

If Louis is seriously stung early in the fight, he might even try to stay clear away from Schmeling and jab out a victory. He did it to Tommy Farr, the Welshman, last autumn, after he had cracked his right hand. The other time against Schmeling he kept right on throwing hooks from too great a distance, and every time he missed he nearly got his noggin knocked off. He says he knows better this time. Maybe he does.

Whatever Joe's tactics, Schmeling is dead certain he will reach his chin with a right sooner or later. His sparring partners will bet you on it. And they also will bet a few bob that Louis doesn't survive it.

"I see where Joe is telling people he's a grown man now and not no baby like he was two years ago," one of them remarked. "Boy, boy! He'll feel older when that guy Max cracks him good."

The present odds of 8 to 5 in Louis' favor reflect the careful judgment of those who think the past two years are bound to have taken something out of the veteran German. They doubt, frankly, that he can stand a really hot pace for 15 rounds, and they call your attention to the recent fate of Barney Ross.

Maybe so, but you can't tell it from watching Max run up and down the Adirondack hills for hours at a time from studying his workouts. Until he reached the peak of his training last week he was boxing eight fast rounds and then doing another four rounds of exercises without drawing a deep breath. If he isn't even a better man physically than he was two summers ago he has a lot of persons fooled.

Including, incidentally, this observer.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By Eddie Brietz

SPECULATOR, N. Y., June 11.—(AP)—Except for Ferndale (which was kept exclusive for Barney Ross) this is the most ideal fight camp your agent ever has covered. . . . We were here in 1936 when Max Baer trained for Louis, and hated to leave. . . . Max Schmeling likes it so well he has trained here for several of his important jousts. . . . Until Baer came a cropper against Louis, the Osborne brothers, who run the town, say it had never turned out a loser. . . . Max's dismal exhibition against the Bomber not only broke the collective hearts of the Osbornes, who own the hotel, general store, bar and most of the real estate, but it left most of the mountain folk hereabouts flat. . . . They go to town with all they've got for the boys who train at Speculator.

The air is tops, the golfing good and it is nice to be back among people who know how to flavor country sausage with a bit of garlic, turn out pancakes (with no limit on the molasses) and give you vegetables (cooked in fatback) and biscuits and corn bread almost as good as the kind mother used to turn out. . . . Yum, yum.

Schmeling seems better satisfied here, too. . . . He is more democratic and approachable. . . . Instead of burying himself far back in the woods as he did at Napanoch while prepping for his first fight with Louis, he now hangs his hat in a cottage almost directly across the big road from the open air arena where he works. . . . Passing autoists can see him reading on the porch or perhaps shooting arrows at poor Otto Petri, his closest friend, in the yard. . . . Mebbe this bit of friendliness has been responsible for the crowds of from 3,000 to 5,000 paid customers who have been watching his Saturday and Sunday workouts.

Today Max was both boxer and lawyer. . . . The Hon. Brigadier-General John J. Phelan, head of the boxing commission, was here and Max made a personal plea for the reinstatement of Joe (Yussel the Muscle) Jacobs, his American representative. . . . Herr Jacobs is in the commission's doghouse at present and will be unable to second and (he hopes) Heil Schmeling June 22 unless the ban is lifted. . . . Max Machon, the trainer, does most of the talking for the firm. . . . "Is Max in shape?" . . . "Ja." . . . "Can he repeat over Louis?" . . . "Ach, Ja, ja!" . . . "Why?" . . . "He win before, he win again, ain't it?" . . . As for Schmeling, he simply says: "You go ask Joe Louis is he afraid of me?"

Max is training perfectly. . . . As a matter of fact he reached his peak the middle of this week. . . . He boxes well and his legs respond nicely. . . . He is as confident as ever. . . . But before you lay down that dough, remember that's what they said about Barney Ross.

MARBLES CHAMPS MEET AT GULFPORT MONDAY

GULFPORT, Miss., June 11.—(AP)—Seventeen marbles players, all kingpins in their own home towns, will meet here Monday in the annual southern marbles tournament.

The first three days will be devoted to preliminaries with the 17 champions divided into three leagues. The three league winners meet in the semi-finals Thursday morning and the battle for the title starts at noon.

The southern champion will go to Wildwood, N. J., for the eastern tournament on June 26. After a week there as a guest he will tie up with the champs from the east, north and west.

The tournament here, sponsored by newspapers and civic organizations, will be directed by Paul W. Van Camp of Pittsburgh. R. E. Shelton, city recreation director of Birmingham, will be supervisor of play.

Games are played every afternoon between two chosen teams at 5:00 p.m., and, according to the two managers, games will be scheduled with other business men from surrounding towns.

Youngsters Lead Ruston To First Half Pennant

Vols Recruit Fast Semi-Pro Team From Louisiana Tech And Home Talent

RUSTON, La., June 11.—(Special)—Sporting one of the fastest semi-pro ball clubs in this section, the Ruston Volunteers, composed of college boys from Louisiana Tech and local talent, most of whom are former college players, have just completed a runaway race for first half title honors in the Ouachita Valley league, a four team industrial loop. The club, piloted by Roy Fraser, veteran semi-pro enthusiast here, lost but four games in clinching the first half flag, with two yet to be played. Their margin was four games last Friday.

Lawrence "Lefty" Hinton, ace of the 1937-38 Tech mound staff, paced the Vols to their first league honors in six years, winning seven and losing but two. Both of his losses were received after relieving one of his faltering mates. In the second loss, he pitched to but three men after rescuing Zere Lewis, husky righthander now a member of the Shreveport Sports, in the twelfth inning. His earned runs allowed for the 65 innings he worked were 21, while he whiffed a total of 39 batters and walked but 12. His best day's work was in the flag-clincher when he gave up but five hits in beating Crossett 10-1.

Lewis, before leaving to join the Sports, was in second place among the pitchers, with three victories against but one defeat. In 47 innings he gave up 14 earned runs, whiffed 21 and walked only eight. In his first time out, he worked ten innings against Hodge, contributing two doubles and a game winning home run in addition to his pitching.

In fielding and hitting, the Vols were paced by Berry "Dick" Hinton, older brother of the Vol southpaw, and Jimmy Sumrall, recently named captain of the 1939 Tech baseball squad. Both wound up with averages of .365, with runs batted in honors also being even at 18 each. Hinton's two doubles, four triples and one home run were topped by Sumrall with four doubles, two triples and three round-trippers.

Sam Gooch, 200 pound freshman at Tech and nephew of the veteran Johnny Gooch, former National league catcher, later manager of the Birmingham Barons, led all the catchers in the league with a batting average of .290 and an errorless game behind the plate. In addition to his handling of 70 strikeouts perfectly, he pulled down 21 pop flies without a bobble.

Base stealing honors went to Dick Hinton, who pulled the trick ten times, three of which were of home plate, twice with the winning run. On two occasions he stole second and third consecutively, and upon one occasion, walked, stole second, third and home consecutively. Not an unusually fast man, he has the knack of taking advantage of every motion made by the pitcher, or fielder, and has yet to be thrown out in an attempted steal.

Batting and pitching averages for the team, during the first 16 games during which the Vols clinched the first half title, follow:

FINAL OF SERIES STOPPED BY RAIN

rection of Manager Doug Taitt, will start Tex Nugent, veteran righthander, in the first game. Taitt said he was undecided on his second hurler, but indicated that Bill Howell or Dick Bieze, the latter a lefthander, would get the assignment. However, Taitt can call on any of his hurlers except Al Bronkhurst, who was beaten by Pine Bluff Friday night, and they should be ready. John Yellovic worked a couple of innings Friday and "Red" Andrews pitched one frame, but they may be used today.

Last night's postponement was the third of the week for the White Sox. Games with Clarksdale were rained out Wednesday and Thursday nights.

Doyle Brannan, third baseman signed Thursday, may see action today. "Doodle" Harper was used at third base against Pine Bluff Friday night, but Brannan is ticketed for that post when Harper leaves and he may be used in one of the games today, Taitt said. The outfield will consist of Beauford Rhea, Frank Rolek, new gardener, and Manager Taitt. Against righthanded hurlers the Monroe skipper may put Les Rock in right field. If so, he will shift Rhea to center and send Rolek to the bench. Rock is a lefthanded batter.

Following today's double header with Hot Springs, the White Sox will go to Greenville Monday for two games there and then return to the home park for eight more games here.

(By Associated Press)

Rainy weather caused postponement of two games in the Cotton States league Saturday but the Hot Springs Bathers kept in their stumbling stride by dropping an 8 to 5 contest to El Dorado.

The Bathers matched the number of their runs with their errors.

It was a pleasant ball game for the Lions who smacked out 14 hits off Day and Goff, the Bather hurlers.

On the other end of the league heap the Greenville Buckshots, top-flight nine, took a 6 to 1 clubbing from Helena. The Bucks got to Schuessler, Seaporter hurler, for five hits. His mates made only one more than that off Williams. But the Bucks weren't able to turn any of their safeties into a tally until the final frame.

Then Schuessler tightened up and put the ball game in his pocket.

The postponed games were those scheduled between Clarksdale and Greenwood and between Pine Bluff and Monroe.

281 of last year and by Tony Manero's victorious 282, the previous record in 1936 at Baltusrol.

He collected the $1,000 prize money and hastened off to give a radio talk as the first step in a campaign he hopes may enrich him by $25,000 worth of byproducts.

Metz, whose 54-hole total of 211 equalled the championship record, had a two-stroke margin of second-place safety with his 290 total. Trailing him, in a tie for third place at 292, were Tony Penna of Dayton, O., who came through with a last-round 68 to cut himself a bigger slice of the money than he expected, and Harry Cooper, the hard-luck king. Cooper finished with 71 for 292, after blowing his chances with a third-round 76.

There was another two-way tie for fifth place, between Emery Zimmerman and Byron Nelson of Reading, Pa., at 294 each. Zimmerman soared to a final 78 after three fine previous rounds of 72, 71 and 73.

BOULWARE, TOLEY TO TENNIS FINALS

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., June 11.—(AP)—Burtz Boulware, hard-smashing Atlanta tennis star, will face George Toley, Miami university, in finals of the Cotton States tennis tournament here tomorrow.

Boulware went into the championship round by overpowering stocky little Bill Hardie, Miami university player who upset Garnar Mulloy from the tournament. In a wearing five-set match, Boulware's smashing type of play finally wore down Hardie, 6-1, 6-8, 9-7, 0-6, 6-3. The Atlantan was forced to earn his points, as the methodical Hardie made few errors.

Toley encountered almost as much difficulty in defeating another Miami university teammate, George Pero, by scores of 5-7, 6-4, 6-3. Pero's lack of a soft shot left him unable to recover after a difficult set and found him out of position for Toley's return.

In junior play, Earl Bartlett, New Orleans, sensation, turned back Calvin Karrh, Bessemer, Ala., 6-3, 1-6, 6-4.

Frances Grossnickle, Columbus, Miss., stroker, supplied women's play with an upset when she defeated Louise Fowler, seeded No. 1 for the tournament, 3-6, 7-5, 6-1.

Today's scores included:

Women's singles—semi-finals.

Jesse Grossnickle, Columbus, Miss., defeated Jeanne Giles, Birmingham, 6-0, 6-1.

IS DIZZY NEXT?

"Schoolboy" Rowe and Paul Dean have been sent to the minors but that, apparently, isn't the final chapter of the tragic story of the three young men who were heroes of their respective clubs some four years ago. It looks like Dizzy Dean may join his fellow-heroes before long.

Dizzy, whose sale to the Chicago Cubs created quite a stir in baseball circles this spring, seems destined to disappointment, along with his many admirers, in his campaign to regain the effectiveness that made him one of the game's greatest hurlers.

As everyone knows, Dean's arm wasn't in the best of shape during the Cardinals' spring training activities. Then, after joining the Cubs, he was forced to take a rest to forestall a permanent injury. He wasn't allowed to throw a ball for a couple of weeks, confining his activities to shagging flies in the outfield during batting practice. Then by slow stages he started exercising his throwing arm.

During the recent Giants-Cubs series at Chicago Dizzy was kept in the bullpen, warming up to be ready for any emergency that might arise. Dean was particularly active during the final game, which the Giants won, 8 to 5. He warmed up furiously through the last few innings. But when the game was over, what was the result? Dizzy's arm was almost as sore as when he was shunted to the sidelines several weeks ago.

The showdown will come some time this week. According to rumors from Chicago, Manager Charlie Grimm will toss Dizzy in there to determine once and for all whether or not the Great One can go. Dean has been begging for a chance to pitch, but after his experience in the Cubs' bullpen last week he may not be so anxious for the test. But Grimm, tired of fooling around with the righthander, has decided that he may as well know now just what to expect from Dizzy.

Thus 1938 may go down in baseball history as the year that three pitchers who were tops three years ago sang their swan songs in the major leagues. And all are comparatively young men. Rowe and Paul Dean already have been shunted to the minors. Will Dizzy follow? Maybe we'll know the answer to that one this week.

RUCKER THE TYPE

There is a crying need for catchers in the majors and higher class minors and youngsters with the physical proportions of Paul Rucker of Hot Springs represent the type that is being sought. They are worth their weight in platinum.

Rucker caught for Osceola of the Northeast Arkansas league in 1936 and was just about the best receiver in the circuit. He batted .344, which placed him among the "big three," and as a catcher he was picked for the all-star nine by the circuit writers.

Last year, he was shunted from Meridian to Bartlesville and then back to Osceola. He lost his bearings, but picked up after he got established at Osceola and wound up the year batting .280 and ranking first on defense.

This year, he seems to have found his batting eye from the start and has been doing his share of the hitting for the Bathers.

Rucker got his pro start with Fayetteville of the Arkmo loop in 1935, but ran into a managerial complex that all but shoved him out of the picture. Pete Casey and Fred Cato, both of whom had flings at piloting the team, were catchers and a kid trying to break in didn't have much of a chance.

The next year, Fred Hawn, also a catcher, was named Fayetteville manager. There was little opportunity for Rucker to work, so he was sent to Osceola.

The Bather backstop, a Kappa Sigma from the University of Arkansas, was a three-year football man for the Razorbacks and made all-southwest and all-southern teams in 1933. He also drew some all-American mention. With six feet, four inches of height and 200 pounds of heft, he is ideally put up for a catcher, and if he can continue to hit, there is a place up above for him.

You can see him in action at Casino park today.

OUACHITA VALLEY

RUSTON AT BROWN

The Brown Paper mill Safety Firsts will wind up their first half schedule in the Ouachita Valley loop against the league's strongest and weakest teams, according to the present loop standings. The Brownies tackle the league leading Ruston Vols at Brown park tomorrow afternoon, and then go to Hodge next Wednesday for the closing battle of the half.

Manager Herbert Steed had made several changes in his lineup the past week, and has commented favorably on the work of the Brown aggregation in its remodeled condition. Should the locals be able to turn back the Vols today they feel the new lineup will have stood its test.

The Brownies will also be strengthened by the return of "Chuck" Baragona, stellar shortstop, who has been missing from the lineup for the past few weeks. Baragona has been one of Brown's most consistent hitters and his return should add to the renewed strength of the club.

Truman Mayes is slated to hurl for the Safety Firsts with Woodrow Duncan catching.

TOURNEY DATES ANNOUNCED

NEW ORLEANS, June 11.—(AP)—The Times-Picayune will conduct its third annual hole-in-one tournament on the third hole of the No. 2 course at City park from June 26 to July 1.

Anyone is eligible to attempt to sink a 150-yard shot. No aces have been scored in the previous tournaments. A shot 1 1-2 inches from the cup won last year. The 1936 winner got within 7 1-3 inches.

SOGGY TRACK STOPS GLENN CUNNINGHAM

NEW YORK, June 11.—(AP)—A rain soaked track thwarted Glenn Cunningham's bid for a new three-quarter mile record today as he marked up his second victory of the afternoon in the feature event of the 140th games of the New York A. C.

Cunningham, who had run an exhibition half mile at the New Jersey A. A. U. meet in East Orange earlier today, treated the crowd of 4,000 to another masterful performance as he raced to a two-yard victory over Howie Borck, Manhattan college's intercollegiate mile champion, in 3 minutes, 6.9 seconds. Gene Venzke of the New York A. C. was third, another two yards back.

The time was far slower than the world record of 3:00.4, held by Josef Mostert of Belgium, who will run against Glenn in the Princeton Invitation meet next week, and Cunningham's own American mark of 3:00.8. In his half-mile, the former Kansan also was far off the record, although his 1:54.4 in a handicap race was considered fast for the sodden track.

The best performance of the meet, so far as records went, was turned in by the De La Salle institute relay team of New York. Running their last race as a group, John Quigley, Lou Collado, George Tucknott and Ed Rodgers, equalled the national interscholastic mile relay mark of 3:21.4, set by Hollywood High school nine years ago.

MONROE DRILLERS PLAY TALLULAH HERE MONDAY

The Monroe Drillers, local negro baseball team, will meet the strong Tallulah Owls here tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at Casino park. The game will be a special entertainment feature of the state convention of the negro order of Elks which opens here today.

It will be the first appearance here of the strong Tallulah aggregation, one of the strongest negro semi-pro teams of north Louisiana, which has yet to be handed a defeat this year.

The batteries will probably be Treadway and Bluford, Monroe; Webb and James, Tallulah.

VALLEY LOOP PLANS MEETING ON MONDAY

A meeting of Ouachita Valley league officials and team managers has been called for Monday night at 8 o'clock at the studio of KMLB in Hotel Frances, according to an announcement last night by George Lofton, president of the organization.

Plans for conducting the second half schedule of the league will be taken up at this session, and other business that needs to be disposed of, it was said.

The first half schedule of the Valley loop closes Wednesday with the Ruston Volunteers already well installed as circuit leaders for the first half.

STOCK EXCHANGE SESSION QUIET

Prices Shift Over Narrow Range In One Of Slowest Days In 20 Years

By Victor Eubank

NEW YORK, June 11.—(AP)—Stock market prices shifted over an extremely narrow range today in one of the slowest sessions of the past 20 years.

The ticker tape barely crawled throughout the two-hour proceedings, and transfers were only around 100,000 shares.

A few steels, rails, coppers and specialties managed to tack on modest gains, but a wide assortment of issues was unchanged and minor declines were plentiful at the close.

Many traders, foreseeing the apathy which gripped the list, remained away from the financial sector and the smattering that visited the boardrooms merely nibbled on either side of the market.

Weariness was engendered partly by the thought anything could happen over the week-end and most speculative forces desired to have the decks clear in the event of important news developments.

Little if any break in the business clouds was discerned, although some Wall Street soothsayers continued to look for an upward reversal in the next month or so as government pump-priming gains headway and inventories become exhausted.

Brokerage quarters were mildly cheered by signs from Washington that a compromise wage-hour bill, acceptable to most industrial opponents of the measure, would be passed and permit congress to adjourn. But even this failed to work up a buying fever.

Rails were sustained by reports that stop-gap legislation was being discussed by administrative chieftains as a prop for ailing roads. A slight lift in export copper prices kept stocks in this group on balance.

Wheat futures rallied at Chicago despite the governmental forecast of the largest crop in American history. The total, though, was under that of private prognosticators. Heavy drouth damage to foreign crops was a stimulant here, presaging expanding exports. Other commodities tilted higher.

Inflation talk died down to a murmur notwithstanding another jump in sterling and European currencies in terms of the dollar and further reports of gold purchases in London both from American and continental sources. Bonds were mixed.

GAINS MADE IN COTTON PRICES

Increase Of 50 Cents A Bale Made; Reaction Of Few Points At Close

NEW ORLEANS, June 11.—(AP)—Cotton prices gained approximately 50 cents a bale here today on unfavorable weather reports and strength of the Bombay market but reacted a few points near the close due to realizing.

The close of the market was steady, 7 to 9 points above yesterday's final quotations. July closed at 8.29, Oct. 8.31, Dec. 8.35, Jan. 8.34, March 8.39 and May 8.42. Final prices were 2 to 5 points below the day's highs.

Bombay attracted increased interest because the Liverpool exchange had a holiday. Indian traders were reported active on the buying side.

The weather map showed some rain in the northern portion of the belt but mostly dry conditions elsewhere. Temperatures were normal to above and the long range forecast was for unfavorable weather.

Some improvement was reported by Worth Street. Gray cotton goods sales of ten million yards were made yesterday, bringing the week's sales to about 200 per cent of present curtailed production.

A private authority said planting was about completed in the eastern and central belts and that growing plants were small in size but healthy. More replanting was required in the western belt than elsewhere as a result of unfavorable weather.

The turnover yesterday was 22,800 bales and open commitments 373,350 bales, a decrease of 2,050 from the previous day.

Exports today were 4,558 bales.

Cotton futures closed steady at net advances of 7 to 9 points.

New York

NEW YORK, June 11.—(AP)—Cotton advanced early today on foreign buying and commission house demand influenced by continued unfavorable weather in the cotton belt. Reactions followed under week-end realizing but trade support occurred at the close.

October, which had sold off from 8.24 to 8.13, closed at 8.19, with final prices 5 to 8 points net higher.

Liverpool was again a buyer here early today while Bombay bought late months and sold nearby deliveries. Trading was quite active at the opening but following initial flurry, business became quiet and fluctuations were narrow.

Trade estimates placed business in the cotton goods markets this week at about double the current rate of mill production owing to a spurt of activity late yesterday at steadier prices.

Futures closed 5-8 higher.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, June 11.—(AP)—Wheat prices shot up about 2 cents a bushel today as the market reflected the official crop report released by the government late yesterday.

The government report, while forecasting a winter wheat crop six and a half million bushels larger than predicted a month ago, was about 50,000,000 bushels below the average estimates by six private statisticians released a week ago. Many traders believed that much crop damage reported since June 1 was not reflected in the government figures.

Opening 5-8-1 1-4 cent higher compared with yesterday's finish, July 75 3-4-76, September 76 1-2-77, wheat prices later rose further. Corn started 1-8-3-4 up, July 57 1-2-3-4, September 58 7-8-59 1-8.

Heavy profit taking that appeared on the price bulge caused a slight reaction from the day's highs but wheat closed here 4 1-4 to 4 3-4 cents higher compared with yesterday's finish, July 79 1-8-1-4, September 80 3-8-1-2. Corn was 1 to 1 3-8 higher, July 58 3-8-1-2, September 59 1-2-5-8, and oats 3-8-5-8 up.

750,000 PAYING ON HOLC LOANS

Great Part Of Organization's Work Done As It Nears Fifth Anniversary

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 11.—(Special)—With more than 750,000 borrowers making satisfactory payments—borrowers who a few years ago were faced with the almost certain loss of their homes—the Home Owners' Loan corporation reaches its fifth anniversary Monday with a great part of its work accomplished.

Looking back to the troubled days when the HOLC granted its loans, when the average borrower was two years delinquent in both principal and interest on his then existing mortgage and far in arrears in taxes, General Manager Charles A. Jones revealed records which show three-fourths of the million harassed persons who sought aid are on the road to debt-free home ownership. More than 100,000 others still are being aided in their struggle, while more than 30,000 already have paid their loans in full.

The records of those borrowers not only brought from Mr. Jones a tribute to men and women who could fight their way back from the worst depression in American history, but an endorsement of the present housing drive and its offer of the most liberal terms to encourage home ownership.

"The home owner has been proved good security," said Mr. Jones. "Many arguments are being offered the home buyer today—arguments that he should take advantage of the best terms and the lowest interest rates ever offered. Those arguments are true. At the same time, it should be pointed out that American home owners have shown they deserve and can be trusted to carry out those liberalized contracts. The records of the HOLC are adequate proof."

Revealing that HOLC borrowers already have paid back $395,358,705, or 12.6 per cent of their principal indebtedness, Mr. Jones declared collections had been "remarkable" even in recent months. In March they were 97.5 per cent of billings; in April, they dropped to 87 per cent, but figures for May, still incomplete, show another upswing.

"The experience of the HOLC not only has shown that present home owners are determined to keep their properties, but that there is a renewed desire for home ownership," said Mr. Jones. "This has been brought about by the new conditions for which HOLC has been largely responsible."

STOCK EXCHANGE SESSION QUIET

Prices Shift Over Narrow Range In One Of Slowest Days In 20 Years

By Victor Eubank

NEW YORK, June 11.—(AP)—Stock market prices shifted over an extremely narrow range today in one of the slowest sessions of the past 20 years.

The ticker tape barely crawled throughout the two-hour proceedings, and transfers were only around 100,000 shares.

A few steels, rails, coppers and specialties managed to tack on modest gains, but a wide assortment of issues was unchanged and minor declines were plentiful at the close.

Many traders, foreseeing the apathy which gripped the list, remained away from the financial sector and the smattering that visited the boardrooms merely nibbled on either side of the market.

Weariness was engendered partly by the thought anything could happen over the week-end and most speculative forces desired to have the decks clear in the event of important news developments.

Little if any break in the business clouds was discerned, although some Wall Street soothsayers continued to look for an upward reversal in the next month or so as government pump-priming gains headway and inventories become exhausted.

Brokerage quarters were mildly cheered by signs from Washington that a compromise wage-hour bill, acceptable to most industrial opponents of the measure, would be passed and permit congress to adjourn. But even this failed to work up a buying fever.

Rails were sustained by reports that stop-gap legislation was being discussed by administrative chieftains as a prop for ailing roads. A slight lift in export copper prices kept stocks in this group on balance.

Wheat futures rallied at Chicago despite the governmental forecast of the largest crop in American history. The total, though, was under that of private prognosticators. Heavy drouth damage to foreign crops was a stimulant here, presaging expanding exports. Other commodities tilted higher.

Inflation talk died down to a murmur notwithstanding another jump in sterling and European currencies in terms of the dollar and further reports of gold purchases in London both from American and continental sources. Bonds were mixed.

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

NEW YORK, June 11.—(AP)—Stocks irregular; activity near 20-year low. Bonds irregular; rails sold while some industrials advance. Curb ragged; oil work lower. Foreign exchange higher; sterling leads broad upturn. Cotton steady; trade and foreign buying. Sugar closed. Coffee closed.

CHICAGO—Wheat strong; crop reports. Corn strong. Cattle steady. Hogs steady to 10 lower.

Increase Of 50 Cents A Bale Made; Reaction Of Few Points At Close

NEW ORLEANS, June 11.—(AP)—Cotton prices gained approximately 50 cents a bale here today on unfavorable weather reports and strength of the Bombay market but reacted a few points near the close due to realizing.

The close of the market was steady, 7 to 9 points above yesterday's final quotations. July closed at 8.29, Oct. 8.31, Dec. 8.35, Jan. 8.34, March 8.39 and May 8.42. Final prices were 2 to 5 points below the day's highs.

Bombay attracted increased interest because the Liverpool exchange had a holiday. Indian traders were reported active on the buying side.

The weather map showed some rain in the northern portion of the belt but mosty dry conditions elsewhere. Temperatures were normal to above and the long range forecast was for unfavorable weather.

Some improvement was reported by Worth Street. Gray cotton goods sales of ten million yards were made yesterday, bringing the week's sales to about 200 per cent of present curtailed production.

A private authority said planting was about completed in the eastern and central belts and that growing plants were small in size but healthy. More replanting was required in the western belt than elsewhere as a result of unfavorable weather.

The turnover yesterday was 22,800 bales and open commitments 373,350 bales, a decrease of 2,050 from the previous day.

Exports today were 4,558 bales.

Cotton futures closed steady at net advances of 7 to 9 points.

New York

NEW YORK, June 11.—(AP)—Cotton advanced early today on foreign buying and commission house demand influenced by continued unfavorable weather in the cotton belt. Reactions followed under week-end realizing but trade support occurred at the close.

October, which had sold off from 8.24 to 8.13, closed at 8.19, with final prices 5 to 8 points net higher.

Liverpool was again a buyer here early today while Bombay bought late months and sold nearby deliveries. Trading was quite active at the opening but following initial flurry, business became quiet and fluctuations were narrow.

Trade estimates placed business in the cotton goods markets this week at about double the current rate of mill production owing to a spurt of activity late yesterday at steadier prices.

Futures closed 5-8 higher.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, June 11.—(AP)—Wheat prices shot up about 2 cents a bushel today as the market reflected the official crop report released by the government late yesterday.

The government report, while forecasting a winter wheat crop six and a half million bushels larger than predicted a month ago, was about 50,000,000 bushels below the average estimates by six private statisticians released a week ago. Many traders believed that much crop damage reported since June 1 was not reflected in the government figures.

Opening 5-8-1 1-4 cent higher compared with yesterday's finish, July 75 3-4-76, September 76 1-2-77, wheat prices later rose further. Corn started 1-8-3-4 up, July 57 1-2-3-4, September 58 7-8-59 1-8.

Heavy profit taking that appeared on the price bulge caused a slight reaction from the day's highs but wheat closed here 4 1-4 to 4 3-4 cents higher compared with yesterday's finish, July 79 1-8-1-4, September 80 3-8-1-2. Corn was 1 to 1 3-8 higher, July 58 3-8-1-2, September 59 1-2-5-8, and oats 3-8-5-8 up.

750,000 PAYING ON HOLC LOANS

Great Part Of Organization's Work Done As It Nears Fifth Anniversary

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 11.—(Special)—With more than 750,000 borrowers making satisfactory payments—borrowers who a few years ago were faced with the almost certain loss of their homes—the Home Owners' Loan corporation reaches its fifth anniversary Monday with a great part of its work accomplished.

Looking back to the troubled days when the HOLC granted its loans, when the average borrower was two years delinquent in both principal and interest on his then existing mortgage and far in arrears in taxes, General Manager Charles A. Jones revealed records which show three-fourths of the million harassed persons who sought aid are on the road to debt-free home ownership. More than 100,000 others still are being aided in their struggle, while more than 30,000 already have paid their loans in full.

The records of those borrowers not only brought from Mr. Jones a tribute to men and women who could fight their way back from the worst depression in American history, but an endorsement of the present housing drive and its offer of the most liberal terms to encourage home ownership.

"The home owner has been proved good security," said Mr. Jones. "Many arguments are being offered the home buyer today—arguments that he should take advantage of the best terms and the lowest interest rates ever offered. Those arguments are true. At the same time, it should be pointed out that American home owners have shown they deserve and can be trusted to carry out those liberalized contracts. The records of the HOLC are adequate proof."

Revealing that HOLC borrowers already have paid back $395,358,705, or 12.6 per cent of their principal indebtedness, Mr. Jones declared collections had been "remarkable" even in recent months. In March they were 97.5 per cent of billings; in April, they dropped to 87 per cent, but figures for May, still incomplete, show another upswing.

"The experience of the HOLC not only has shown that present home owners are determined to keep their properties, but that there is a renewed desire for home ownership," said Mr. Jones. "This has been brought about by the new conditions for which HOLC has been largely responsible."

Harringtons Entertain Shreveport Guests; Supper Party Given By The Fraziers

With the coming of June society has moved out-of-doors where gardens have now reached the peak of loveliness. June roses are blooming profusely and water lilies of purple, blue and yellow float on the still waters of pools shaded from the sun by giant trees.

There's a continental touch to eating out-of-doors that's pleasantly nostalgic at this time of the year and especially delightful when a beautiful garden such as the A. L. Harringtons' supplies the background.

Friends motoring over from Shreveport last Thursday morning found Mrs. Harrington awaiting them in the gardens of her home on Riverside drive.

A white brick wall with black, wrought iron grill work gives the desired privacy in this summer rendezvous with its white garden furniture, glass topped tables and picturesque pool where sapphire blue lilies float on the surface.

Immediately upon arrival the guests were served iced fruit juices. The breakfast tables, covered with gayly colored linens and serviced with colored crystal and flowered English china, were grouped around the shadowy pool.

Later the guests were invited indoors, where tables for bridge were placed in the solarium with deep French windows opened wide and permitting a commanding view of the gardens.

Before guests motored back to Shreveport, frosted drinks and a variety of delicious confections were served. Enjoying this charming hospitality were Mrs. D. C. Richardson, Mrs. George Hearne, Mrs. D. C. Scarborough, Mrs. James Meriweather, Mrs. John Greer, Mrs. Mac Jeter, Mrs. Osborne Dykes, Mrs. H. Balcom, Mrs. W. Glassell, Mrs. Sadie Brown, Mrs. Phil Hamilton, Mrs. John Brown. Present from this city were Mrs. Arthur Dryburgh, Mrs. L. P. Milner and Mrs. Daisy Terzia.

On the side of things charming and claiming prominence among the crowded hours of last week was the supper party at the plantation home of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Frazier, complimentary to their guests, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Guisinger, of Ellwood, Ind.

The spacious living room, commanding a view of the far-flung meadow lands and fields of cotton, was florally adorned with immense pottery bowls overflowing with gladioli in all the pastel shades.

Supper was served at 7 o'clock, buffet style, with several specialties, favorite dishes of the hostess, included in the delectable array of food arranged for the convenience of the guests on a silver appointed, flower adorned supper table.

Cards were introduced later in the evening. Guests motoring to Waverly from this city were Dr. and Mrs. A. D. Tisdale, Judge and Mrs. William Harper, Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Beaman, Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Simpson, Dr. and Mrs. Clifford Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. B. Beasley, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Reid.

Miss Wilson Weds Malcolm Seab

Miss Minnie Bob Wilson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Wilson of Farmerville, and Mr. Malcom Seab, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Seab of Vidalia, were married in Bossier City Saturday, June 4, with Rev. W. L. Stagg, Jr., pastor of the First Baptist church of Bossier City, officiating. Mrs. Seab graduated from the Farmerville High school in 1936 and attended Meadows-Draughon's Business college. Before her marriage she was employed in the tax assessor's office. Mrs. Seab had the distinction of being appointed Miss Farmerville of 1937. Mr. Seab is the vocational agriculture teacher of the Farmerville High school. He graduated from L. S. U. in 1937 with B. S. degree. Mr. Seab belonged to Alpha Zeta, Alpha Tau Alpha, Block and Bridle club, and Future Farmers of America while attending the university.

Mr. and Mrs. Seab will make their home in Farmerville.

Miss Louise Thurman Weds W. A. Cornett

The interest of friends is centered in the wedding June 4 of Miss Louise Thurman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Thurman, of West Monroe, and Mr. W. A. Cornett, son of Mr. A. A. Cornett of Shreveport, at the First Baptist church, West Monroe, with the pastor, Rev. E. E. Huntsberry, performing the double ring ceremony.

The bride wore a white crepe ensemble with Madonna blue bolero and a corsage of Japanese forget-me-nots and valley lilies.

The attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Munch and Mr. Cleveland Cornett.

The bride is a graduate of the Ouachita Parish High school.

Immediately following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Cornett motored to Shreveport. They are now at home to their friends with the bride's parents.

Mr. Cornett is associated with the United Gas company.

Miss Brown And Rev. Hemphill Wed

Claiming the interest of friends is the announcement of the marriage of Miss Beatrice Brown and Rev. W. T. Hemphill, Sunday June 5, in the home of the bride's uncle, Mr. H. L. Brown, West Monroe.

Beautiful flowers, banking the living room, formed a colorful setting for the ceremony, performed by Rev. W. E. Fuller.

The bride wore a charming white crepe model with accessories of British tan and a corsage of bride's roses.

Immediately following the ceremony the bride and bridegroom left for points of interest in Texas. Upon their return they will be at home to their friends in this city.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Ollie Pairic and Mr. Franklin Hale, Sunday afternoon, June 5, at the home of Rev. W. T. Hemphill, who officiated in the presence of a few intimate friends.

Top right: Miss Byrnie Handy, lovely sub-deb daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Beverly Handy, who with Betty Jean Hardeman (lower right), daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Hardeman, was guest of honor at a dancing party at the Handy home on Riverside, with their parents hosts of the evening.

Lower left: Miss Betty Lou Seamon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. Curtis Seamon, who graduated with this year's senior class from the Neville High school. —Pictures by Griffin.

Friends motoring over from Shreveport last Thursday morning found Mrs. Harrington awaiting them in the gardens of her home on Riverside drive.

A white brick wall with black, wrought iron grill work gives the desired privacy in this summer rendezvous with its white garden furniture, glass topped tables and picturesque pool where sapphire blue lilies float on the surface.

Immediately upon arrival the guests were served iced fruit juices. The breakfast tables, covered with gayly colored linens and serviced with colored crystal and flowered English china, were grouped around the shadowy pool.

Later the guests were invited indoors, where tables for bridge were placed in the solarium with deep French windows opened wide and permitting a commanding view of the gardens.

Before guests motored back to Shreveport, frosted drinks and a variety of delicious confections were served. Enjoying this charming hospitality were Mrs. D. C. Richardson, Mrs. George Hearne, Mrs. D. C. Scarborough, Mrs. James Meriweather, Mrs. John Greer, Mrs. Mac Jeter, Mrs. Osborne Dykes, Mrs. H. Balcom, Mrs. W. Glassell, Mrs. Sadie Brown, Mrs. Phil Hamilton, Mrs. John Brown. The spacious living room, commanding a view of the far-flung meadow lands and fields of cotton, was florally adorned with immense pottery bowls overflowing with gladioli in all the pastel shades.

Supper was served at 7 o'clock, buffet style, with several specialties, favorite dishes of the hostess, included in the delectable array of food arranged for the convenience of the guests on a silver appointed, flower adorned supper table.

Cards were introduced later in the evening. Guests motoring to Waverly from this city were Dr. and Mrs. A. D. Tisdale, Judge and Mrs. William Harper, Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Beaman, Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Simpson, Dr. and Mrs. Clifford Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. B. Beasley, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Reid.

The Sundial

By Eve C. Bradford

"THE lark's on the wing, the snail's on the thorn; God's in His heaven, all's right with the world." There are lovelier things than a steadily mounting mercury to remind one that summer is here. In old gardens crepe myrtles now fling crimson banners, and the sweet-olive, reminiscent of grandmother's day, steeps the air with its fragrance. Everything is upward striving and every one is up and doing. The older generation no longer rocks away the summer months on cool galleries as they did a few years past. Today's typical grandmother has a better time of it than any that ever went before. They write books, win prizes, make speeches, look lovely in streamlined clothes, journey with the stars and the upper reaches of the night swiftly and silently across the vast span of the continent as nonchalantly and with as much composure as their daughters. They go to dances, run for office, get elected and talk back to the men. Many a sweetly wrinkled old lady has left her rocking chair in the past few years to get a fresh start in life.

Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, this country's minister to Norway, was a grandmother before she began her distinguished service in politics. Ruth Bryan Owen had for years been a grandmother when President Roosevelt appointed her minister to Denmark. But love came along and upset the ambassadorial career. Mary Roberts Rinehart, whose newest mystery thriller, "The Wall," will be published this summer and whose "Tish" has entertained radio audiences for months, has written most of her books and all her plays since she became a grandmother. Gertrude Atherton had long been a grandmother before her famous book, "Black Oxen," was written. At 80 she considers herself in the prime of life.

One of Monroe's prettiest grandmothers, Mrs. John Bishop Johnston, hopped on a night plane last week and sailed away to Florida. So eager was she to see her grandson she found earth bound mode of travel much too slow.

It is impossible to remain lethargic when you see all your friends packing suitcases and departing for summer vacation. It is impossible, also, to refrain from a bit of jealousy when you see the sports clothes, as gay as a folk song, packed away for wear in the mountains, in the city, on board ship, at the seashore or in the home of relatives who live in cool climates and, some summer, find their home besieged with vacation-minded kinfolks. Some of these arrivals are welcome and then again they are most unwelcome, especially those who drop in without invitation; Who do not arrive when invited; who sleep until noon; who get up at dawn; who bring their dogs along; who bring all the children along; who bring their troubles along; who are on a diet; who should be on a diet; who want to be entertained; who want to do the entertaining; who insist on helping with the work; who tune in on Amos 'n Andy.

Occasionally one finds the ideal guest—one like the E. J. Guisingers of Ellwood, Ind., who arrived on the day set by their hosts, the Maurice Fraziers, and through the entire week of their visit proved how truly delightful a guest in home can really be. On Wednesday Mrs. Frazier invited intimates to her plantation home at Waverly and greeted them in that spacious, airy living room where in winter flames leap high in the stone fireplace and in summer the long windows are thrown wide to the far flung meadow lands and cotton fields now a brilliant green in the summer sun. There were flowers everywhere on Wednesday and card tables arranged for the bridge games. Later when the gentlemen arrived there was a spacious buffet with great platters of home baked ham, and numerous edibles in which the hostess prides herself. Always at these feasts there are always some who ask Cecile for her recipe for a certain dish. Like the good soldier that she is, her pet recipe passes into other hands and it no longer becomes her exclusive property. Everything on this occasion was well done. The proof was that no one wanted to go home, even when the hour grew late and with a fifty-mile drive ahead of them. The Guisingers, former residents of Monroe, declare that there is something about this city that remains a germ in their blood—unaffected by the poison of long absence—and generates a pleasurable disease which they like to call "chronic reminiscence."

It is a case of widening horizons this summer, for that little army of business women. They will wander east, north, south and west—to the verdant depths of mountain passes—cozy coves nestling by the sea—through unexpected desert trails and over the boundless blue.

Dora Anish and Maible Hood will pack some good looking duds in smart new luggage and travel to a frigid zone—Canada. The climate calls for tailleurs of warm materials, sturdy shoes and snug fitting hats, as much of their journey will be via steamer.

Ethel Reims is filling her wardrobe trunk with light, tropical things to be worn on moonlight nights on ship board in the warm waters of the gulf and the Caribbean. She will sail early in July from New Orleans for Havana, Cristobal, Almirante, Tela and Honduras.

Maud Stubbs and daughter Carolyn will also wear thin, tropical clothes when they walk the broad decks of their ship sailing the Caribbean. They have made all their plans for a joyous vacation at sea with the wind in their faces by day and the stars overhead by night.

Johnnie Elbert's vacation will be over all too soon. Last word received was from Switzerland where she motored through the snow capped Alps and rolled snowballs, dropping them into the verdant valley far below. Her wonderful journey through foreign shores will be over June 20 when her steamer sails into New York harbor.

It was June week at West Point Military academy that prompted Mrs. Lockwood Webb, Mrs. R. N. Slator, Beatrice Burgoyne and Zora Barlow to arrange an early vacation. They will be privileged to see Cadet Martin Webb, throw his cap into the air and bid goodbye to dear old alma mater. From West Point they will motor on to New York City for a week's visit and then on to Washington, Baltimore, the Carolinas.

Through the langorous blood of every southern woman flows the surprisingly swift current of activity. This is clearly evidenced when a cooking school is announced. We venture to say society will be at a standstill for the three days next week when Mrs. Chitwood comes to Monroe to tell the women how to feed those hungry men who clamor for three meals a day, regardless of the changing seasons. Cooking is getting to be the craze in Monroe and almost as many have been trying their hand at cooking as in the intricacies of the Big Apple. With supper parties demanding that hostesses exert their ingenuity in composing an amusing menu, whether it be elaborate or simple, the arrival of a celebrated dietician is considered more welcome than manna from heaven. There are no more drones in the world. The woman who knows nothing of cooking is a now a strange species and most certainly not a part of this changing world in which we live. Caviar or cabbage a la Jiggs, we must know how to serve and to prepare.

Beverly Russell was on tiptoe with excitement last week and no wonder, June week at West Point is enough to make any beautiful girl thrill with pleasure. She received a bid from Billy Barnett, a young cadet. We feel sure that Beverly was an acknowledged belle at the military ball even though all the young and loveliest from all over the country were there in gorgeous evening regalia. Beverly will go on to Sweet Brier for Pollyanna Shotwell's graduation and then home with the Shotwells who motored up last week. Friends who are in the know are hinting at a summer-time wedding for Pollyanna, who has been wearing a sparkler on the "right" finger ever since Christmas when the young man in the case was home from Washington.

Miss Domino Weds George Montgomery

The bride is associated with the child welfare department of this parish and Mr. Montgomery, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Montgomery, is a prominent planter of Bonita.

Miss Curry's Poems Will Be Published

Miss Johnile Curry of Rayville, editor of the college paper at Northeast Center and an honor graduate has been notified that a book of her poems will be published this fall by a publishing house in New York.

Miss Curry has written poetry since childhood and while she was still in high school her poetry appeared in a poetry anthology, "Contemporary Poets of 1936," Avon House Publishers, New York. Miss Curry was the youngest author whose work appeared in the books. "The White Heron" anthology of Louisiana woman poets also contains one of her poems.

At the present time a group of her poems is being included in a volume entitled "Important American Poets of 1938," Valiant House Publishers, New York.

Her work has received favorable comment from critics for its sheer poetic beauty and style. When Miss Curry has her poetry volume published she will have achieved, at 19, what many men who became famous poets waited a lifetime for.

Gifts Often Problem For The Newlyweds

Presents Should Be Chosen In Accordance With What Bride Actually Can Use

June, the month of moonlight and roses and radiant brides on whom the unmarried are presumed to look with envy and the married to look with a fluttering reminiscence, is now upon us.

What a pleasure it is for friends and relatives to shower gifts of their own choosing on the bride and bridegroom! And in what a post-nuptial quandary Mrs. Newlywed will find herself with these numerous gifts when the honeymoon is over and she settles down in that little apartment.

Of course she "adores" her gifts—that is, most of them. But hers is a job of artistic distribution to keep her small home from looking like a gift shop.

There are gifts too elegant for immediate use. These go into storage in mother's attic till the day arrives when a home can be built. Then, of course, there are the gifts from uncles and aunts who still live in that useful "tidy-age." What quandary is the bride's over the gift coffee-table. Too often it is a colonial one, when, as she adds to her furniture, she longs to see the living room go modernistic. Or she may receive one of those sturdy maple types when French period is her pet weakness. Coffee-table, tea-cart givers and others who give occasional furniture pieces, could ease many a bride's mind if they could mention on their congratulatory card, "Exchange it if you like!" For every bride suffers from the thought of making such a decision and yet her suffering will be worse if she has to live with the thing she feels is not in keeping with her home.

It's not that Mrs. Newlywed of today is too particular, unappreciative or critical, even though the giver of wedding gifts may think so. All Mrs. Giver has to do is to crawl back into her own wedding shoes, if she can by this time, and remember some ten or twenty-odd years ago her own post-nuptial problems, concerned with getting her own gifts arranged in her, and her John's, first home!

And linens! From finger-tip towels to quilts, no Mrs. Newlywed can have too many, for unfortunately such articles have a way of showing wear and tear. If she thinks her inadequate drawer space has too many of those tea-towels or an unneeded amount of luncheon napkins, all she has to do is ask mother about that.

Of course there are practical gifts—beautiful and yet useful—such as Mrs. Newlywed's flat silver, an adored pattern of her own choice. And what bride doesn't love to set off, in such elegance, her first burned biscuit and anemic looking fried eggs. At least the attractive, silver-set table always seems to smooth over that low ebb breakfast hour.

Marriages Continue To Claim Much Interest In This Section Of Louisiana

Frances Leah Shell Weds J. B. Wooley

Miss Audrey McIntyre Of Delhi Marries John Bowdy Honeycutt Of Warren, Ark.

June is living up to its reputation as a month of brides. Weddings here and elsewhere are claiming interest daily with the marriage June 5 of Miss Frances Leah Shell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Shell of West Monroe, and Mr. J. B. Wooley of Jennings, of paramount interest.

The ceremony was performed at 4 o'clock in the afternoon at the home of the bride's parents with Rev. E. O. Hearne, pastor of the Chatham Methodist church, officiating.

The ceremony was performed before an improvised altar flanked by tall baskets overflowing with gladioli and delphinium with palms and ferns forming the background. Baskets of bronze dahlias were placed at vantage points throughout the reception suite.

Miss Doris Burd Haskell of Louisiana Tech, Ruston, who was the bride's instructor in violin for four years, and Miss Frances Norsworthy, pianist, of Shreveport, rendered a program of nuptial music. Prior to the ceremony, Miss Haskell played "Serenade," by Schubert, "Ah! Sweet Mystery of Life," by Victor Herbert, and "Because," by D'Hardelot. For the processional Miss Norsworthy played the "Bridal Chorus" from Lohengrin by Wagner, and during the ceremony, Miss Haskell rendered "To a Wild Rose," by McDowell.

Miss Myrtis Wooley, of Columbia, sister of the bridegroom, was the bride's only attendant. She entered with Ardis Cawthon, of Doyline, who served as best man. Miss Wooley wore a dusty rose colored ensemble with accessories of Madelon blue with wide brimmed hat of blue. A corsage of pink Radiance roses was worn.

The bride, walking with the bridegroom, wore a smart model of natural colored linen lace over gold colored taffeta. A becoming hat of oriental weave in natural straw with a tailored band of variegated colors, and elbow-length lace mitts, completed the distinctive ensemble. A corsage of Talisman roses and valley lilies was worn.

Mr. J. J. Shell, Jr., of Monroe served as usher.

Immediately after the wedding, a reception for the wedding guests was held. Mrs. Shell, mother of the bride, wore navy blue linen lace, with a corsage of crimson roses. Mrs. Wooley, mother of the bridegroom, wore printed chiffon and a corsage of roses.

The following out-of-town guests attended the wedding and reception: Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Wooley and M. E. Wooley, Jr., of Hutton, Mubert Wooley of Jennings, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Wooley of Meridian, Miss., Miss Myrtis Wooley of Columbia, J. B. Benton of Jena, Miss Ruth Batcheldor and Miss Frances Norsworthy of Shreveport, Ardis Cawthon of Doyline, Miss Doris Haskell of Ruston, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Shell and Miss Jane Shell of Bastrop.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Wooley are well-known in Louisiana, where they were educated and where the bridegroom is prominently identified with educational activities. Mrs. Wooley is a graduate of the Ruston High school, and has an A. B. degree from Louisiana Tech, where she majored in music. She has done graduate work at the state university. For the past two years, she has been teaching in the Caddo school system. Mr. Wooley, who is a native of Mississippi, is a graduate of the Louisiana State Normal college, Natchitoches, and has the master's degree from the Louisiana State university, where he has done considerable work on his Ph. D. degree. He taught in the Rapides and Jefferson Davis parish schools, having been principal of the Roanoke High school for several years. At present, he is supervisor of education in Jeff Davis parish, with headquarters in Jennings, where the couple will reside at the end of the summer session at L. S. U.

Claiming the interest of a wide circle of friends is the marriage on June 5 of Miss Audrey McIntyre, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Loran Monroe McIntyre of Delhi, and Mr. John Bowdy Honeycutt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fay Miller of Warren, Ark.

The ceremony was performed in the presence of relatives and friends at the plantation home of the bride's parents by Rev. J. M. Corley of Fayette, Miss., great uncle of the bride.

The vows were spoken before the improvised altar, formed of smilax and summer blossoms in a picturesque out-of-door setting. Tall baskets of gladioli and cornflowers formed a colorful enclosure for the members of the wedding party.

The pre-nuptial music was rendered by Miss Aletha Hower, pianist, and Miss Abbie Randall, who sang "At Dawning" and "I Love You Truly." The bridal party entered to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march and "Liebestraum" by Liszt was played during the ceremony.

Master Kersh McIntyre, small brother of the bride, was the ring-bearer. Miss Margaret Kelly of Gilbert served as maid of honor and wore a becoming Gibson model of poudre blue crepe with Swiss embroidery trimmings. She carried a colonial bouquet of pink Radiance rosebuds. Mr. Weldon Perry of Shreveport served as best man.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a smart ensemble of Bemberg sheer in two shades of blue, and carried an arm bouquet of American beauty roses.

Immediately following the ceremony the guests registered in the bride's book presided over by Miss Abbie Randall. A confectionery course was served indoors where the wedding cake centered the lace draped table. Arranged at either end were crystal candelabra supporting white candles which were lighted by Miss Erline Honeycutt, sister of the bridegroom.

Wedding cake was served by Miss Elaine Burns. Mrs. Major Batey presided at the crystal punch bowl.

After the reception the young couple left on a wedding trip in the Ozark mountains. Upon their return they will make their home in Shreveport, where the groom is connected with the General Motors Acceptance corporation.

Mrs. Honeycutt attended school at Whitworth college, Brookhaven, Miss., and Louisiana State Normal, Natchitoches. For the past few years she has been a member of the Crowville High school faculty.

Mr. Honeycutt is a graduate of Southwestern Louisiana institute, where he was a member of the Blue Key and Phi Kappa Alpha fraternities.

Out-of-town guests attending the wedding were: Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Allen and children of Baton Rouge, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. McIntyre of Brandon, Miss., Mr. M. C. McIntyre, Mrs. L. P. Burnham, John Burnham, Mr. John A. Laughlin of Jackson, Miss., Miss Erlene Honeycutt, Mr. Billie Haynes of Monroe; Rev. and Mrs. J. M. The Sundial

By Eve C. Bradford

"THE lark's on the wing, the snail's on the thorn; God's in His heaven, all's right with the world." There are lovelier things than a steadily mounting mercury to remind one that summer is here. In old gardens crepe myrtles now fling crimson banners, and the sweet-olive, reminiscent of grandmother's day, steeps the air with its fragrance. Everything is upward striving and every one is up and doing. The older generation no longer rocks away the summer months on cool galleries as they did a few years past. Today's typical grandmother has a better time of it than any that ever went before. They write books, win prizes, make speeches, look lovely in streamlined clothes, journey with the stars and the upper reaches of the night swiftly and silently across the vast span of the continent as nonchalantly and with as much composure as their daughters. They go to dances, run for office, get elected and talk back to the men. Many a sweetly wrinkled old lady has left her rocking chair in the past few years to get a fresh start in life.

Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, this country's minister to Norway, was a grandmother before she began her distinguished service in politics. Ruth Bryan Owen had for years been a grandmother when President Roosevelt appointed her minister to Denmark. But love came along and upset the ambassadorial career. Mary Roberts Rinehart, whose newest mystery thriller, "The Wall," will be published this summer and whose "Tish" has entertained radio audiences for months, has written most of her books and all her plays since she became a grandmother. Gertrude Atherton had long been a grandmother before her famous book, "Black Oxen," was written. At 80 she considers herself in the prime of life.

One of Monroe's prettiest grandmothers, Mrs. John Bishop Johnston, hopped on a night plane last week and sailed away to Florida. So eager was she to see her grandson she found earth bound mode of travel much too slow.

It is impossible to remain lethargic when you see all your friends packing suitcases and departing for summer vacation. It is impossible, also, to refrain from a bit of jealousy when you see the sports clothes, as gay as a folk song, packed away for wear in the mountains, in the city, on board ship, at the seashore or in the home of relatives who live in cool climates and, some summer, find their home besieged with vacation-minded kinfolks. Some of these arrivals are welcome and then again they are most unwelcome, especially those who drop in without invitation; Who do not arrive when invited; who sleep until noon; who get up at dawn; who bring their dogs along; who bring all the children along; who bring their troubles along; who are on a diet; who should be on a diet; who want to be entertained; who want to do the entertaining; who insist on helping with the work; who tune in on Amos 'n Andy.

Occasionally one finds the ideal guest—one like the E. J. Guisingers of Ellwood, Ind., who arrived on the day set by their hosts, the Maurice Fraziers, and through the entire week of their visit proved how truly delightful a guest in home can really be. On Wednesday Mrs. Frazier invited intimates to her plantation home at Waverly and greeted them in that spacious, airy living room where in winter flames leap high in the stone fireplace and in summer the long windows are thrown wide to the far flung meadow lands and cotton fields now a brilliant green in the summer sun. There were flowers everywhere on Wednesday and card tables arranged for the bridge games. Later when the gentlemen arrived there was a spacious buffet with great platters of home baked ham, and numerous edibles in which the hostess prides herself. Always at these feasts there are always some who ask Cecile for her recipe for a certain dish. Like the good soldier that she is, her pet recipe passes into other hands and it no longer becomes her exclusive property. Everything on this occasion was well done. The proof was that no one wanted to go home, even when the hour grew late and with a fifty-mile drive ahead of them. The Guisingers, former residents of Monroe, declare that there is something about this city that remains a germ in their blood—unaffected by the poison of long absence—and generates a pleasurable disease which they like to call "chronic reminiscence."

It is a case of widening horizons this summer, for that little army of business women. They will wander east, north, south and west—to the verdant depths of mountain passes—cozy coves nestling by the sea—through unexpected desert trails and over the boundless blue.

Dora Anish and Maible Hood will pack some good looking duds in smart new luggage and travel to a frigid zone—Canada. The climate calls for tailleurs of warm materials, sturdy shoes and snug fitting hats, as much of their journey will be via steamer.

Ethel Reims is filling her wardrobe trunk with light, tropical things to be worn on moonlight nights on ship board in the warm waters of the gulf and the Caribbean. She will sail early in July from New Orleans for Havana, Cristobal, Almirante, Tela and Honduras.

Maud Stubbs and daughter Carolyn will also wear thin, tropical clothes when they walk the broad decks of their ship sailing the Caribbean. They have made all their plans for a joyous vacation at sea with the wind in their faces by day and the stars overhead by night.

Johnnie Elbert's vacation will be over all too soon. Last word received was from Switzerland where she motored through the snow capped Alps and rolled snowballs, dropping them into the verdant valley far below. Her wonderful journey through foreign shores will be over June 20 when her steamer sails into New York harbor.

It was June week at West Point Military academy that prompted Mrs. Lockwood Webb, Mrs. R. N. Slator, Beatrice Burgoyne and Zora Barlow to arrange an early vacation. They will be privileged to see Cadet Martin Webb, throw his cap into the air and bid goodbye to dear old alma mater. From West Point they will motor on to New York City for a week's visit and then on to Washington, Baltimore, the Carolinas.

Through the langorous blood of every southern woman flows the surprisingly swift current of activity. This is clearly evidenced when a cooking school is announced. We venture to say society will be at a standstill for the three days next week when Mrs. Chitwood comes to Monroe to tell the women how to feed those hungry men who clamor for three meals a day, regardless of the changing seasons. Cooking is getting to be the craze in Monroe and almost as many have been trying their hand at cooking as in the intricacies of the Big Apple. With supper parties demanding that hostesses exert their ingenuity in composing an amusing menu, whether it be elaborate or simple, the arrival of a celebrated dietician is considered more welcome than manna from heaven. There are no more drones in the world. The woman who knows nothing of cooking is a now a strange species and most certainly not a part of this changing world in which we live. Caviar or cabbage a la Jiggs, we must know how to serve and to prepare.

Beverly Russell was on tiptoe with excitement last week and no wonder, June week at West Point is enough to make any beautiful girl thrill with pleasure. She received a bid from Billy Barnett, a young cadet. We feel sure that Beverly was an acknowledged belle at the military ball even though all the young and loveliest from all over the country were there in gorgeous evening regalia. Beverly will go on to Sweet Brier for Pollyanna Shotwell's graduation and then home with the Shotwells who motored up last week. Friends who are in the know are hinting at a summer-time wedding for Pollyanna, who has been wearing a sparkler on the "right" finger ever since Christmas when the young man in the case was home from Washington.

Gifts Often Problem For The Newlyweds

Presents Should Be Chosen In Accordance With What Bride Actually Can Use

June, the month of moonlight and roses and radiant brides on whom the unmarried are presumed to look with envy and the married to look with a fluttering reminiscence, is now upon us.

What a pleasure it is for friends and relatives to shower gifts of their own choosing on the bride and bridegroom! And in what a post-nuptial quandary Mrs. Newlywed will find herself with these numerous gifts when the honeymoon is over and she settles down in that little apartment.

Of course she "adores" her gifts—that is, most of them. But hers is a job of artistic distribution to keep her small home from looking like a gift shop.

There are gifts too elegant for immediate use. These go into storage in mother's attic till the day arrives when a home can be built. Then, of course, there are the gifts from uncles and aunts who still live in that useful "tidy-age." What quandary is the bride's over the gift coffee-table. Too often it is a colonial one, when, as she adds to her furniture, she longs to see the living room go modernistic. Or she may receive one of those sturdy maple types when French period is her pet weakness. Coffee-table, tea-cart givers and others who give occasional furniture pieces, could ease many a bride's mind if they could mention on their congratulatory card, "Exchange it if you like!" For every bride suffers from the thought of making such a decision and yet her suffering will be worse if she has to live with the thing she feels is not in keeping with her home.

It's not that Mrs. Newlywed of today is too particular, unappreciative or critical, even though the giver of wedding gifts may think so. All Mrs. Giver has to do is to crawl back into her own wedding shoes, if she can by this time, and remember some ten or twenty-odd years ago her own post-nuptial problems, concerned with getting her own gifts arranged in her, and her John's, first home!

And linens! From finger-tip towels to quilts, no Mrs. Newlywed can have too many, for unfortunately such articles have a way of showing wear and tear. If she thinks her inadequate drawer space has too many of those tea-towels or an unneeded amount of luncheon napkins, all she has to do is ask mother about that.

Of course there are practical gifts—beautiful and yet useful—such as Mrs. Newlywed's flat silver, an adored pattern of her own choice. And what bride doesn't love to set off, in such elegance, her first burned biscuit and anemic looking fried eggs. At least the attractive, silver-set table always seems to smooth over that low ebb breakfast hour.

Club Life Definitely Over For The Summer

Monroe Members Look Forward To Profitable Activities Among Groups Next Fall

Club life is now definitely over for the summer. All the delegates attending national conventions in various sections of the country have returned home and are weighing results. Are they surfeited with so many meetings, lectures and discussions? No, however amazing it may seem, they are not. Rather are they stimulated and impressed with the fact that if America is to be saved from any dread chaos, revolution, disease and myriad other horrors, it will be the women themselves who will take an active part.

Men cannot challenge women, especially organized women, without it bearing fruit. But the burden of saving the country from all the evils certainly is a heavy burden to place on the homemaker. Just what does it portend when doctor, lawyer, judge, minister, welfare worker, educator, all cry out to the women?

Business and professional women, organized as they are, primarily are concerned with all that is directed toward economics. Forced into the business world, usually, they are the bravest women of them all.

The Federation of Women's Clubs, according to a national officer, is likely to become emotional in tackling problems, but no group is as well organized as the federation with its 30,000 members. Once they set their minds to a task it is half accomplished.

Most academic of all women, according to organized workers, are the university members. After attending the national convention, many women declared it was equal to a special university course.

The Monroe branch of the American Association of University Women, under the leadership of the president, Miss Myrtle Rodgers, is preparing for a year of splendid achievement when activities are resumed in the fall.

The American Association of University Women is not a federation of college clubs or women's clubs; it is an educational organization. The association was founded in 1882, at a time when educational opportunities for women were limited, when prejudice against higher education for women was still strong and women who had succeeded in securing advanced training found few openings for using their abilities. The little group of "founders"—seventeen young women, graduates of eight colleges—believed that by working together the alumnae of different colleges could open doors of opportunity to women in the educational world and secure for women a fuller share of intellectual life. Accordingly, the association—then known as the Association of Collegiate Alumnae—was formally organized.

One of the most powerful and amazing organizations today is perhaps the Parent-Teacher association. It is the largest organization in the country even in the face of opposition, criticism and lack of support on the part of homes and citizens.

Neither can one say that the schools or schoolmen, by and large about the country, did much to accelerate the growth and progress of the Parent-Teacher association.

Critics in various communities who felt that the Parent-Teacher association was only a meddlesome, fault-finding group organized to solve a special problem or to secure some special gain, had their supporters. In justice to the Parent-Teacher association, however, it can be said that this has been exaggerated and so today we see few associations which are critical and belligerent toward school practice and procedure. Much of the early criticism emanated from those having little understanding as to the real purposes and functions of the Parent-Teacher association and did not take the trouble to find out.

No one would wish to minimize the work of the Parent-Teacher association in developing health, safety, adult education and equipment programs. Its support of salaries and a decent living wage, in the face of strong opposition, is heartening to teachers everywhere. Moreover, it has exercised a great deal of influence in supporting an intelligent and progressive educational program.

The need of some organization such as the Parent-Teacher association to assist our schools to carry forward an educational program in a democracy is great. But, as advised by the national president, if it wishes to gain a place of permanent importance in our democracy, it must support the real issues of education and essential things involved in child training and development.

MRS. IDA CHITWOOD, the Cooking School lecturer who is to conduct the News-Star—World Cooking School June 15th, 16th and 17th, has asked that we secure "BUTTER-KRUST BREAD" for her use in the school. She is quite an authority on breads and her selection of BUTTER-KRUST BREAD is indeed a compliment to BUTTER-KRUST users in this locality. . . . Made in air-conditioned rooms that guarantee us a bread that has the same texture every time you buy a leaf. You're using the right bread, folks . . . and Mrs. Chitwood vouches for it. Good news travels fast!

WELL, girls . . . the Cooking School starts Wednesday, with the famous Mrs. Ida Chitwood. Cooking is one of our fine arts and Mrs. Chitwood has mastered the art for the past 18 years. A charming personality . . . entertaining and instructive. I heard her last season at the Dallas Centennial and, without a doubt, we have entertainment "EXTRAORDINARY." . . . By the way . . . a beautiful Norge Range . . . an Electrolux Refrigerator . . . and gobs and gobs of lovely gifts will be given away absolutely free this year at the Cooking School. Don't forget, Neville auditorium, June 15, 16 and 17.

EVERY merchant who deals in aquatic togs is elaborately preparing for the big formal opening of the R. D. Swayze natatorium in July or August. Beauty pageants, famous swimmers and our state officials will be present. And it will be something to write home about. . . . Monroe's magnificent $130,000 natatorium—finest of its kind in the south—is about the busiest place in North Louisiana these days. You should be proud of the efforts and the enterprise our city commission have displayed in making this wonderful recreation facility available to the people of this city. I can think of nothing that will give our "Queen City of the Ouachita" more favorable attention throughout the country than our beautiful natatorium.

SLAGLE-JOHNSON Lumber Co. is dealer for the famous Johns-Manville ROCK WOOL BATTS, which are made of spun rock. It is said that heat cannot penetrate a wall that has been lined with this new insulation. . . . Makes the house cooler in the summer and warmer in the winter. . . . Right now is the time to talk over "insulation" with Slagle-Johnson. . . . It's the most inexpensive way to "KEEP KOOL" in the summer and "KEEP WARM" in the winter. Slagle-Johnson Lumber Co. will gladly explain how this marvelous new insulation can be used in your home. Let this one cost be your last . . . on insulation.

NOW that the family is coming home from college for the summer . . . it's a mighty good time to invest in that new stove. . . . The newest thing under the sun is that "PROSPERITY RANGE" at Sears. This stove is not only a beautiful piece of furniture but has more attractive features than any stove I have found in my shopping tours . . . for the money. All porcelain glistening white and beige . . . with black trim made on an all-steel U-type frame . . . lined with 1½-inch rock wool . . . equipped with electrical appliances . . . automatic pilot light . . . heat control. Oven is one-third larger than the average oven and has those nice flat beam slide-out trays. Double pan porcelain bottom on fused steel with smokeless broiler that rolls out at just a touch of the finger. The oven is large enough to hold 10 full size loaves of bread. I could rave on and on about this beautiful range but space won't permit. The nice part of this whole business is the low price.

ARE YOU QUICK to respond to suggestion — I mean psychologically? If so you'll react at once to the very words "Flowers in the Rain," which is the euphonious name of a cologne I love. You'll be delighted with it actually, too, as it is a delicate odeur and one you won't tire of easily. Strange, isn't it, how certain scents bring forth pictures in our minds—a faint smell of ether, for instance, will spell a hospital to us—burning logs, a restful living room in the fall, and ham and cabbage a good old homely dinner. Just so this cologne envisions an old-fashioned garden after a shower. Certainly I speak of that lovely "Triomphe," the sweetest perfume that was ever bottled. . . . Just step into Walgreen's any day. . . . Purchase it by the ounce.

DON'T tell me you are housing your fur coat or winter garments in your closets, when the Monroe Steam Laundry has such a complete COLD FUR STORAGE VAULT which is so convenient to you as well as to your pocketbook. Call 102 or 103 the first thing tomorrow. Send your furs . . . winter garments . . . rugs, etc., to be cleaned and stored for the winter. Mama and Papa MOTH are busy building a mansion inside your favorite coat to house their little ones this summer . . . and, of course, they feed on your garments. . . . Better break up this "play house" . . . because they'll break you before you know it.

WELL, DEAR OLD DAD gets his day a week from today. Of course it's nice for some fathers who'd never have a day otherwise, but personally, I'm "agin" one day a year for mothers, fathers, soldiers and orphans; most of them rate 365 days. Don't you agree? Still, since it's being done, I think I should do my bit. Here's something not only fathers will like but the whole family, though they don't want to wait a week for it. Fact is, you and your aunts will like it, too. The Jitney Jungle on North Fourth street has made a specialty of these tender K. C. steaks for barbecuing. . . . In fact, you can serve your entire wants for barbecuing at Jitney Jungle. Surprise Dad . . . this week with a BARBECUE. . . . Call on Jitney Jungle for your needs . . . and meats.

"DAISY, Daisy, give me your answer true"—did you ever find a high hat in a beautiful shade of blue? I must be pardoned for going poetic but you see I found some little old fashioned high hats of pressed glass yesterday that are reminiscent of the days when that song was a favorite and I just couldn't resist the impulse to quote it. These hats, by the way, were used to hold so-called "parlor matches," I think, though today will do the honors with cigarettes or ashes I'm sure. The pattern in the glass is the well-known daisy and button design and glass comes in blue and other shades. Durrett's gift department is overflowing with new gift ideas and what-nots that add so much to your home. . . . See it in the best magazines . . . and buy it from DURRETT'S.

Sincerely,
Irene.

CHAPTER XLIII

For an hour before Barney came Celia waited impatiently. She had spent a restless night and slept little, but she was not aware that she was tired. Reaction from the excitement of the past 24 hours had not yet set in.

Celia had made a discovery, and everything else in the world paled into unimportance. She knew she loved Barney Shields.

Her heart had sung his name all morning. Barney Shields! Barney with the gray eyes that laughed at pain and hardship! Barney, so strong and self-reliant! Barney, who never failed! Her Barney!

Hearing his voice over the telephone that morning had been like hearing it for the first time.

Celia had laughed and promised eagerly that she would be waiting for him, but all that she wanted to tell him remained unsaid. Had he guessed? Was it possible that Barney did not know how everything in the world had changed when he himself was the center of that transformation?

One minute she hoped he understood. The next she was in a fever of impatience to tell him her heart was his completely.

At luncheon Evelyn Parsons noted the girl's heightened color, her preoccupied manner. Shrewdly she made deductions.

"Have you had any news from the young man who was in the fire?" she asked casually.

"Barney? Oh, yes, he telephoned. The doctor set his arm and put it in a sling, but he says it isn't a bad break. He's coming this afternoon. I mean Barney, not the doctor."

"How nice! I'm anxious to meet him."

"Oh, I want you to! You'll like Barney, too. Everyone does. He's going to be here at three."

"At three? Well, I must certainly manage to say 'how do you do' at least."

Mrs. Parsons turned the conversation into other channels, but she continued to watch Celia and take stock of her observations. For one thing the girl was not eating. Twice she started when she was spoken to and then flushed and stumbled in her apologies. There was a far-away look in Celia's dark eyes. Oh, yes, the signs were all there!

• • •

Lisi had departed immediately after breakfast. It was Mrs. Parsons' custom to spend the hours after luncheon either shopping or at bridge. Celia had set three o'clock as the time for Barney's call confident they would not be interrupted.

"Are you going out?" she asked as she and Evelyn left the luncheon table.

"A little later. There are some letters I really must attend to first."

Celia mumbled something about a manicure and slipped away to her bedroom. She wanted to be alone. Instead of getting out buffer and file she curled up in the one large chair the room boasted and tried to plan exactly what her first words to Barney would be.

She would welcome him at the door herself. It would help to overcome Barney's impression that she lived surrounded by elegance and luxury far beyond him. Guiltily Celia remembered the afternoon before when he had made it plain he thought she did not want to introduce him to her new friends.

Of course she had tried to avoid meeting Tod Jordan. At thought of Jordan the girl realized she faced another problem. Tod would have to be told she had been mistaken in saying she cared for him.

It amazed Celia to discover how detached and impersonal her feeling toward Jordan had become. She had completely forgotten him, and now that she remembered, his name brought no quickening of emotion. Jordan was simply a young man she had danced and driven and strolled with. How could she have imagined she cared more for him than for Barney?

A whole train of frightening reflections followed. What was this bewildering thing called love? She had believed herself "in love" with Barney before she came to New York. Then she had met Jordan and told herself she was "in love" with him. Neither of those affections was anything like the overwhelming emotion which stirred her. There was no doubt that this was love—real love, based on admiration, loyalty, her deep need of Barney and a prayer that Barney might need her.

But it was alarming to know that one could make mistakes about love, and to know that one could change.

Celia remembered how Barney Shields had said he loved her, and complained that her affection was not so deep as his own. Oh, but that had been months before! Was it possible Barney's feelings had altered?

For one dreadful moment the suspense lasted. Then Celia forced a little laugh and sprang up from the chair. There was no reason why she should doubt Barney. She herself might make mistakes, but Barney (bless his precious heart!) would never fail her.

A sudden longing that was both ecstasy and pain swept over her. She wanted to feel his arms about her, to tell Barney that he was dearer to her than life, to hear over and over again that he would never go away.

Celia began to dress. As she busied herself before the mirror her thoughts leaped forward. She planned the meeting at which she would introduce Barney to her father. John Mitchell would approve of the young man, she felt sure, because Barney had a profession of which he was proud, and in which he was succeeding. Frequently Mitchell had made clear what he thought of youths who were content to amuse themselves at sports, idly wasting incomes acquired by hard-working ancestors.

The girl glanced up and caught her reflection. The face in the glass smiled back at her. There was no need to [illegible] today. Her cheeks were pink, and surely her eyes had never been so bright.

She got out her newest frock, slipped it over her shoulders and then hastily put it aside for another. The second dress was rose-colored, quite as expensive as the other, but simpler. Celia remembered that Barney Shields had praised her in the little home-made dress of rose that her mother had fashioned.

As she stood taking a final survey of herself and patting into place a curl equally decorative in its unruly state, she heard a tap on the door.

"Who is it?" Celia called.

Rose, Evelyn's maid, answered. "Mrs. Parsons asked if you could step into her room, Miss Celia."

"Tell her I'll be right in."

Mrs. Parsons was seated at her desk. She looked particularly well in a dark blue satin gown with creamy lace at the throat. Sunlight, shining through the window, had given her a golden halo. As Celia opened the door she looked up, smiling.

"Dear child!" she exclaimed, "what would I do without you? I've been in perfect agony for half an hour trying to make these figures come out right. Do add them for me, won't you? You're so clever and I'm hopeless at such things!"

Frequently Evelyn had found occasion to profit from Celia's business training. Now she held up a sheaf of papers and a memorandum pad. The papers were bills.

"I know they should come to the same figure," Mrs. Parsons continued, "but I simply cannot make them."

"I'll try it," Celia agreed.

Mrs. Parsons promptly relinquished the desk chair. The figures on the memorandum pad were unintelligible. Celia saw at once she would have to go through the stack of bills and tabulate the amounts. Perhaps if she worked swiftly she could finish in time.

"I'll slip outside so as not to interrupt," Evelyn said, and disappeared.

The mathematical problem before Celia was complicated. Furthermore, she was impatient and made two errors at the start. She caught them, began calculations once more, and suddenly heard the ringing of the door bell.

Ten minutes after three and she had not finished. It was Barney, of course.

Celia rose. There was no reason why Evelyn's bills should be balanced immediately. She was disgusted with herself for having undertaken the task.

Her heart beat loudly and for a minute she waited to steady herself. Then she went into the living room. Barney was sitting with his back toward her, talking to Evelyn.

Mrs. Parsons saw the girl.

"Oh, here you are, Celia!" she said sweetly. "You have company. This young man and I have introduced ourselves, and he's been giving me the most amazing account of that terrible fire. You must hear it!"

"Good afternoon, Barney!" Celia said. It was not the speech she had planned.

Shields was on his feet. He took the girl's hand and smiled his good-humored smile.

"How do you do?" he greeted her with unusual formality. The young man's left arm hung in a sling.

"This is a queer time for me to be making a call," Shields added, "but I'm going to play gentleman for a few days. They tell me I haven't any job until this bum arm begins to behave."

"You're not—discharged?"

He laughed at the alarm in the girl's voice.

"No, no! Nothing like that. Matter of fact, Wagner says I'm going to have a raise. Did you see the pictures in the Telegram? They were mine. Gave the one of the little girl a big play. The boss was rather complimentary."

"Oh, Barney, I'm so glad!"

"How splendid!" Evelyn Parsons joined in.

Barney looked embarrassed under praise. He turned the conversation to the fire again. Celia waited impatiently for Mrs. Parsons to leave them. Evidently Evelyn had forgotten her engagement. She did not depart, and at four o'clock when Barney said he must keep an appointment with the doctor, Mrs. Parsons offered to take him in her car.

The afternoon, unsatisfactory as it was to Celia, had a more unpleasant sequel.

Jordan was simply a young man she had danced and driven and strolled with. How could she have imagined she cared more for him than for Barney?

A whole train of frightening reflections followed. What was this bewildering thing called love? She had believed herself "in love" with Barney before she came to New York. Then she had met Jordan and told herself she was "in love" with him. Neither of those affections was anything like the overwhelming emotion which stirred her. There was no doubt that this was love—real love, based on admiration, loyalty, her deep need of Barney and a prayer that Barney might need her.

But it was alarming to know that one could make mistakes about love, and to know that one could change.

Celia remembered how Barney Shields had said he loved her, and complained that her affection was not so deep as his own. Oh, but that had been months before! Was it possible Barney's feelings had altered?

For one dreadful moment the suspense lasted. Then Celia forced a little laugh and sprang up from the chair. There was no reason why she should doubt Barney. She herself might make mistakes, but Barney (bless his precious heart!) would never fail her.

A sudden longing that was both ecstasy and pain swept over her. She wanted to feel his arms about her, to tell Barney that he was dearer to her than life, to hear over and over again that he would never go away.

Celia began to dress. As she busied herself before the mirror her thoughts leaped forward. She planned the meeting at which she would introduce Barney to her father. John Mitchell would approve of the young man, she felt sure, because Barney had a profession of which he was proud, and in which he was succeeding. Frequently Mitchell had made clear what he thought of youths who were content to amuse themselves at sports, idly wasting incomes acquired by hard-working ancestors.

The girl glanced up and caught her reflection. The face in the glass smiled back at her. There was no need to apply rouge today. Her cheeks were pink, and surely her eyes had never been so bright.

She got out her newest frock, slipped it over her shoulders and then hastily put it aside for another. The second dress was rose-colored, quite as expensive as the other, but simpler. Celia remembered that Barney Shields had praised her in the little home-made dress of rose that her mother had fashioned.

As she stood taking a final survey of herself and patting into place a curl equally decorative in its unruly state, she heard a tap on the door.

"Who is it?" Celia called.

Rose, Evelyn's maid, answered. "Mrs. Parsons asked if you could step into her room, Miss Celia."

"Tell her I'll be right in."

Celia looked at her watch. Twelve minutes of three. Then she hurried to Evelyn.

Mrs. Parsons was seated at her desk. She looked particularly well in a dark blue satin gown with creamy lace at the throat. Sunlight, shining through the window, had given her a golden halo. As Celia opened the door she looked up, smiling.

"Dear child!" she exclaimed, "what would I do without you? I've been in perfect agony for half an hour trying to make these figures come out right. Do add them for me, won't you? You're so clever and I'm hopeless at such things!"

Frequently Evelyn had found occasion to profit from Celia's business training. Now she held up a sheaf of papers and a memorandum pad. The papers were bills.

"I know they should come to the same figure," Mrs. Parsons continued, "but I simply cannot make them."

"I'll try it," Celia agreed.

Mrs. Parsons promptly relinquished the desk chair. The figures on the memorandum pad were unintelligible. Celia saw at once she would have to go through the stack of bills and tabulate the amounts. Perhaps if she worked swiftly she could finish in time.

"I'll slip outside so as not to interrupt," Evelyn said, and disappeared.

The mathematical problem before Celia was complicated. Furthermore, she was impatient and made two errors at the start. She caught them, began calculations once more, and suddenly heard the ringing of the door bell.

Ten minutes after three and she had not finished. It was Barney, of course.

Celia rose. There was no reason why Evelyn's bills should be balanced immediately. She was disgusted with herself for having undertaken the task.

Her heart beat loudly and for a minute she waited to steady herself. Then she went into the living room. Barney was sitting with his back toward her, talking to Evelyn.

Mrs. Parsons saw the girl.

"Oh, here you are, Celia!" she said sweetly. "You have company. This young man and I have introduced ourselves, and he's been giving me the most amazing account of that terrible fire. You must hear it!"

"Good afternoon, Barney!" Celia said. It was not the speech she had planned.

Shields was on his feet. He took the girl's hand and smiled his good-humored smile.

"How do you do?" he greeted her with unusual formality. The young man's left arm hung in a sling.

"This is a queer time for me to be making a call," Shields added, "but I'm going to play gentleman for a few days. They tell me I haven't any job until this bum arm begins to behave."

"You're not—discharged?"

He laughed at the alarm in the girl's voice.

"No, no! Nothing like that. Matter of fact, Wagner says I'm going to have a raise. Did you see the pictures in the Telegram? They were mine. Gave the one of the little girl a big play. The boss was rather complimentary."

"Oh, Barney, I'm so glad!"

"How splendid!" Evelyn Parsons joined in.

Barney looked embarrassed under praise. He turned the conversation to the fire again. Celia waited impatiently for Mrs. Parsons to leave them. Evidently Evelyn had forgotten her engagement. She did not depart, and at four o'clock when Barney said he must keep an appointment with the doctor, Mrs. Parsons offered to take him in her car.

The afternoon, unsatisfactory as it was to Celia, had a more unpleasant sequel.

'Marco Polo' Ends Engagement At Paramount Today

Gary Cooper Tops Stellar Cast In Film

Adventures Of Fabulous World Traveler Told In Latest Hit Picture

A MAGNIFICENT cavalcade of romance, splendor, excitement and fun moves swiftly across the screen of the Paramount theater today in Samuel Goldwyn's greatest screen masterpiece, "The Adventures of Marco Polo."

The production offers Gary Cooper in his most romantic role as the swashbuckling adventurer who was the world's first traveling salesman and opened the first important trade route between Europe and Asia during the colorful reign of the great Chinese emperor, Kublai Khan, fighting and loving as he went.

The picture also introduces Sigrid Gurie, the Norwegian beauty discovered by Goldwyn, who completely captivated last night's audience with her rare loveliness, charm and ability. In a word, Sigrid looks to this reviewer like Hollywood's next big feminine star.

When the story opens the romantic, adventurous young Marco is sent by his father from Venice to China.

Arriving in Pekin with his servant (and stooge) Binguccio (Ernest Truex) he amuses and impresses the great Khan and falls in love with his daughter, the beautiful Princess Kukachin (Sigrid Gurie), who is pursued by the villaneous Saracen, Ahmed, who determines to do away with Marco.

Marco Polo is captured by Lord Kaidu (Alan Hale), a general at war with the Khan. Kaidu's beautiful but jealous wife (Binnie Barnes), falls in love with Marco and Kaidu promises to let him live as long as he can keep her amused and off his trail.

Meanwhile, Kublai Khan gives Ahmed full control of his army and the villain plots to send the army to destruction in a typhoon in the China sea and marry the princess.

The girl sends an appeal to Marco who persuades Kaidu to rally his army and march to Pekin to attack the palace and save the princess.

Ahmed traps the army within the city walls and just when it looks as if Kaidu's army will be wiped out, Marco blows up the palace gates with gunpowder—which had hitherto been used simply for firecrackers. After a terrific battle, Marco rescues the princess and Ahmed is killed.

Marco establishes peace between Kaidu and the Khan, gets his trade agreements and carries off the princess.

The production has been brilliantly directed by Archie Mayo from a screen play by Robert E. Sherwood for release through United Artists, and Richard Day's magnificent sets capture perfectly the atmosphere of thirteenth century China. Among the most impressive of these are the great wall of China and the palace of the Khan. The film has been produced on a tremendous scale, with a cast of some 5,000. The battle scenes are breath-taking in their realism and the production as a whole is unforgettable.

Cooper is at his lovable, romantic best as the swashbuckling Marco, the lovely Sigrid is something to see, and others who score in the magnificent cast are Rathbone, Truex, a welcome addition to the comedy annals of screendom, Hale, Barbier and Miss Barnes.

KAY FRANCIS PLAYS IN 'FIRST LADY' AT RIALTO

Kay Francis finished "First Lady," her newest Warner Bros. film, which plays today at the Rialto theater, with one souvenir she prizes for a peculiar reason.

It is a large oil-painting of an elderly, mustachioed, distinguished-looking man, who bears a distinct resemblance to the star. In the picture, you will see it as a portrait of "a former president of the United States," the grandfather of the character Kay plays.

The reason it resembles Kay is that she posed for the picture part of the time, so the studio artist who painted it might get in a "family resemblance." A character actor posed for the masculine general appearance the painter sought to catch.

According to her family album, however, the picture doesn't resemble either of Kay's real grandfathers.

The studio artist, incidentally, had a busy time with portraiture for "First Lady," probably because of its background of Washington, D. C., life and distinguished families.

Sitting for him, besides the star, for portraits either of themselves or ancestors, were Preston Foster, Anita Louise, Walter Connolly, Verree Teasdale and Marjorie Rambeau. Stanley Logan directed the picture.

'SNOW WHITE' AT THE SIEGLE SOON

Walt Disney's first full-length animated feature production in technicolor, "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," opens next Friday for a five-day run at the Siegel motion picture theater on DeSiard street.

The picture has achieved top billing on all motion picture circuits in the country and has packed cinema houses wherever it has been shown.

Recently Disney turned down an offer of a million dollars for a quarter interest in the "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" picture.

The picture was more than three years in the making and is said to have cost well over $100 a foot or approximately $1,000,000 for the entire film of 10,000 feet.

"Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" contains well over 250,000 drawings, but they differ in many respects from those of "Mickey Mouse" and the "Silly Symphonies." For softer lines and pastel shades make up the new characters. There are eight original songs in the picture, and these, as well as all dialogue, will be translated into French, German, Spanish, Italian and the Scandinavian languages.

'Flight Into Nowhere' Is Capitol Film

Jack Holt Heads Outstanding Cast In Story Of Crash Into Jungle Wilds

JACK HOLT, ever-dependable hero of screen adventure tales, crashes through with another two-fisted, fighting narrative in "Flight Into Nowhere," which arrived at the Capitol theater today. The film, a tensely dramatic tale set in South American jungles, offers its star a splendid opportunity and one of which he takes full advantage in his role as fighting chief of a transcontinental air line.

Columbia has supplied the star with a charming and talented leading lady, Jacqueline Wells, and an excellent foil in the person of Dick Purcell. James Burke, as Holt's flying teammate, is ideally cast as a comic Lothario. The supporting roles contributed by Howard Hickman, Karen Sorrell, Fritz Leiber, Robert Fiske and Julian Rivero are also well handled.

Briefly, the story tells of Dick Purcell, a headstrong, stubborn pilot, who against orders and totally unprepared takes off on a trail-breaking flight to South America. While over the jungle country of the upper Amazon, his plane runs out of gas. He crashes, and is picked up by a primitive tribe of Indians.

Holt and Burke set out to try to find him. On arrival in South America they hear rumors of a white man being held captive by head-hunters, so organize an expedition into the jungle country.

Exciting adventures follow, when they rescue a white man from head-hunters who have held him captive for nearly three years.

Purcell, husband of Miss Wells, goes native in the jungles. Forgetting his wife, he marries L-Ana, beautiful half-breed girl who had nursed him to health. When Holt and Burke finally find him, in his savage paradise, Holt at first refuses to take the man back to civilization, but finally succumbs to the pilot's pleas. It is the return journey which provides "Flight Into Nowhere" with one of the most surprising climaxes the screen has ever offered.

"Flight Into Nowhere" is supplied with splendid photography, an excellent cast and a dramatic story. Scenes in the sunken valley of the lost city, with its pueblo dwellings built against towering cliffs, are especially memorable.

Lewis D. Collins directed with an ingenuity which keeps the film moving at break-neck pace. Original story, by William Bloom and C. J. Schneider, was adapted to the screen by Jefferson Parker and Gordon Rigby. James S. Brown, Jr., is responsible for the fine camera work.

KAY FRANCIS PLAYS IN 'FIRST LADY' AT RIALTO

Kay Francis finished "First Lady," her newest Warner Bros. film, which plays today at the Rialto theater, with one souvenir she prizes for a peculiar reason.

It is a large oil-painting of an elderly, mustachioed, distinguished-looking man, who bears a distinct resemblance to the star. In the picture, you will see it as a portrait of "a former president of the United States," the grandfather of the character Kay plays.

The reason it resembles Kay is that she posed for the picture part of the time, so the studio artist who painted it might get in a "family resemblance." A character actor posed for the masculine general appearance the painter sought to catch.

According to her family album, however, the picture doesn't resemble either of Kay's real grandfathers.

The studio artist, incidentally, had a busy time with portraiture for "First Lady," probably because of its background of Washington, D. C., life and distinguished families.

Sitting for him, besides the star, for portraits either of themselves or ancestors, were Preston Foster, Anita Louise, Walter Connolly, Verree Teasdale and Marjorie Rambeau. Stanley Logan directed the picture.

'SNOW WHITE' AT THE SIEGLE SOON

Walt Disney's first full-length animated feature production in technicolor, "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," opens next Friday for a five-day run at the Siegel motion picture theater on DeSiard street.

The picture has achieved top billing on all motion picture circuits in the country and has packed cinema houses wherever it has been shown.

Recently Disney turned down an offer of a million dollars for a quarter interest in the "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" picture.

The picture was more than three years in the making and is said to have cost well over $100 a foot or approximately $1,000,000 for the entire film of 10,000 feet.

"Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" contains well over 250,000 drawings, but they differ in many respects from those of "Mickey Mouse" and the "Silly Symphonies." For softer lines and pastel shades make up the new characters. There are eight original songs in the picture, and these, as well as all dialogue, will be translated into French, German, Spanish, Italian and the Scandinavian languages.

'Flight Into Nowhere' Is Capitol Film

Jack Holt Heads Outstanding Cast In Story Of Crash Into Jungle Wilds

JACK HOLT, ever-dependable hero of screen adventure tales, crashes through with another two-fisted, fighting narrative in "Flight Into Nowhere," which arrived at the Capitol theater today. The film, a tensely dramatic tale set in South American jungles, offers its star a splendid opportunity and one of which he takes full advantage in his role as fighting chief of a transcontinental air line.

Columbia has supplied the star with a charming and talented leading lady, Jacqueline Wells, and an excellent foil in the person of Dick Purcell. James Burke, as Holt's flying teammate, is ideally cast as a comic Lothario. The supporting roles contributed by Howard Hickman, Karen Sorrell, Fritz Leiber, Robert Fiske and Julian Rivero are also well handled.

Briefly, the story tells of Dick Purcell, a headstrong, stubborn pilot, who against orders and totally unprepared takes off on a trail-breaking flight to South America. While over the jungle country of the upper Amazon, his plane runs out of gas. He crashes, and is picked up by a primitive tribe of Indians.

Holt and Burke set out to try to find him. On arrival in South America they hear rumors of a white man being held captive by head-hunters, so organize an expedition into the jungle country.

Exciting adventures follow, when they rescue a white man from head-hunters who have held him captive for nearly three years.

Purcell, husband of Miss Wells, goes native in the jungles. Forgetting his wife, he marries L-Ana, beautiful half-breed girl who had nursed him to health. When Holt and Burke finally find him, in his savage paradise, Holt at first refuses to take the man back to civilization, but finally succumbs to the pilot's pleas. It is the return journey which provides "Flight Into Nowhere" with one of the most surprising climaxes the screen has ever offered.

"Flight Into Nowhere" is supplied with splendid photography; an excellent cast and a dramatic story. Scenes in the sunken valley of the lost city, with its pueblo dwellings built against towering cliffs, are especially memorable.

Lewis D. Collins directed with an ingenuity which keeps the film moving at break-neck pace. Original story, by William Bloom and C. J. Schneider, was adapted to the screen by Jefferson Parker and Gordon Rigby. James S. Brown, Jr., is responsible for the fine camera work.

SHIRLEY TEMPLE'S 'HEIDI' PLAYS AT STRAND THEATER

One of the most unusual sets ever built for a Darryl F. Zanuck production at Twentieth Century-Fox studios was created for "Heidi," Shirley Temple's new starring picture opening today at the Strand theater, when a quarter-acre pond was filled with oil for a novel scenic effect.

The picturization of the famous story by Johanna Spyri, read and loved the world over, includes a specially written dream dance sequence featuring Shirley and 26 other young dancers in a colorfully picturesque Dutch scene.

The oil serves as the surface of the Zuyder Zee on a set reproducing the dykes, islands, windmills and canals about this famous Netherlands harbor, acting as a perfect reflecting medium.

Every detail of the dance, which is done in wooden shoes, will be reflected in perfect perspective in the brilliant surface of oil, an interesting effect designed by Sammy Lee, dance stager. Composers Lew Pollack and Sidney D. Mitchell wrote a new song especially for this number, called "In Our Little Wooden Shoes."

URGE FLAG DAY BE OBSERVED

Legion Post Passes Resolution Asking That Flags Be Displayed

Burnette Downs post, No. 201, of the American Legion, in West Monroe, is desirous of having Flag day, June 14, observed in that city more widely than ever before. In a resolution passed at the regular meeting last week, all citizens of West Monroe are urged to display the national flag at their homes, in front of business places and especially on their automobiles.

The post is being staunchly supported in this effort by Mayor C. C. Bell and by President E. E. Pritchett, president of the West Monroe Kiwanis club, stated Alton T. Harper, commander of the Burnette-Downs post.

The resolution that the post approved unanimously at the recent meeting is as follows:

"Whereas, Tuesday, June 14, is Flag day,

"Whereas, amid the unrest of the world today, it is a good time to call attention to advantages of peace that is enjoyed by our citizens under protection of our flag.

"Resolved, that Burnette Downs post, No. 201, American Legion, West Monroe, respectfully asks that the mayor of West Monroe, and the officers of other organizations commemorate the day by asking all citizens of West Monroe and members of other organizations prominently display the national flag on that day at their homes, on their cars, and in front of their business places.

"Passed by Burnette Downs in meeting assembled Thursday, June 9, 1938.

CANCEL PLANS FOR JULY 4TH LOCAL CELEBRATION

Plans for the July 4 picnic and annual outing of the employes of the Missouri Pacific railroad that was proposed for Monroe were cancelled at a special staff meeting held here Saturday morning.

It was decided that there would be so many other celebrations in progress on that day that the Monroe party might not prove a success and it was decided to defer it to another date.

Original plans contemplated running special trains from points in Arkansas and from Alexandria to Monroe. The party was to have been held at Forsythe park with aquatic events scheduled at the new Swayze natatorium.

GRACE CHURCH
Fourth And Glenmar Streets
Edward Farren Hayward, Rector

The church's services have culminated; for today they mount up to the throne of the Godhead; for, knowing the Son and the Holy Ghost, we know the Father also, and these three are not three Gods, but one God. Now the Catholic faith concerning the Blessed Trinity is this: That we worship one God in Trinity, and Trinity in Unity. The Godhead of the Father, of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost, is all one; the glory equal, the majesty co-eternal. The Father is God, the Son is God, and the Holy Ghost is God. And yet They are not three Gods, but one God. In the Collect for Trinity Sunday we pray Almighty God to keep us steadfast in this faith. The Holy Eucharist will be celebrated on Sunday (Trinity Sunday) at 7:30 a.m. The church school will meet at 9:30 a.m. Choral celebration of the Eucharist and sermon at 10:45 a.m. The public is cordially invited to attend any and all services. The semi-annual report at the recent district conference showed progress in all the departments of the church's activities. The ladies of the missionary society have had the interior of the church repainted which adds to the appearance. The men have repaired the windows of the church, and screen doors have been placed in the Sunday school rooms. A new pastor's study has been built, and changes made in the Sunday school and Epworth league rooms, making them more convenient and attractive. We cordially invite all our friends and urge all our members to come and worship with us.

FIRST METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH, SOUTH
"The Church With The Lighted Steeple"
Jackson At Wood Street
Walter C. Scott, Minister

Why go to church? Because—It is here, through beautiful services, I come close to God and to my human comrades in worship. Here in many ways I learn the truths by which I may live a brave, happy and useful life. Here I gain strength by which I become that which I have learned I ought to be. Here I find comfort in my sorrow, courage in my struggle, joy in my victories. Here I come into union with Christ, my Master and Friend. "Why Go to Church " This is the theme of Laymen's day as it is being observed throughout our conference and Southern Methodism today. It is hoped that every man of the local church will attend church today. Men of other churches and men who have no church home are accorded a special invitation to worship with us on this day, when we pay tribute to the loyal laymen of the church. The sermon theme at the morning hour will be "The Secret of a Popular Church." Evening services will begin at 8 o'clock tonight and throughout the summer months. The theme of the evening sermon will be "A Consecrated Desire." Both services will be broadcast over KMLB. The board of stewards will meet in regular session Monday evening at 7:45. The Woman's Missionary society will meet in circles on Tuesday at 3 p.m. Vacation church school for primary and junior children will open tomorrow morning, with classes each morning from 8:30 till 11 for the next two weeks.

URGE FLAG DAY BE OBSERVED

Legion Post Passes Resolution Asking That Flags Be Displayed

Burnette Downs post, No. 201, of the American Legion, in West Monroe, is desirous of having Flag day, June 14, observed in that city more widely than ever before. In a resolution passed at the regular meeting last week, all citizens of West Monroe are urged to display the national flag at their homes, in front of business places and especially on their automobiles.

The post is being staunchly supported in this effort by Mayor C. C. Bell and by President E. E. Pritchett, president of the West Monroe Kiwanis club, stated Alton T. Harper, commander of the Burnette-Downs post.

The resolution that the post approved unanimously at the recent meeting is as follows:

"Whereas, Tuesday, June 14, is Flag day.

"Whereas, amid the unrest of the world today, it is a good time to call attention to advantages of peace that is enjoyed by our citizens under protection of our flag.

"Resolved, that Burnette Downs post, No. 201, American Legion, West Monroe, respectfully asks that the mayor of West Monroe, and the officers of other organizations commemorate the day by asking all citizens of West Monroe and members of other organizations prominently display the national flag on that day at their homes, on their cars, and in front of their business places.

"Passed by Burnette Downs in meeting assembled Thursday, June 9, 1938.
(Signed) "ALTON T. HARPER,
"Commander."

TECH INSTRUCTOR TO ATTEND CONVENTION

RUSTON, La., June 11.—(Special)—A. E. Phillips, director of the Louisiana Tech teacher-training school, will leave Sunday for Detroit to attend a meeting of national progressive education leaders. The convention will be held at the Cranbrook school from Monday, June 13, through Saturday, June 25.

Mr. Phillips, who for 15 years has been recognized as a leader of progressive education in the south, is among 50 outstanding educators who have been invited to take part in the discussions at the meeting. A check was enclosed with the invitation which will pay all of Mr. Phillips' expenses.

Among the educators who will attend the meeting are two persons who have taken part on programs at Tech. One is Dr. Alice Keliher, now of New York City, who is the commissioner of human relations. Frank Jenkins, a Mississippi educator, will be one of the speakers for the occasion. He will give a report on the southern association's progress.

Mr. Phillips is one of the southern regional board representatives of the national association.

CANCEL PLANS FOR JULY 4TH LOCAL CELEBRATION

Plans for the July 4 picnic and annual outing of the employes of the Missouri Pacific railroad that was proposed for Monroe were cancelled at a special staff meeting held here Saturday morning.

It was decided that there would be so many other celebrations in progress on that day that the Monroe party might not prove a success and it was decided to defer it to another date.

Original plans contemplated running special trains from points in Arkansas and from Alexandria to Monroe. The party was to have been held at Forsythe park with aquatic events scheduled at the new Swayze natatorium.

GRACE CHURCH

Fourth And Glenmar Streets
Edward Farren Hayward, Rector

The church's services have culminated; for today they mount up to the throne of the Godhead; for, knowing the Son and the Holy Ghost, we know the Father also, and these three are not three Gods, but one God. Now the Catholic faith concerning the Blessed Trinity is this: That we worship one God in Trinity, and Trinity in Unity. The Godhead of the Father, of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost, is all, one: the glory equal, the majesty co-eternal. The Father is God, the Son is God, and the Holy Ghost is God. And yet They are not three Gods; but one God. In the Collect for Trinity Sunday we pray Almighty God to keep us steadfast in this faith. The Holy Eucharist will be celebrated on Sunday (Trinity Sunday) at 7:30 a.m. The church school will meet at 9:30 a.m. Choral celebration of the Eucharist and sermon at 10:45 a.m. The public is cordially invited to attend any and all services. The church is opened daily from 7:30 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. Come in, rest, pray, give thanks, meditate.

He said, No, walk in the town!
I said, There are no flowers there.
He said, No flowers, but a crown.

"I said, I shall miss the light,
And friends will miss me, they say.
He answered, Choose ye tonight,
If I must miss you, or they.

"Then into His hand went mine,
And into my heart came He;
And I walk in a light divine
The path I had feared to see."

GORDON AVENUE METHODIST

J. M. Alford, Pastor

The usual program of work will be carried out at the Gordon Avenue Methodist church today with one exception, when the laymen of the church will render a program at the evening hour (7:45 p.m.). This is known as "Layman's Day" throughout the state. R. L. Hales, the lay-leader, will have charge of the services, and it is understood that special addresses and suitable songs will feature the meeting. The church school will meet at 9:45 a.m., in charge of E. K. Reeves, the general superintendent. The two Epworth leagues will meet at 7 p.m. The pastor will deliver a message at the morning hour (11 a.m.) and use as his subject: "The Soul-Agony of Christ." Our Sunday school was well beyond the hundred mark last Sunday, and it is desired that all will attend this as well as all the services of the church and help to keep up the fine interest which we have had all the year. The semi-annual report at the recent district conference showed progress in all the departments of the church's activities. The ladies of the missionary society have had the interior of the church repainted which adds to the appearance. The men have repaired the windows of the church, and screen doors have been placed in the Sunday school rooms. A new pastor's study has been built, and changes made in the Sunday school and Epworth league rooms, making them more convenient and attractive. We cordially invite all our friends and urge all our members to come and worship with us.

FIRST METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH, SOUTH

"The Church With The Lighted Steeple"
Jackson At Wood Street
Walter C. Scott, Minister

Why go to church? Because—It is here, through beautiful services, I come close to God and to my human comrades in worship. Here in many ways I learn the truths by which I may live a brave, happy and useful life. Here I gain strength by which I become that which I have learned I ought to be. Here I find comfort in my sorrow, courage in my struggle, joy in my victories. Here I come into union with Christ, my Master and Friend. "Why Go to Church" This is the theme of Laymen's day as it is being observed throughout our conference and Southern Methodism today. It is hoped that every man of the local church will attend church today. Men of other churches and men who have no church home are accorded a special invitation to worship with us on this day, when we pay tribute to the loyal laymen of the church. The sermon theme at the morning hour will be "The Secret of a Popular Church." Evening services will begin at 8 o'clock tonight and throughout the summer months. The theme of the evening sermon will be "A Consecrated Desire." Both services will be broadcast over KMLB. The board of stewards will meet in regular session Monday evening at 7:45. The Woman's Missionary society will meet in circles on Tuesday at 3 p.m. Vacation church school for primary and junior children will open tomorrow morning, with classes each morning from 8:30 till 11 for the next two weeks.

Nothing to make noise, nothing to wear—now or years from now. A tiny gas flame does the work, circulating a refrigerant that produces steady, constant cold and plenty of ice cubes.

More than a million families have found that the simpler freezing principle of Servel Electrolux not only gives permanently silent operation, but that it also saves money in running and upkeep expense. And that's why so many other families are choosing Servel Electrolux as their second refrigerator. Call today at our showroom and see the beautiful new models now on display.

THIS IS A SERIOUS, SCIENTIFIC ENDEAVOR, GENTLEMEN, THE CHIEF PURPOSE OF WHICH IS TO COLLECT THE LARVAE OF MYRMELEON, A NEUROPTEROUS INSECT OF THE FAMILY MYRMELEONIDAE.
HOLY SMOKE! WOT'S THAT?
IN OTHER WORDS, AN ANT-LION.
COMMONLY REFERRED TO IN AMERICA AS A DOODLE-BUG.
DID YOU SAY DOODLE-BUG?
OH, YES. THEY'RE SIMPLY FASCINATING! ONLY 400 SPECIES ARE KNOWN TO SCIENCE, AND PROFESSOR TWITCHET'S DREAM IS TO DISCOVER A NEW SPECIES.
NOTHING SHORT OF THAT, I FEEL, WILL PUT POTAWOTAMI STATE NORMAL ON THE MAP.
IT MEANS EVERYTHING TO THE PROFESSOR. HE WANTS TO FEEL THAT HE'S CONTRIBUTED SOMETHING BIG TO SCIENCE.
OH, NATURALLY!
OF COURSE!
HE WANTS TO DELIVER A PAPER BEFORE THE ENTOMOLOGICAL SOCIETY, AND GO DOWN IN HISTORY AS THE DISCOVERER OF A NEW DOODLE-BUG.
WELL, WELL! THINK OF THAT, PODNER!
JUST LIKE CHRISTOPHER COLUMBUS—HE DISCOVERED SUMPIN' NEW, TOO.
IT'LL BE AWFULLY EXCITING. THERE'S SAID TO BE A LOST TEMPLE, FILLED WITH PRECIOUS JEWELS, WHERE WE'RE GOING!
HANG THE JEWELS, MISS PLACE! HOW MANY TIMES NEED I REMIND YOU THAT WE HAVE NO TIME TO DILLY-DALLY WITH WORLDLY RICHES?
I'M SO SORRY!
YOU SEE, THE PROFESSOR DOESN'T GIVE TWO PINS FOR ANYTHING EXCEPT ENTOMOLOGY.
SO I GATHER.
AH, WELL! WHO'D DREAM OF LOOKING FOR JEWELS, WHEN DOODLE-BUGS ARE TO BE HAD?
EXACTLY, MY FRIENDS! THAT'S THE WAY I FEEL.
6-12
AND WOULD YOU BELIEVE IT? WHERE WE'RE GOING, THE NATIVES WORSHIP SWINKS!
WOT TH' HECK IS A SWINK?
Roy Crane
I DON'T KNOW! BUT I'M SURE IT'S SOMETHING HORRIBLE!
COPR. 1938 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.
NEVER MIND THE SWINKS, BOYS! THE POTAWOTAMI DOODLE-BUG EXPEDITION IS UNDER WAY!
